Bailey's Standard Cyclopedia of Horticulture.

First volume just off the press. Remaining volumes will be issued as soon as possible. The following are a few of the features to be found in this new work:

KEY TO IDENTIFICATION OF PLANTS.

This is a device to enable one to find the name of a plant. The name thus found is quickly referred to under its alphabetical location, where full information will be found in regard to it.

SYNOPSIS OF PLANT KINGDOM.

This is one of the most important features of the new edition. It constitutes a general running account of the classes, orders and groups of plants, with a brief sketch or characterization of 215 of the leading families comprising those that yield practically all the cultivated plants. These family descriptions give the botanical characters and the number of genera and species and the ranges.

THE GLOSSARY.

This is an analysis of all technical terms that are used in the work and in similar works.

TRANSLATION AND PRONUNCIATION OF LATIN NAMES.

In Volume I is inserted a list of between 2,000 and 3,000 Latin words used as species—names of plants, giving the English equivalent or translation and the pronunciation.

CLASS ARTICLES.

Special effort has been made to secure the best cultural advices for the plants requiring peculiar or particular handling.

ILLUSTRATIONS.

There are 24 colored plates, 96 full-page sepia halftones, and more than 4,000 engravings which serve as guides in the text.

GENERAL INDEX.

The final volume will contain a complete index to the entire work, enabling the reader to locate volume and page of any subject he has in mind. With the Index, Key, Synopsis and alphabetical arrangement of the Cyclopedia, any reasonable question asked by the consultant will receive a ready answer.

This work consists of six large quarto volumes, more than 3,600 pages, 500 collaborators, approximately 4,000 genera, 15,000 species and 40,000 plant names. Price, $6.00 per volume; $36.00 per set. Can be paid for one volume at a time.

Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

LEAKS AT PIPE JOINTS.

About two years ago we had our greenhouses piped for hot water, using 3-inch flow pipes and 2-inch returns. The plumbers did not do a good job. The pipes leaked at the couplings and unions just a little a year ago, but this year they leaked badly, in some places in a stream. Can the pipes be tightened up, or will they have to be taken apart so as to paint the threads with white lead again? Will some reader of The Review give his experience? J. G.

So far as the leaking joints themselves are concerned, it is generally possible to tighten them without first taking them all apart and painting the joints, but it will be well to paint the exposed threads before they are turned in. Just how much of the pipe will have to be unscrewed in order to tighten the joints will depend upon the location of the leaks. In most cases it will be necessary to have the lower end of each pipe free before attempting to turn up the joints. It may also be necessary to use new gaskets for the unions. In most cases it will be advisable to disconnect, or at least loosen, the unions before turning up the joints in the pipes.

THE FUEL MARKET.

The coal market is continuously and monotonously dull—that seems to be the one undisputed fact with reference to the subject; in that all reports agree. As to the reasons for the extraordinary dullness, there is not such perfect unanimity of opinion, but it is generally agreed that the low ebb of business in general, and especially at the great factories, is chiefly to blame for the lassitude in the coal trade. Idle factories need no coal, and idle employees are not likely to spend much money in buying coal for use next winter. Besides, the depression in business, it is said, has almost stopped the lake traffic in coal; there is little demand for iron ore and hence many of the coal boats are not running, for the boats must carry ore in one direction and coal in the opposite direction in order to make the round trip profitable. "The mine operators," says the Black Diamond, "could produce three to four times as much coal as they are now turning out," as the labor troubles have mostly been settled.

To the foregoing reasons, according to the Black Diamond, must be added the "sharp letting up in the export demand for coal. A big part of our export market is in Central and South America. Central America is much disturbed by political conditions. South America seems to be in the throes of a depression even more acute than that witnessed in the United States.

"Smokeless coal has been extremely dull. The favorable position occupied by smokeless in the minds of discriminating buyers has caused the producers of lower grade coal to seek those markets trying to sell their coal in substitution for smokeless. Any coal which will analyze reasonably low in volatile matter has in recent weeks been classed as smokeless coal and sold as such. Taking the whole volume of sales in Chicago and immediate vicinity, smokeless coal has ceased within the last few weeks to mean either Pocahontas or New River, but it has come to include about everything that will run from twenty-eight to thirty per cent of volatile matter or less. The prices, therefore, which are quoted on smokeless coal in Chicago on the street do not represent prices accepted for Pocahontas and New River. For example, we hear that 90 cents and $1 a ton are common prices for smokeless coal on track. With one or two exceptions, Pocahontas or New River coal has not been sold at any such price. The low figures are mostly named by producers of so-called low volatile coal. The extent to which such trading has gone robs the quoted market price of a good deal of its importance or significance. So far these sales of off-grade coal have not influenced the price named by standard producers."

A NORTH CAROLINA RANGE.

We are enclosing a diagram of some greenhouses that we propose to build. The houses will run east and west, with the boiler house at the east end of the south greenhouse. House No. 1, the south house, will be 21x80, and three-quarter-span. The south wall, six and one-half feet high, will be solid to a height of two and one-half feet; above that will be four feet of glass. The north wall will be seven and one-half feet high and will contain thirty inches of glass. The height from floor to ridge will be twelve feet. There will be a walk along each side and there will be two side benches, five feet wide; the rest of the space will be used for solid beds. House No. 2, on the north side of No. 1, will be 10x50 and will be even-span; the west end of the two houses will be in a straight line. The north wall of house No. 2 will contain eighteen inches of glass. In this house there will be one bench, seven feet wide, in the middle of the house.

House No. 1 will thus be thirty feet longer than No. 2, but extending eastward from No. 2 will be a lean-to, 7x30, so that the entire north side of house No. 1 will be protected. The lean-to, which may be referred to as house No. 3, will contain one bench, along the north wall; this wall will be four feet high, including eighteen inches of glass.

The floor of the boiler house will be seven feet lower than the floor of the greenhouses. We shall heat with hot water. The flow pipes will rise to the highest point directly above the boiler and then slope gradually to the far end of the houses, there to drop and return through coils. We wish a temperature of 52 degrees in house No. 1 and 40 to 45 degrees in No. 2. No. 3, the lean-to, will be a propagating house. There will be only one door in each house, in the east end. What piping should be installed to maintain the temperatures mentioned? How many runs of 2-inch pipe will be required for the coils? It is unusual in this part of North Carolina for the outside temperature to drop as low as 4 degrees above zero.

What size of boiler, or what rating, would be required to heat these houses and, in addition, a three-quarter-span house 21½x45, with a solid north wall seven and one-half feet high and a 5½-foot south wall containing two feet of glass, and with a total height of twelve feet to the ridge, the house to be heated to 60 degrees? How much larger would the boiler have to be to heat another house like No. 1, built onto the south side of No. 1, with the partition between the two taken out? W. S. G.

For heating this range of houses, I would suggest running three 2½-inch flow pipes from the boiler room to the west end of house No. 1, placing one of them on each plate and the other about a foot under the ridge. From the flow pipe on the south wall take off three 2-inch returns, which should be carried back to the boiler on the south wall. With the middle flow pipe supply two returns, which can be supported either from the roof or on the posts under the ridge or the purlins. Two 2-inch returns should also be connected with the flow pipe on the north wall of house No. 1 and carried upon the north wall below the flow pipe.

For heating houses No. 2 and 3, take off four more 2-inch returns from the flow pipe upon the north wall of house No. 1, and run two of them on the south wall and the others on the north wall of house No. 2. The two 2-inch pipes on the south wall of house No. 2 should be carried into house No. 3; after taking off two other 2-inch returns from them, making four in this house, carry them under the propagating bed. Owing to the door in the east end of house No. 2, it will be necessary to connect the two returns on the north wall of that house and, after dropping the return to the ground, carry it back to the boiler, unless it is possible to connect it with the main return from house No. 3.

To heat the present houses and, in addition, the house 21½x45, as described, it will be well to select a boiler with a rating of about 1,250 square feet of radiating surface. Or, if another house like house No. 1 is added, the radiation needed will require a boiler with a rating of about 2,000 square feet.

McKEESPORT, PA.

A local paper says: "Instead of flowers on Mothers' day next year why not use ribbons? It will be cheaper and shut off the florists' graft. It won't be so easy for the department stores to jump the price of ribbon 600 per cent, like the florists did on flowers."—J. H. Orth comments that "if the high price of flowers for Mothers' days will not come down, this is what will happen."

Mothers' day was better this year by seventy-five per cent. Carnations sold as high as 25 cents each and found buyers at that. Some of the stores claim that they did more business than at Easter.

Business for Memorial day is good and it will be a clean-up for all plantsmen in and around this city. Blooming plants will be scarce and what geraniums are in bloom will sell at 25 to 35 cents each. Funeral work has been good.

Joseph M. Johnston has a large cut of cold storage lilies.

HELENA, MONT.

Business has been brisk, but the supply recently has been on the short side. Beauties in the better grades cleaned up every day. Several social functions made the demand for corsages exceptionally good, with the result that the short Wards and Radiance were good sellers. Combinations of Mrs. Sander Marguerites and Ward roses seem to gain in popularity.

Morehead Back-to-Boiler SYSTEM

You can save fuel, time and money and have a better growth of stock by draining your steam lines and returning the condensation direct to your boilers—placed above ground—as pure, hot feed water.

If you will use, in place of your present unsatisfactory methods, an installation of the Morehead Back-to-Boiler System, you will find that the temperature of your greenhouses will always be steady and uniform.

Now will you write us your conditions and have our engineers go into your particular problem and then show you how it will be possible to make a real saving for you? Will you do this today—right now? It will be to your advantage.

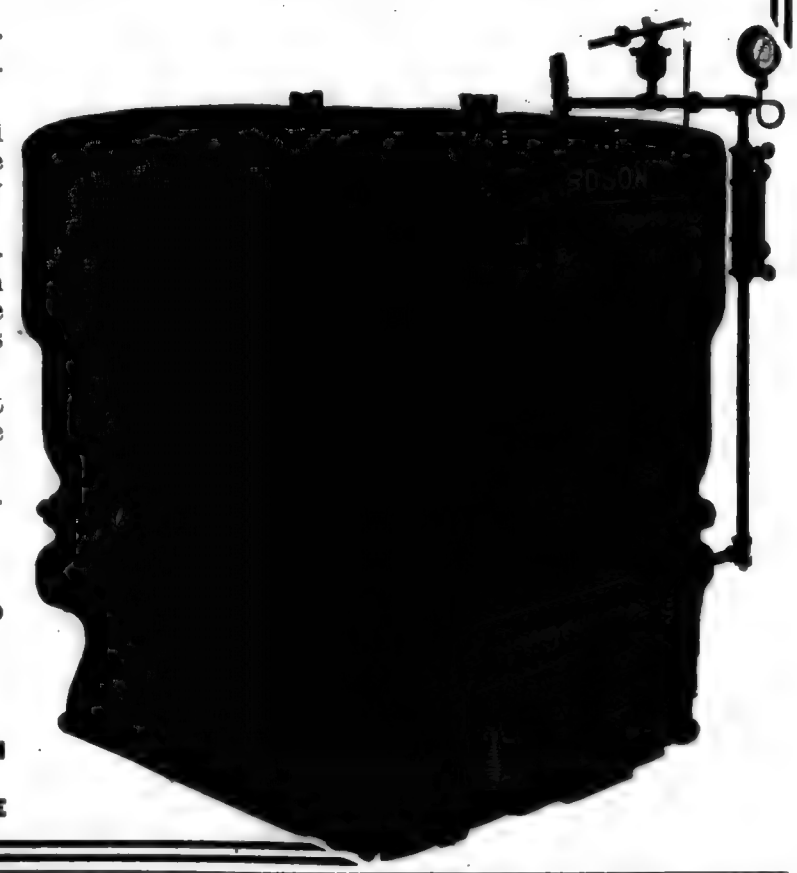
FOR HOT WATER AND STEAM
Round—Side Feed—End Feed—60 Sizes and Styles



¶We have been building boilers for many years—nothing new or experimental about the "Richardson."

¶The "Richardson" is built as well as we know how to build it, in the light of our three-quarters of a century of experience.

¶The "Richardson" places the maximum amount of heating surface in direct contact with the fire—long fire travel, narrow waterways. It gets all the heat—it saves coal.

¶The "Richardson" is not a "cheap" boiler, but it is sold at low prices in spite of the fact that we purchase nothing but the highest grade iron, coke and other material.

The Market.

These are busy days for the plantsmen and, if the favorable weather we had last week continues, outside work will be well along by Memorial day. This day is not of as much consequence locally as it appears to be in some localities. Of course there is considerable extra business, but not so much but what we could handle more.

The market is well supplied at present with roses, carnations, sweet peas, gladioli, some few snaps, valley, etc.

Various Notes.

James Taylor has moved from the store he occupied at 980 Woodward avenue to 2370 Woodward avenue.

Fred Gerhardt and Fred Hopp have opened a retail store at 980 Woodward avenue. This store was recently vacated by James Taylor. Mr. Hopp was for some time in the employ of the Scribner Floral Co.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Detroit Florists' Club gave a dancing party on Friday, May 15, the proceeds to be used for charitable purposes.

Asman & Dunn have added a new Overland delivery car to their equipment.

F. T. D. Pochelon spent a week near Grayling, Mich., indulging in his favorite sport, fishing.

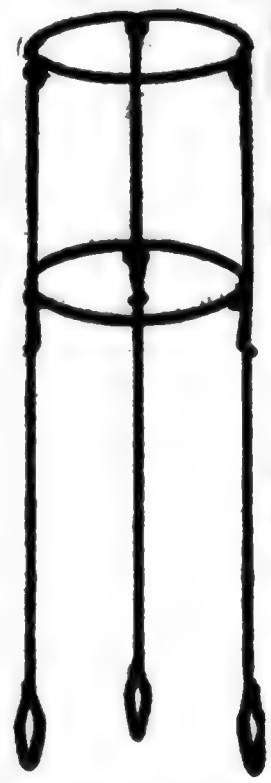
Business continues unusually good for this time of year, in spite of dry and rather warm weather. Business in all lines is good and the prospect is excellent for June, many elaborate weddings being in prospect. Stock is in large supply and good for the season, although weather conditions are beginning to have an effect, most apparent in the carnations.

Various Notes.



At the end of last week C. W. Crouch was cutting 3,000 peonies daily, shipping them to Philadelphia, New York, Chicago and Cincinnati.

Since Mothers' day demand has slacked off, according to A. J. McNutt, so that he has had some surplus stock. Kaiserin continues to give good results here.

The Howell Nursery Co. has been cutting large quantities of peonies, which have been shipped to northern markets. A. H. Dailey also is a local peony grower who contributes to the supply in northern cities.

The planting of two acres of gladioli has just been finished at C. L. Baum's, where there also are 50,000 carnation plants in the field. Business at the store has been unusually good.

Scotch Soot

Where there is a house that is just full of buds almost ready to show color, nothing will turn better color into the flowers than a little soot, that can be scattered over the benches before watering. The amount applied should not be excessive, as the soot is very strong and may damage some of the foliage somewhat. Apply just enough to blacken the surface of the soil in the benches and let it go at that. Better a little oftener than too much all at once.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.

The Market.

Memorial day is fast approaching and the trade is extremely busy with advance orders for that time. The orders are coming in fast and from indications it will be one of the largest holidays the florists have seen. Roses are coming on nicely and the crop will be about right for Memorial day sales. Killarneys are in prime condition and Wards, Tafts and Russells are also especially fine. The supply of roses in general will be large enough to supply the demand, which will be quite heavy.

The carnation crop has been affected to a great extent by the extremely warm weather which has been with us for the last week. This condition has brought the quality of this stock below standard, but as cool, cloudy weather has now set in it is expected that the crop will harden up and be in fine shape for the Memorial day trade. The supply, while somewhat limited, will be sufficient to take care of most of the demands made upon it.

There is a large supply of sweet peas on the market, but most of them are poor and bring next to nothing. What good stock there is, is bringing top-notch prices, as there is always a good market for first-class stock. Peonies are looking fine and this stock will be one of the big factors in the business done for Memorial day. Easter lilies are abundant and these will be cheap flowers for the holiday trade.

If the weather is not too warm, it is expected that tulips will be in fine condition at the end of this week. At present the stock is poor and is not cleaning up well. There is some exceptionally fine iris on the market at this time, which is bringing good prices.

The sale of spring plants is enormous this year and the stock is moving rapidly. Growers of this stock report large sales and that they are entirely cleaned out of some varieties already.

Various Notes.

The Market.

The week has been dry and hot, with the nights cool or almost cold. Where there was not proper tillage early in the season the crops are suffering from the drought. There is a good demand for nearly all kinds of flowers and this week bids fair to be a busy one, as there will be at least three commencements. Peonies are pretty well gone, as a result of the dry weather. The quality proved better than had been expected, especially in the later varieties. There was a surplus, though none was shipped to the northern market this season, so far as reported. They have retailed at $1 per dozen most of the time. Carnations are in heavy crop and the quality seems much better than one would look for at this season. They have not sold well since Mothers' day, but are cleaning up fairly well at present.

The summer roses are in bloom in the open and the greenhouse stock is also extra good. The first Witchmoss roses bloomed last week. They are heavily mossed and a cluster of the buds is certainly pretty just as the color is showing. The color of the full-blown flower is too light a pink. The bloom is nearly single and almost white. While the color is disappointing, Witchmoss is one of the good climbing roses. Spanish irises are at their best now in the open and are selling well. Three or four years ago these flowers were all but unknown here, but at present they are grown in quantities and are valuable. Some Glory of Seven Oaks chrysanthemums are in bloom. This variety is of moderate size, of a golden yellow color, perfectly hardy in the open ground and almost an everbloomer here.

Various Notes.

The new extension windows on the store of the Joy Floral Co. are completed and were decorated for the first time last week. They give plenty of display room and in an effective place, as they project well out on the sidewalk. This is an improvement that this firm has long needed.

Mr. Johnston, the new florist in North Nashville, has pretty well covered the city this spring with his wagons and cards and has been getting acquainted with the public. He is getting in line for good business in the future. F. B.

Wapakoneta, O. — The McMurray Greenhouses have a snug place. Mrs. McMurray says that for Mothers' day everything in flowers went and geraniums in large sizes sold well. They had a batch grown specially for the occasion.

E. A. LIPPMAN

MANUFACTURER OF

GREENHOUSE SHADING

No. 6 High Street, MORRISTOWN, N. J.

AFTER twenty-five years' experience in Greenhouse work, with Lord & Burnham Company, in the glazing and painting department, I am convinced that what is most needed in this line is a good shading, and I am pleased to advise you that I have the real thing, which I am sure you will find to be just what you are looking for.

This shading is beneficial to the painted wood, as it does not contain any gasoline or naphtha which would destroy the paint. In addition, it is beneficial to the glass also, for you will find that when the shading is removed the glass retains its former brilliancy.

As to its application, this is a very easy matter. It can be either sprayed on or put on with a soft brush. For real good work, however, I would recommend the use of a soft brush.

Another advantage of this shading is that when it is no longer needed, it can be removed without any difficulty, leaving the glass, as before stated, with its original brilliancy.

I am making this up in gallon cans, in three shades—light green, light blue and pure white. When ordering, kindly mention the color desired.

I trust that you will kindly favor me with a trial order to prove its worth, after which I have no doubt whatever but that you will continue its use.

The Market.

Trade during the last two weeks has been quite good, most of the stock going into funeral work. A great deal of stock has also been used for school commencements and weddings. Roses and carnations are plentiful, but both are showing the effects of the warm weather. Plenty of good valley, sweet peas and Easter lilies are coming in and find a ready sale. Smilax and asparagus are scarce.

Various Notes.

Honaker the Florist had a narrow escape from being burned out May 24, at the time of the destruction of the plant of the McCormick Lumber Co., adjoining the greenhouses. Only the prompt work of the fire department and the greenhouse force saved the range.

The force at the John A. Keller estate has been busy of late with bedding stock. The houses are pretty well cleaned out. Spencer peas from this establishment are the best to be found in this market. Roses and carnations are plentiful and of good quality.

Michler Bros. Co. reports a busy spring in all branches and especially in landscape work. The new house, intended for roses, is completed.

Keller Florist has had his hands full with funeral and commencement work of late. Several orders are on file for weddings in the next few days. Mr. Keller reports business good in general.

Kelley & Current are sending a fine lot of longiflorum lilies to this market. Thousands of bedding plants have been disposed of during the last few weeks by this firm.

A visit to the State Asylum for the Insane found the grounds in fine shape, the bedding out having been finished some time ago. August Le Clere deserves much credit for his work.

J. F. Keller, manager of the John A. Keller estate, is receiving congratulations. It's a girl this time.

The display of hardy flowering shrubbery, peonies, iris, roses, etc., seen in this vicinity this spring has been the best for several seasons.

Anders Rasmussen, of New Albany, Ind., accompanied by his wife, niece and Mrs. Bauman, of Louisville, Ky., spent Sunday, May 24, in this city and vicinity. Mr. Rasmussen is an enthusiastic automobilist.

Other recent visitors were: G. A. Metcalfe, of Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago; O. C. Heberling, of Georgetown, Ky.; Mr. Lembke, of the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, and Louis D. Singer, of Harrodsburg, Ky. J. P. K.

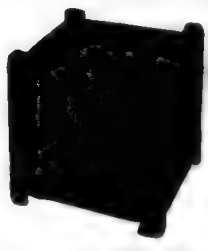
The Market.

The market has been fairly well stocked with flowers of all kinds and grades during the last week. Business in most of the stores has been quite good. Graduations have made an extra call for flowers, while orders for later graduations continue to arrive. The wedding season has already started and most florists have received their share of work. The last week has been the most settled this season and greenhousemen have been kept hustling delivering the bedding stock, etc.



The cut flower market has been quite good, with quality about as usual. Good shipments of Sunburst roses arrive daily and sell well. American Beauties are also in good condition and bring usual prices. There has been a good supply of Killarney, Killarney Queen, Milady, Richmond, Taft and Shawyer. Carnations are keeping up in quality quite well, some giving exceptional blooms. Snapdragons are selling fast in all colors and prove to be pleasing flowers to the customer. Sweet peas are arriving in abundance in about all shades and sell well, but at a low figure. The supply of green goods is normal. Ferns and palms sell well, but there is a limited supply of potted blooming plants just now.

The Flower Show.

There will be no flower show this year. The Rochester Florists' Association, at a special meeting held last Monday night, May 18, in the store of George B. Hart, decided the question by unanimous vote, but by a similar expression declared in favor of a show in 1915.

President John Dunbar presided, and twenty-two members of the association were present. William H. Dildine, chairman of the committee appointed at a previous meeting to consider the financial question facing a flower show this year, made his report and the action of the meeting quickly followed.

Mr. Dildine said the committee had found private growers willing to exhibit, and many members of the association had expressed themselves in favor of a show. The committee had decided, however, in deference to the judgment of a number of florists, who doubted the wisdom of holding flower shows annually, to recommend that the association hold no show until 1915. President Dunbar said, "We are sorry to disappoint our many patrons, but it will only mean, we believe, a better and more artistic show next year." H. J. H.

The President Explains Why Our Materials Are Painted the Way They Are Painted

IT COSTS us a lot of money each year for testing our oil and white and red leads we use in our paints. We don't care how good a reputation a manufacturer has—every purchase of lead and oil we make is tested and retested. If there's a trace of anything otherwise than "strictly pure," there is straightaway "something doing." In most cases the offending material is simply shipped straight back without any discussion.

First and foremost, then, the oil and the lead we use are absolutely the best money can buy.

Secondly, we hand-prime. The paint is not only brushed on but into the very fiber of the wood and rough places of the iron. The distribution is uniform and not heavy in spots, as with the much-exploited dipping process. We have given both methods careful trial, but are now back to the old-fashioned, brushed-on one, even if it does cost us more.

Did you ever hear of a job of Hitchings painting "chalking off"?

With paint as with everything else, you can depend on depending on Hitchings—and "we go anywhere for business."

GETTING TOGETHER GETS RESULTS

How Florists of Detroit and Toledo increased holiday business beyond all expectations by means of co-operative advertising

PROBABLY no general movement in the trade has ever put so much money into florists' pockets in an equal length of time as the movement for coöperative advertising. The response to The Review's advocacy of this means of boosting the business for special flower days has been far greater than was at first anticipated. Although Mothers' day provides the strongest illustration of the results achieved in this way, the plan is coming more and more into use for other occasions, and others besides those whose opinions are given here have been busying their brains with the question how far coöperation in this line can be carried. Probably the question can be answered only by experiment. The experiments so far made have proved successful even beyond expectations; there seems to be no likelihood that others will not be successful also. How this plan can be carried out is clearly set forth in the following descriptions of its workings in Toledo and Detroit, given by prominent members of the trade in these cities:

IN TOLEDO.

[BY HENRY E. KLUNDER.]

In coöperative advertising we have at last the solution to the retail florists' advertising problem. Every retailer feels that he must advertise, but he knows that the size of the advertisement his business can afford to buy will not bring him the results necessary to make the venture a paying proposition. For this reason the small retailer is even worse off than his bigger brother.

Until recently the value of coöperative advertising had not been considered. Mothers' day gave the opportunity, inasmuch as the florists throughout the country deemed the day's business too small to warrant a large expenditure and turned to coöperative advertising as the cheapest means of gaining the desired publicity. The results of this trial were far beyond the most sanguine expectations and proved completely its superiority as a means for florists to reach the public.

Size of Advertisement.

A great deal may be said about the size of the advertisements necessary to give results. It is my opinion, derived from various experiences in this line, that the larger the city the larger the advertisements must be. In the leading cities page advertisements would be necessary to give the results which would be produced by half-pages in the smaller cities. In the busy life of the largest cities a small advertisement does not make the impression that it does where life is less complex. Two insertions are, of course, far more productive of results than one.

In carrying out our coöperative advertising in Toledo for Mothers' day, we had some difficulty in getting enough subscribers to make it a success. The original plan was to get $10 from each of the leading retailers of the city, but as a number objected, we succeeded in getting only thirteen at $5 each. This gave us $65, with which we were able to get one insertion each in the two leading evening papers, of the advertisement shown on this page, approximately a quarter of a page in size.

Trade Must Push Special Days.

Although florists were the pioneers in making Mothers' day a great occasion, we must continue to push it, in common with other special days, or else other lines will find ways of taking part of the business away from us—such as advocating gifts of boxes of candy to living mothers. It is my belief that in every fair-sized city the florists should have a fund to make coöperative advertising a part of the preparation for each holiday and memorial occasion.

Full page advertisements with the subscribing florists' names alphabetically listed will be sure to bring all the business that can be adequately handled. Occasions in addition to the established flower days which are much in need of boosting are Thanksgiving, New Year's and St. Valentine's days. These days have never been thoroughly exploited and offer great possibilities for coöperative advertising.

A point of vital importance in getting up these advertisements is not to push any particular flower, but to make the statements broad enough to include about everything seasonable, both in cut flowers and blooming plants. In this way only can the prices be kept down so that the retailer can show a profit for his efforts.

The Co-operative Advertisement that Boomed Mothers' Day in Toledo.

IN DETROIT.

[BY J. F. SULLIVAN.]

The Detroit Florists' Club has a publicity committee, which has in charge all the advertising and different forms of publicity carried on by the club as a whole. Last year this committee placed advertisements in all the local papers, calling the attention of the public to the propriety of using flowers extensively for Mothers' day. We had, in addition, a distinct understanding with all the papers that they would exploit the matter in the reading columns and enlist the attention of the ministers and encourage them to spread the gospel of Mothers' day before their flocks, all of which was well done.

The cost of that effort of the local florists was about $200 and the amount was raised by assessing each dealer the amount that, in the opinion of the committee, seemed equitable. A few florists protested against the amount assessed against them, and one or two refused to participate at all in the project, but when the business of the occasion was over, these same "kickers" came to the front with their contributions and have never since refused to participate in our coöperative efforts. I must not neglect to state that the contributors were not confined to retailers, but growers and wholesalers, too, joined in the movement and contributed in the proper spirit. As we used all the local papers, our copy in each case was modest in size.

General Publicity Best.

Last year we made what can now be called a mistake, by trying in our advertisements to educate the public in the matter of the proper colors to use, following the generally accepted idea of white flowers for the dead and bright flowers for the living. We found this attempt led to a confusion on the part of the public, and it was correspondingly detrimental to the florists. This year we avoided this mistake and advised all kinds of flowers and plants, and the results show we are on the right track. We do not use the name of any florist in this publicity work and disguise as best we can the commercial hand, appealing on broad general lines, as in the advertisement reproduced herewith, for the celebration of the day most fittingly with the use of flowers.

The cost is reduced to the minimum by having the bills charged by the papers to the florist who has the lowest rate for his individual advertising. We find it hard to get special rates on this coöperative advertising, but we are able to get notices in the reading columns to a considerable extent, exploiting the day we advertise, and even have had cartoons depicting the event of Mothers' day.

This year Mothers' day trade was immense, cleaning up the market completely, and it is safe to say no one here any longer questions the value of coöperative advertising for such days.

Encouraged by our first effort with coöperative advertising last year, we repeated it for Memorial day. We eliminated all reference to the soldier's grave, but were strong in reminding all living of their duty to the deceased in remembering them with floral decorations, not alone in the cemetery, but in the home and in public places; and awakening in their hearts the memory of those departed and a desire to give expression to their memory by the use of flowers.

Memorial day trade last year was also fine and gave such activity in all branches of the trade that this year it was feared that enough flowers would not be available to supply the extra demand that would follow similar efforts.

Supplants Individual Efforts.

We also employed the coöperative plan last November for Thanksgiving and again for St. Valentine's day last February, and all were delighted with the results. It should be borne in mind by those who contemplate this method of stimulating trade that individual expense for the same purpose may safely be eliminated. The newspapers are beginning to realize this to their sorrow, but some of them frankly admit the results obtained by the coöperative plan largely justify the elimination, to a considerable extent at least, of individual advertising for occasions of general interest to the trade.

I cannot at this date see any improvement over our present methods for exploiting Mothers' day next year, but might incidentally mention my fear of some of the work being fruitless if the growers and wholesalers persist in raising the prices of some items on the list, notably carnations, to a prohibitive figure. We cannot afford to allow the public to see florists dragging a day full of such beautiful sentiment into the keenest realm of commercialism.

Another Day for Flowers.

Another holiday for which the same plan could be used to develop special trade is Children's day, the second Sunday in June, a time when flowers are plentiful and the trade easily handled. A minister a few days ago told me he thought it strange that florists did not inject the use of flowers into such a day, the celebration of which would be made thereby so much more complete.

TOPEKA TRIES IT.

Having noted the success with which florists in other sections have used cooperative advertising, a quartette of florists at Topeka, Kan., joined in the use of a half page advertisement in two colors in the Topeka Daily Capital for May 28. Most of the space was occupied by display advertisements for the four florists, but a large display heading and illustration emphasized the desirability of procuring one's Memorial day flowers from a florist who is prepared to serve the public every day in the year. Those who joined in the advertising were James Hayes, The Rosery, Mrs. Lord, and Hollcraft. Excellent results are reported.

Grand Rapids, Wis.—Paul Beasa says that in two years he has doubled his business. He has now three houses, each 22x100, and grows a general line of stock.

The Detroit Florists' Club Disguised the Commercial Hand and Boosted Flowers of All Kinds.

A SHOWY BORDER PLANT.

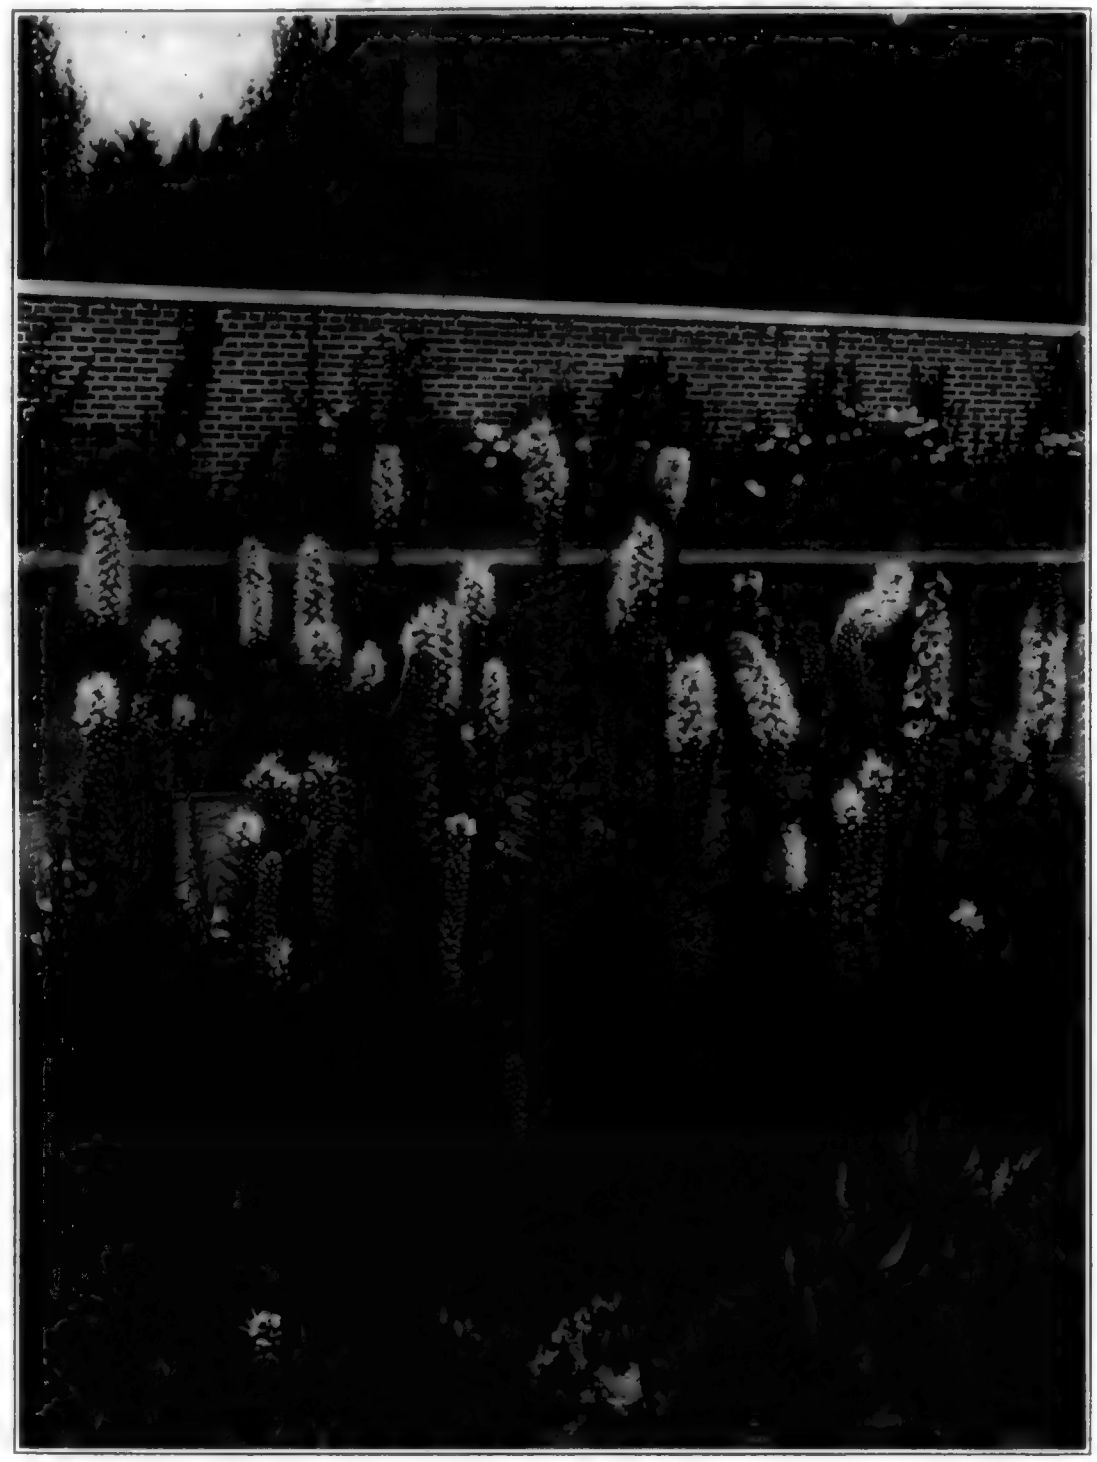
The use of Liatris spicata as a border plant is well illustrated in the foreground of the photograph here reproduced. The genus to which the plant belongs is not restricted to its one strictly proper name, liatris, but is variously known also as the blazing star, gay feather or button snakeroot. The fifteen or more species are all more or less effective as border plants. They are hardy perennials, natives of North America, and were originally confined chiefly to the Atlantic and Gulf states, from Massachusetts to Louisiana. They grow and bloom in comparatively poor soil and require no special care, but they thrive best in garden ground that is well enriched and not too heavy. They are easily propagated by divisions, in spring, or from seeds, sown in the fall. Their flowers are mostly rose-red or purple and are produced in late summer or autumn. The species illustrated, L. spicata, is one of the handsomest. Its deep purple flowers form a dense spike from six to twelve inches long, on a thickly leaved stem, which varies in height from two to five feet.

WELLS FARGO ON B. & O.

Announcement is made that Wells Fargo & Co. will July 1 assume the express business of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad system. Acquisition of these contracts will take the express company into three cities not hitherto served directly by it—Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington. The company supersedes the United States express on the Baltimore & Ohio and its affiliated lines. Wells Fargo & Co. will assume also the express contracts on the Chicago & Eastern Illinois and the St. Louis & San Francisco.

AMERICAN GETS U. S. CONTRACT.

The American express has taken over the United States express contract on the Philadelphia & Reading railway system on a basis of forty-five per cent of total operating receipts. The contract goes into effect July 1, and will run for a period of one year and six months. Philadelphia & Reading mileage under the express contract is about 1,300 miles.



It is understood also that the express contract on the Central Railroad of New Jersey will go to the American express. The operating percentage is expected to be forty-five per cent of total receipts, and the duration of the contract will be eighteen months.

AS OTHERS SEE US.

"Our flower trade gets a boom on at Easter and Christmas, but our U. S. A. friends manage to enliven the business at three other times yearly, with great advantage to themselves," says the Horticultural Advertiser, British. "In addition to our festivals, they have St. Valentine's day, Memorial day, and, during the last year or two, Mothers' day. On Memorial day the cemeteries throughout the country are lavishly decorated with flowers, giving a huge impetus to business.

"The latest addition, Mothers' day, was the outcome of one lady's efforts, backed by the florists who were smart enough to see a good thing in it. Now it is becoming the recognized thing on this day to wear a white flower in memory of a mother, or a colored one in her honor if living; and gifts of flowers are, of course, equally in order.

"We are not quite so easily moved by a wave of sentiment as our cousins over the water, but we still think that if our florists would pull together and get the aid of the press, they might do something to establish one or more of these 'days,' which would help to carry them over a dull season, and divert many a pound to their pockets which would otherwise be spent in ways which, for the most part, would, at any rate, do no more good to the spender."

A Border of Liatris Spicata.

DESTRUCTIVE LARVÆ IN SOIL.

I am sending you a bottle containing some insects which are causing me a great deal of trouble. There are thousands of them in our greenhouse and have been there for a long time, but until recently they have done no harm. They are beginning to work on our geraniums, entering the pots at the hole in the bottom and eating out the entire inside of the stalk, when it turns yellow and dies. They seem to work mostly in the bottom of the beds, going right through the wood and cutting little passages about the size of a lead pencil from the bottom of the benches, and the passages are swarming with bugs. If you can tell me what these are and how to get rid of them I shall be greatly indebted to you. F. A. K.

The larvæ forwarded in the bottle I am not acquainted with. As they are doing serious damage, some immediate remedy is necessary. Get some carbon bisulphide; this costs about 25 cents per pound can at retail. Make holes a foot apart each way with a pointed stick, the holes to be four or five inches deep. Into each hole pour half a teaspoonful of the carbon and immediately fill the holes. The gas from the carbon will destroy all soil pests. A smaller quantity, half a dozen drops, will suffice to kill the pests in each pot. Another good remedy is Vermine, used at the rate of one part to 300 parts of water, applied to pots and beds. Do not use any lights while applying the carbon, as it is explosive. Since your houses are so badly infested with these pests, I would suggest giving all the beds a sterilizing with steam when the plants are all cleared out. A dose of hydrocyanic acid gas would also get any pests which the sterilization failed to destroy. Perhaps if you send some of the larvæ to your state experimental station, you may also be able to get some helpful advice there. C. W.

RETAIL STORE MANAGEMENT

WHAT THE LEADERS IN THE TRADE ARE DOING

THE LAW ON STORE FIXTURES.

Tenant's Right to Remove Them.

The holding of the Minnesota Supreme Court in the case of White Enamel Refrigerator Co. vs. Kruse, 121 Minnesota Reports 479, that a florist's refrigerator, caused to be erected in a storeroom by a tenant, was a "trade fixture" removable by the tenant, and not such an improvement or permanent fixture of the building as to entitle the installing seller to enforce a mechanic's lien against the premises, raises interesting legal points concerning florists' fixtures.

This decision was based by the court largely upon the ground that it appeared that, although the refrigerator was a large one, weighing from 4,000 to 6,000 pounds, it was readily removable without injury to the building, and that it was impliedly understood between the owner of the building and the florist that it would be removable as a "trade fixture" on termination of the lease. On these points the court said:

An Implied Agreement.

"In the terms of the lease, * * * we find no indication that it was the intent of the parties that the property should be the property of the lessor. It was not specifically mentioned in the lease; but it was a proper installation for a flower store, bearing, we might say, the same relation thereto that the soda fountain bears to the soft-drink refreshment parlor. It must, therefore, be classed with the necessary fixtures, * * * all of which, under the terms of the lease, were clearly regarded by the parties as trade fixtures, as distinguished from the wall decorations, floor covering, balcony, etc., which the lessor undertook to furnish; it being, furthermore, expressly stipulated in the contract that 'said balcony at all times is to be considered as the property of the lessor,' thus indicating that the installations to be made by the lessee were not to be so considered. Moreover, is it reasonable to assume that the lessee intended to make the lessor a present of so expensive a structure at the end of the term, even though the same was for a long period, when the parties so carefully stipulated to whom the balcony was to belong?"

Summary of Legal Principles.

By numerous decisions of other appellate courts of the country, the following principles have become a part of the law of trade fixtures:

In determining whether articles installed in a building by a tenant are removable by him as trade fixtures, the intention of the parties and the question whether they have been physically annexed to the real estate are the principal factors, intention being controlling. The right of removal may, of course, be controlled by express agreement between the parties, without regard to whether the fixtures are physically attached to the building. But when the intent of the parties is not manifest, the tenant's right of removal must rest upon the question whether the fixtures are removable without substantial injury to the building. But it is generally held by the courts that when the right of removal exists, the tenant must exercise it during the term of the lease; that is, he cannot, after surrendering possession at the end of the term, reënter the premises to take away fixtures, though they might have been removed during the lease term.

Bouquet for the Maid of Honor.

HINTS FOR RETAILERS.

Most retailers arrange cut flowers in baskets with nothing but water in the tin liners, but if the tin is first packed full of some such material as dry wild smilax stems roughly broken up in the hand, it will be found a great aid in arranging the flowers and will insure their staying where they are put.

To sell baskets of flowers, it is necessary to show them made up. A retailer who was getting no business when he merely showed the materials, found that as soon as he showed the baskets filled with flowers they began to sell. His problem then became one of getting people into the store.

Those of the public who patronize florists usually are of the better class—they are likely to be people of more than average education. Such people are sure to note it if they are billed for a "boquet" of "lillies," and the inference drawn will not be to the credit of the florist even though it may be merely that the orthography of his clerks has escaped attention.

FOR THE MAID OF HONOR.

For the maid of honor who wears yellow on the occasion of the happy—for the other girl—ceremony, the bouquet shown in the illustration on this page is an excellent one. Sunburst roses are the flowers used, with some adiantum mixed in. The tie is of white satin ribbon and is veiled with yellow crepon. The effect is certainly a good one, and the bouquet makes a handsome armful for the maid of honor. This is the work of H. B. Dorner's class in floral arrangement at the University of Illinois and was shown at their exhibit at Urbana recently.

MEMORIAL DAY.

This is a big country, and many different things take place in it, but the same story of Memorial day is told all over that section of America where May 30 is an important flower day. And it is a story of disappointment! Never before has Memorial day so failed to come up to anticipations. Seldom does a holiday produce reports so unanimous. The trouble lay in the sudden arrival of midsummer. It was hot everywhere.

That Memorial day has become the largest flower consuming day of the year is apparent even amid the tales of disaster concerning last week's business. That Memorial day would have been a record breaker had weather conditions been normal is almost as universally reported as any other feature of the week's business. The high heat everywhere had two bad effects: In the first place it made the supply of stock far greater than had been anticipated; and in the second place it destroyed the quality. The large supply of florists' flowers destroyed values, while the abundance of garden flowers cut down the normal retail demand. Even at that there was tremendous business. If flowers had possessed keeping qualities there would have been no complaint because of the quantity of stock on sale; one way or another, it would have been marketed. The heat was responsible for the losses.

The New England retailers, whose policy of pushing magnolia wreaths trimmed with artificial flowers has been under discussion, make more cheerful reports than come from any other section. They did a big business with the artificial affairs and encountered no complaints, which, in their eyes, justifies the policy. But it is interesting to note that here and there one hears of department stores entering the field. Those florists who locally popularized the artificial Memorial day wreath may now find the business being taken away from them by those who can afford to handle it on an extremely narrow margin of profit.

WREATH OF SPRING FLOWERS.

In the funeral wreath shown in the accompanying illustration several varieties of spring flowers were used, with exceedingly good effect. Sweet peas, daffodils and mignonette were the flowers used; adiantum fern and a bow of bronze and green ribbon were added to finish the piece. It was made for a recent funeral by the Livingston Seed Co., of Columbus, O.

EDUCATING THE PUBLIC.

Mr. Wittbold's Ideas.

In an article on "The Purposes of Organization," printed in the pamphlet published as the organ of the Retail Florists' Association of Chicago, Louis Wittbold, head of the George Wittbold Co., makes the following observations worthy of a wider reading, for they apply wherever the flower business has been developed to meet the needs of a large population:

"A topic brought up at a recent meeting of the association advising the craft to cut out the undertakers, etc., from their list of customers, has set me to thinking and I want to give a warning that we are treading on dangerous ground, provided we want to hold the florists together.

"To dictate just how a man must run his business would be an ideal state to accomplish, provided it could be equitably done and providing the person or persons who did the dictating would be strong enough to compensate him for the losses that would be sustained by complying with such a request. We must remember that our ideas, ideals, business principles and business methods to make an honest living may be entirely different, and generally are entirely different from those of our competitors, and still each, in his way of doing, is following his own conscience, and from his way of thinking is absolutely right. Consequently, we are obliged to view things from the other fellow's viewpoint, so that we can be fair with him and not put him in an embarrassing position, which would force him to a hasty decision either to forsake his business or forsake the association to which he belongs.

Shipping Artificial Wreaths from Penn's, Boston, May 29, for Memorial Day.

"You must remember if you wish to hold the organization together, we must first make a study of the conditions under which we exist, that is, the source from which we receive our revenue, the fields that we work in. Some of us may sell strictly to the home trade, some may sell to the undertakers, some may make a specialty of department store trade, some may be working other fields that have taken years to develop and with which they are thoroughly familiar, and for which they have specially fitted themselves. All these things must be thought of and it would not be wise or right under the present conglomeration of interests to make plans that would cripple or curtail a man's business. If we wish to hold this organization together we must create a spirit in the organization that we can all feel that we need not fear for our business life.

"Everything that is attempted should be along educative lines and in a suggestive way, as our interests are so varied that it is almost impossible to benefit one without hurting another. That which would be most beneficial to one would be antagonistic to another, so, until we can meet on a more equal plane, which can be brought about by years of intelligent educational effort, methods of dictation should be shunned and only the most friendly methods should be pursued.

"To a certain extent the florist business is a merchandising proposition, and some of the staples which rightfully belong to a florist's stock are now offered in season by the general as well as the 5 and 10 cent stores of the country, and nothing that a florist or florists' organization can do will prevent these large interests from offering certain items of a florist's goods to the public. There is not a grower in the country who is not willing to sell his surplus stock to these stores, and if they refused to sell them they have backing enough to grow their own stock and become entirely independent. Furthermore, I honestly believe that learn to live up to what should be expected of us.

"We must conduct our organization along such lines that the most advanced in our line can meet on common ground with those who are further down on the ladder, and each, at the same time, can be benefited, if by nothing else, by a broadminded spirit and good will towards all."

THE BALTIMORE FLOWER MART.

In a recent issue of The Review your Baltimore correspondent stated in a news item that the undersigned had the missionary work these large general stores are doing, by interesting the lower strata of humanity in plants and flowers, is beneficial rather than detrimental to the florist trade, as the buying of plants and flowers for the home is nothing more than a habit which must find a beginning. As these general stores offer these goods as specials at low prices, plants, etc., are brought into homes into which it would be impossible for a florist to sell. But, as the poor man today may possess more wealth tomorrow, the florist is looked to as soon as the pocketbook becomes fat enough to pay for a more reliable source of supply.

"An illustration of this can probably be drawn as follows: Marshall Field & Co. are conceded by all to be a very reliable and trustworthy department store, handling a great variety of goods representing many different lines of business; still if any of us were desirous of buying something distinctive and the very best in its line we would not go to Field's, but to a specialist, who made a business of that particular line only.

"Judging from the foregoing, there is only one course for the florist to pursue and that is to make himself a specialist, one who can put into his business a personality which no competitor can equal and thereby give the public a service that can not be offered by any one else, either in or out of the florist trade.

"It is for this that we should organize—to put more personality into the florist business, to teach the public the superiority of our profession to the mere merchandising of goods, and to won a golden cup for the best display at the Flower Mart. This is an error; the cup was awarded for the most artistic booth, not display, and it was a silver cup and must be won a second time in order to pass into the possession of the winner.

As these flower marts no doubt will be held in different cities in the future, Philadelphia having had one this year, I feel, in justification of myself and for the benefit of my friends in the trade, that I should give a description of my booth at the recent event in this city. It is only by an interchange of ideas that we can help the trade at large. The ladies of Baltimore connected with the Women's Civic League are doing a great work in endeavoring to interest the public in the backyard movement and window box decorations, and the trade should give them every assistance.

My booth was a rustic pergola, made of birchwood, which I had got from New York state. The beautiful white, silvery bark enhanced its decorative value. The tables on which the plants were displayed were covered with birch-bark. The pergola was covered with green, prepared, natural beech leaves; natural grapevine trunks formed the seeming branches. Pink muslin, full-blown roses were attached to the foliage. They were so perfect that the public mistook them for natural ones. Hanging baskets of green and brown pottery were suspended from the roof, while the entrance was banked with pyramid boxwood and pink hydrangeas, and on the sides a display of window boxes made a pleasing whole.

ST. LOUIS RETAIL STORE.

The accompanying illustrations give two views of one of the leading retail stores in St. Louis, the Kalisch Bros. Floral Co., at 4506 to 4508 Delmar boulevard. One shows the interior of the store, and the other gives an outside view of the store and the conservatory adjoining. The big window and the neat display house are two features that this company make much of. A few members of the store force appear in the two pictures.

NAME OF TULIP.

I am sending you under separate cover a double yellow tulip, of which I would like the correct name. Also, can you tell me what causes my Gesneriana tulips to have white spots on the flowers and foliage? The bed has not been dug for three or four years, but is kept cultivated, etc. Is it a disease of the bulb? I enclose a flower of the scarlet variety. C. H. K.

The tulip, owing to the intense heat prevailing when it arrived, was pretty well shriveled up, but seems to be the double yellow Tournesol.

Regarding Gesneriana, this is one of the finest of the May flowering tulips, but it is not good policy to leave this or any other late tulip more than three years without replanting in well prepared ground. Some of the Darwins will do well for a good number of years without replanting, but all varieties do better if replanted once in three years. Gesneriana is liable to become diseased if left over two years in one place, and I prefer to replant it every year. If you have not yet tried Tea Rose, also called Brimstone Beauty, I would recommend you to do so. This is a sport from Murillo, saffron yellow in color and popular in the markets. C. W.

A NEBRASKA ESTABLISHMENT.

In July, 1913, the Bending Floral Co. tore down its houses at Hardy, Neb., and moved to Superior, Neb., where two houses, shown in one of the accompanying illustrations, were built. These include 5,000 feet of glass and are eight feet to the gutter and sixteen feet to the ridge. A view of the house devoted to carnations is also given herewith.

INSECTICIDE MEN'S TROUBLES.

The troubles of the insecticide makers continue—every few weeks the U. S. Department of Agriculture sends out a list of cases that have resulted in fines against well known, reputable concerns because the government chemist did not find in the package the exact ingredients the label said were there. For instance, a bulletin released June 2 reports a fine of $50 against a maker of a nicotine extract because the chemist found 1.53 per cent less nicotine than the label said was in the can. Many of the reports of fines for violations of the insecticide law as given out by the Department of Agriculture do not state how far the sample on which the case was based fell short of the claims on the label, but most of the cases reported seem to show the good faith of the manufacturers while they prove the inexactness of their manufacturing methods. The cases run the whole line, from lime sulphur solution and nicotine extracts to fly poison.

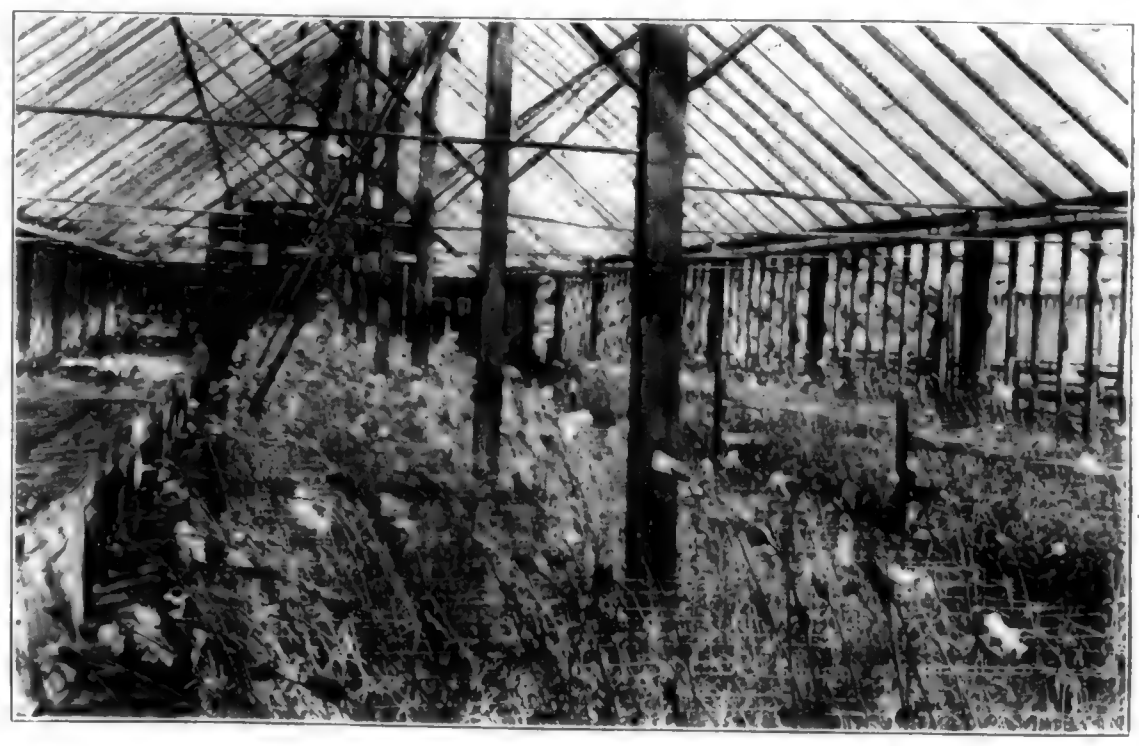
The government is doing good work in holding the insecticide manufacturers in line. It appears that even the houses of highest standing and best business reputation have difficulty in making every package, at some unknown date in the future, test up to the formula, and it is conceivable that if there were no check the care of the average manufacturer might be considerably less than it now is. The danger now appears to be that so many good firms are pilloried by the government that the public may come to the conclusion that the law and the nature of the business do not harmonize, with the result that slight attention will be paid to the government's reports.

RHODODENDRON FOLIAGE DYING.

I am sending a few leaves of rhododendrons which have been planted two years. Most of the leaves are like the ones I send. Can you tell me what causes the trouble and advise a remedy? A. M. S.

There are two causes for your rhododendron foliage turning brown in this way. First, the severity of last winter has crippled many plants and killed others down to the ground. It is not until the warm days of spring that this winter damage becomes apparent. Lack of moisture at the roots when the ground freezes causes injury and death to many evergreens. Keep the plants well watered and mulched.

The lace-winged fly also has been attacking your foliage. This is a serious pest and is particularly bad on rhododendrons and kalmias grown in full sunshine. You will find this insect on the lower side of the leaves. In your latitude (Ohio) they will start hatching just before flowering time. At that time spray them vigorously, and several times at intervals of a few days with Imperial soap spray, whale oil soap, Aphine, kerosene emulsion or some other good contact spray. Be sure to direct the spray so as to hit the lower side of the leaves or it will not prove effective. C. W.



SPIDER ON OUTDOOR PLANTS.

I have been troubled with a small, gray spider, similar in size to the ordinary red spider. It has been working outdoors; the grass and all the plants in one locality are suffering from this pest, especially the sweet peas. I shall appreciate any advice you may have to offer that will enable me to get rid of it. G. C. S.

I am not acquainted with the spider referred to. If it is as hard to combat as the red spider, its extermination will be no simple matter. I should imagine, however, that it is probably some pest more easy of control than the latter, which rarely appears outdoors until the hot summer weather. A force of water well directed through a spray nozzle is a good antidote, while spraying with kerosene emulsion, whale oil soap, Aphine, fir tree oil, Imperial Soap Spray or other insecticides should assist in controlling the pest. C. W.

Carbondale, Ill.—Memorial day sales this year were the largest Everette W. Plater ever had. Peonies and sweet peas were the best sellers.

Clyde, O.—A rain on the night of May 29 gave a relief, Memorial day, from the almost unbearable heat of the fore part of the week and made the sales for the day larger. At Hall's Greenhouse anything in the shape of a flower went at the last minute. Carnations led in sales at $1 per dozen, and at least 500 more could have been sold. If the 3-inch and 3½-inch geraniums had been two days older, many more could have been sold. Reservoir vases for cemetery use proved more popular than previously. Funeral work early in the week was a blessing, as it was impossible to hold flowers outside of cold storage.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Bay Trees.

Bay trees will all have been placed outdoors some time ago. This note therefore merely is a reminder that plants which have been recently tubbed will need careful watering for some time, but can be freely syringed twice a day. Plants which have a veritable network of roots in the tubs will need a good deal of feeding and cow manure water has no superior for this purpose. Unless the bay is standing in a prominent place, where the manure would be objectionable, an excellent plan is to place a solid ring of cow manure around the outer edge of the tub to keep the water in, with a thinner layer on the surface of the soil in the tub. It will be found that a mulch of this kind, and plenty of water, will, in a season, transform half starved plants into quite luxuriant ones. Any badly starved plants can be much improved by knocking them out of the tubs, loosening the balls somewhat, and planting them outdoors in good soil where they can be sprayed and watered occasionally. Such plants can be retubbed in the fall and by that time will be in much better condition.

Hardy Roses.

As the growing and flowering season for hardy roses advances, pests must be fought persistently. Rose slugs are best destroyed by sprayings of hellebore. It is a mistake to use arsenate of lead, as this disfigures the foliage. For thrips and spider there is nothing better than a good pressure of water from the hose each evening, and this also will help to keep green aphis in check. To clean out the latter use whale oil soap, kerosene emulsion, Ivory soap, Aphine, or any of the nicotine sprays.

Last winter proved unusually destructive to hardy roses, the hybrid teas, and such hybrid perpetuals as Frau Karl Druschki, Clio, Baroness Rothschild, Prince Camille de Rohan, and others dying back badly. The supposedly ironclad ramblers also were cut to the ground in many cases, showing that it is a good policy, where winter temperatures go much below zero, to lay this class of roses down before the ground freezes up solid.

The hybrid teas and hybrid perpetuals should be disbudded before the buds become large. Beds of hybrid teas, which, as a rule, succeeded better on light rather than heavy soil, will make a stronger growth if given a mulch of cow manure and an occasional soaking with a sprinkler.

Asters.

The present is a suitable time to make a good sowing of asters for a late crop. Such varieties as Victoria, Vick's Branching and American Branching all are good. Of course there are some varieties, like Queen of the Market, Mignon and some others, which can be sown until June 20 and which will flower before frost.

Keep the earliest asters well cultivated. If the soil is good they will stand quite a severe drought without injury. Take advantage of cool, moist spells of weather to set out succession batches of plants and be sure they have nice, moist balls of earth. This applies, of course, to all plants, both flowers and vegetables, particularly at this season of the year.

Primulas.

Now, when Memorial day and the rush of the bedding-out trade are over, it is possible to give a little extra time to primulas. They are growing quite rapidly and need an occasional spacing apart. See, also, that they do not become potbound before being shifted along. Primulas all like a light soil, one which contains fifty per cent flaky leaf-mold being excellent for them in the early stages of growth, giving a little heavier compost for the flowering pots. To keep the plants stocky there can be no better place than a coldframe in which to grow them through the summer. Partially plunge the pots in fine coal ashes. Tilt the sashes back and front, leaving them open all the time. Do not shade the glass; this will make the growth lanky, but use lath shadings to exclude the sun.

If you have not time to pot on your plants, try the plan of planting them out in frames containing a mixture of loam, leaf-mold and sand with some well decayed and screened manure added. A sash 3x6 feet should not hold over twenty-four plants. Keep the sashes and shading as suggested for those in pots. These plants will make a splendid growth and can be lifted and potted early in September. The growth will far exceed that made by plants in pots and, with careful lifting, potting and shading, few plants will be lost.

Cinerarias.

While there is ample time in which to sow cineraria seed for flowering next spring, it is time to make a sowing for early blooming. Some of these plants will flower for Christmas and others through January and early February. Sow the seeds in pans of leaf-mold and fine sand. To prevent pans drying out, it is a good plan to plunge the pans inside some of larger size. Cover the seed lightly. Cover with glass and shade with paper. Cinerarias dislike heat and, if perchance we get an extremely hot wave, germination will not be so good as later in the season. Keep the pans in a house where the shade is good and the temperature as low as possible. Expose the little seedlings to light as soon as they germinate, but do not let it be direct sunlight.

SUMMER TREATMENT OF FERNS.

Will you please tell us what is the best treatment for a general stock of ferns and for plumosus and Sprengeri during the summer? Will they make a better growth and have a better, fresher and greener appearance in the early fall if taken out of the greenhouse, placed under the shade of our large maple trees in the yard and hosed over every day, or is the greenhouse better for them all through the summer? If so, should the house have a coat of whitening to exclude the bright sunshine, and when should the shade be applied? The ferns are Nephrolepis elegantissima, Boston, Roosevelt, etc. We are located in Delaware.

L. M. S. & C.

While the ferns and asparagus would grow nicely outdoors during the summer, and would retain their color when grown under the shade of trees, yet they would be more under control of the grower if kept in the greenhouse, and would be less exposed to the attacks of caterpillars and other pests. The greenhouse will require shading from May to September, in order to keep the temperature within bounds, and free ventilation should be given at all times, in accordance with the weather. W. H. T.

TO MAKE FERN FRONDS DARK.

What can be used in the soil to make ferns a dark green? C. L. H.

Use one-fifth well decayed and pulverized cow manure, adding a 6-inch pot of soot to every bushel of compost. In watering, use weak cow manure and soot combined, which has been previously placed in a bag and strained into a tub or barrel of water. C. W.

SCALE ON ADIANTUM.

Can you tell me what to use for the scale on the fern of which leaves are enclosed, which is kept in a dwelling house? E. B. H. & C.

Spraying is the only sure way to clean the scale from your ferns, and this is so much of a task that it is rarely attempted, as it is less trouble to cut off and destroy affected fronds, and let the plants produce new ones. Aphine sprayed on the foliage will kill and loosen up a large part of the scales. C. W.

SWEET PEAS DROPPING BUDS.

I am writing to you for information regarding my sweet peas. The house, 30x100, is planted with Countess Spencer, Blanche Ferry, Florence Nightingale and White Spencer. The rows are four feet apart and run north and south. The trenches are about two feet wide and two or two and one-half feet deep and contain large quantities of well rotted cow manure. As the soil was new and not particularly good, I mixed in some old night soil, which was hauled into pits ten or twelve years ago and is thoroughly decomposed, being like fine loam. I have always had good success on other plants with it. The peas are thrifty; in fact, I never have seen any others grow as rapidly as these. They now are about six feet high. About two weeks ago they began to throw buds, but these never developed, as practically all turn yellow and fall off. Can you suggest anything to develop the buds instead of the plant? Would you suggest a shading on the house these bright days, or later, and, if so, what is the best color? As it is sometimes almost impossible to get good manure, would you recommend using pulverized sheep manure? If so, about how much should be used with good soil?

Planting four feet apart leaves considerable waste space on each side of the row, in which I have been growing lettuce. What would you advise planting instead of vegetables, either in flats or in the beds? I kept the temperature of the house about 42 to 45 degrees at night until the buds began dropping, when I changed it to about 50 degrees. I have given ventilation whenever possible, carrying a fire with ventilators open on dark, damp days.

P. E. M.

I am inclined to think that the use of night soil, which has given you such vigorous plants, may also be responsible for the plants dropping their buds. This bud dropping is common in winter, when we get long spells of dark weather, but is less common at this season. It will occur, however, even on outdoor plants. I have had such experiences and have been somewhat discouraged about the outcome, but the bud dropping never lasted long; neither, I think, will yours. As soon as your plants have used up the rather excessive amount of nitrogen in the soil the dropping should cease.

I would keep the temperature at 50 to 55 degrees at night. At this season it is not easy to keep it as low as this, but leave plenty of air on. A light shade of kerosene and white lead will keep the house cooler in the daytime and make the flowers hold their color better. Let it be quite light, however. Apply either with a brush or syringe. If your plants a little later show signs of partial exhaustion, top-dress with sheep manure and lightly fork or rake it in before watering. As you cannot get good barnyard manure, I would use pulverized sheep manure. For a house 30x100, broadcast two and one-half to three tons and work it well down in the soil when preparing the ground. I would prefer cow manure, however, if you could obtain it at a reasonable rate. Spade the ground all over and go down a couple of feet.

For a winter crop you could run violets for a time between the peas, pulling them out when the peas shaded them too much. By running your rows five feet apart you would get better results and you could, if you wished, plant some ten weeks' stocks, gladioli, double feverfew or candytuft for a Memorial day crop. Either tomatoes or cucumbers would be the best crop to follow the peas. C. W.

AMERICAN SWEET PEA SOCIETY.

Schedule of Annual Show.

The American Sweet Pea Society has issued the preliminary schedule of its annual exhibition, to be held in the Museum of Natural History, New York, June 27 and 28. We hope to publish the final schedule about June 20. This will be sent out with entry blank. If additional copies are wished for friends, kindly let me know.

We have just received, from Cornell University, bulletin No. 342, upon sweet peas. This is the most ambitious monograph, to my knowledge, upon the sweet pea, containing a list and description of nearly 700 varieties. This will be sent to all members in good standing. It contains about 150 pages and comprises much valuable information apart from the descriptions and history of the different sweet peas above mentioned.

LEAF BLIGHT ON PEONIES.

A customer of ours complains about a disease or germ destroying the leaves and blooms of his peonies. Yellow spots appear on the leaves and in a short time the whole plant dies down, having yielded little or no bloom. This is the first instance in our experience where a peony has been affected in any way, either by insects or disease. We are mailing you a few leaves that show the disease in an early stage. Can you explain the trouble and give a remedy?

C. F. C.

Peonies are usually pretty free from both diseases and insect foes, but there are occasional cases where leaves are affected similarly to yours. Probably some climatic condition peculiarly favorable to the spread of fungoid diseases is responsible for the condition of your plants. I would recommend spraying with Bordeaux mixture, Fungine, Sulphocide, or one of the other standard fungoid preparations. This would, of course, be of no avail the present season towards saving your crop, but it would be good policy to spray your plants two or three times during the present growing season. Next year start spraying as soon as growth commences and keep it up until the buds show color. Of course you may not have this trouble again, but prevention is better than cure.

THE CHICAGO PEONY SHOW.

Dates Advanced Three Days.

Because of the heat wave that has hastened the blooming season, the peony show at the Art Institute, Chicago, will be opened June 9 instead of June 12, continuing through the following day.

This is the annual exhibition of the American Peony Society, held this year at Chicago in conjunction with the Horticultural Society of Chicago and the Chicago Florists' Club. C. W. Johnson will act as manager and all exhibits should be addressed to him in care of the Art Institute, Chicago, to arrive during the morning of June 9.

The premium list was issued late. It offers the A. P. S. gold medal for best collection of not less than 100 named varieties, one bloom of each, with liberal second and third prizes.

Silver gilt, silver and bronze medals also are offered for general displays. The other open classes, in which the usual cash prizes are offered, are:

3—Largest display of blooms of any one variety.
4—Vase of 100 blooms arranged for effect. Usual accessories permitted.
5—Collection of 50 double, in 20 named varieties.
6—Collection of 25 named varieties, double, one bloom of each.
7—Collection of single peonies, with one whorl of petals.
8—Fifty blooms, white, double, one variety.
9—Fifty blooms, light pink, or pink and cream, double, one variety.
10—Fifty blooms, dark pink, double, one variety.
11—Fifty blooms, red or crimson, with stamens, double, one variety.
12—Fifty blooms, red or crimson, without stamens, double, one variety.
13—Fifty blooms, one variety, any combination of two or more shades, double.
14—Collection of 12 distinct named varieties, double, one bloom of each.
15—Collection of 12 named varieties, single, one bloom of each.
16—Twelve blooms, white, double, one variety.
17—Twelve blooms, light pink, or pink and cream, double, one variety.
18—Twelve blooms, dark pink, double, one variety.
19—Twelve blooms, red or crimson, with stamens, double, one variety.
20—Twelve blooms, red or crimson, without stamens, double, one variety.
21—Twelve blooms, one variety, any combination of two or more shades, double.

There also are classes open only to amateurs and private gardeners.

BUFFALO, N. Y.

The Market.

Business improved wonderfully in the two weeks previous to Memorial day and the trade for that particular day was good, indeed. Besides the regular cemetery work, there was a big trade in cut flowers. Peonies in pink and white were plentiful and in splendid condition and there was a good demand for them. Lilacs are over and, fortunately, there was little call for them. Darwin tulips, in all colors, made up the bulk of the Memorial day flowers and they brought a good price. There was not so much call for the regular assortment of cemetery bouquets this year as in former seasons.

Killarney and White Killarney roses are good. Kaiserin is coming into the market in sizable quantities now and this favorite summer rose always finds a welcome here. Mrs. Taft is rather small at present, and too pale in color. Mrs. Charles Russell bids fair to be a good summer rose, because of its lasting qualities, and it does not open fully. Snapdragons are about at an end and the few which are arriving are rather poor. Outdoor valley is excellent, and large quantities were used for Memorial day. Unfortunately, its season is short here, or it might be of commercial value to the trade. Despite the warm weather, carnations are arriving in splendid condition, although they show the effects of the warmth in a few hours. Magnolia and galax wreaths, plain and decorated, sold well; so did pots of geraniums, forget-me-nots and assorted plants.

Various Notes.

L. H. Neubeck did a big business in cemetery vases and urns, notwithstanding the fact that his charge for filling them has gone up some this year. Nearly all the other florists have also raised their price for filling urns.

The display at Palmer's branch store was most attractive. It consisted of blue Canterbury bells in pots and handsome jars of white peonies. In the foreground were vases of lavender and white peas and cattleyas.

Katherine Rolker has opened a store at 60 Elmwood avenue. It will be known as the Rolker Flower Shop. She is well known and popular and the trade wishes her success in her new venture.

Wm. F. Kasting is running a brand-new auto.

The Waite-Swarzenback wedding, at Springville, N. Y., May 27, was an elaborate affair. Large quantities of Killarney roses and pink and white snapdragons were used, besides quantities of smilax, asparagus and Darwin tulips. S. A. Anderson did the decorating.

Cut flowers and plants have become a prominent feature in the display windows of general stores, banks and other buildings. A few years ago these places did not use flowers, but, fortunately for the florist, nearly all business houses have learned to appreciate flower displays in connection with the display of their wares. E. C. A.

The alarm clock went off at four o'clock in the morning.

"I fooled you that toime," said Mike with a grin, "for I wasn't aslape at all."

The florist fools himself who thinks there is any way of selling goods in the trade more effective than advertising in The Review. Also, it's the most inexpensive way in proportion to results.

"We are completely sold out and have had to send money back. The Review is, without doubt, the best advertising medium in the trade."—J. C. Rennison Co., Sioux City, Ia.

Review readers are not asleep. Note this:

"Please tell us confidentially what you think of —— ——. Why doesn't he advertise in The Review if he is O. K.?"—Miller Floral Co., Farmington, Utah.

The alarm clock rings in The Review office at 4 o'clock (p.m., not a.m.) every Tuesday. It is to let everybody know advertising forms close for that week's issue in just sixty minutes.

OBITUARY

Clarence M. Stark.

Clarence M. Stark passed to his reward on Saturday, May 30, at his home in Louisiana, Mo. Born in 1855, Mr. Stark spent practically his entire life in orchard and nursery work, and for many years prior to 1903, when he retired from active business, he was the president of Stark Bros. Nurseries & Orchards Co., of Louisiana, Mo., which business owes the greater part of its success and enlargement to his sagacious management. It was he who named and gave to the world the Delicious apple, and the introduction of many other valuable varieties is due to his untiring efforts. In his demise horticulture has lost a willing worker, the world an able pomologist, and the Stark family a tender, loving father and brother.

When Mr. Stark retired in 1903 Edgar W. Stark succeeded him as president of the company. There will be no change in the management of the company.

E. Alvin Miller.

E. Alvin Miller, of Newark, N. Y., who died in St. Mary's hospital at Rochester, N. Y., Friday morning, May 22, was for several years a nurseryman at Rochester, and for twenty-eight years with the Jackson & Perkins Co., of Newark, N. Y., as a practical propagator and officer of the company.

Mr. Miller was born in Saxony, Germany, November 26, 1856. There he received his education and learned the nursery business. He came to America in June, 1876, locating in Rochester and entering the employ of Ellwanger & Barry. In 1884 Jackson & Perkins engaged him as their superintendent. Mr. Miller became a partner in the business, and when the Jackson & Perkins Co. was incorporated became vice-president of the company, holding that office until his retirement on account of ill health, two years ago.

Among his many horticultural achievements, the greatest, perhaps, was his origination of the Dorothy Perkins climbing rose, named after the daughter of George C. Perkins, son of C. H. Perkins, president of the company.

After retiring from the nursery business, Mr. Miller bought a farm west of Newark. His health continued to decline and some weeks ago he was taken to Alden to try the baths. He grew worse, and was brought to St. Mary's hospital, where he died. The funeral was held Monday, May 25, at 208 Sanford street, Rochester, with interment in Mt. Hope cemetery. He was a member of the Odd Fellows and Foresters, Newark Grange, the Western New York Fruit Growers' Association and the Western New York Horticultural Society. He attended the Newark Presbyterian church, of which his widow is a member.

Mr. Miller leaves a wife, one son, Henry, and three sisters, who live at the old home in Saxony.

Upper Sandusky, O.—Constien Bros. have given the contract to the John C. Moninger Co., Chicago, for the addition of about 2,500 feet of glass this year. They plan on larger additions to the range next year.

...NEWS NOTES...

Covington, O.—J. M. Petersime has had a good season in vegetable and bedding plants, having closed out all his stock.

Wyomissing, Pa.—The large fields of outdoor flowers now in bloom at Bertrand H. Farr's place attract large numbers of visitors Sundays and holidays.

Forth Worth, Tex.—J. E. McAdam, 815 Main street, is adding a house, 27x200 feet. Mr. McAdam has been much in need of additional space for some time.

Norwalk, O.—Arthur Doebel says his advertisement in The Review has almost cleaned him out of stock and he intends growing more, largely for the trade. His specialty just now is rooted cuttings. He has plans for an additional house.

Deer Park, Ala.—L. H. Read was appointed postmaster of Deer Park, May 26. The drought of six weeks, which has done an immense amount of damage in this vicinity, was broken May 27. Maximum daisies and gladioli, which are grown here extensively, will be late on account of the dry weather.

Woburn, Mass.—A loss estimated at $12,000 was suffered by Everett E. Cummings when fire destroyed his three greenhouses and a barn and damaged his house shortly after midnight on the morning of May 26. Mr. Cummings said he was certain the fire was incendiary, as it could have started no other way.

Storm Lake, Ia.—J. L. Munson, proprietor of the Storm Lake Floral Co., has been surprised at the way cut flowers and bedding plants have been moving lately. Mr. Munson now has 5,000 feet of glass and plans to double the size of his range next year, in order to take care of the rapidly increasing business.

Austin, Tex.—H. B. Beck, president of the Austin Florists' Club, says the heavy rains this spring have made natural vegetation so luxuriant that the florist finds little call for his stock, "but," says he, "the spring will pass, and the florist come back as a public necessity with his line of dependable staples."

Columbia City, Ind.—Miss Ruth Stanton and Fred A. King, of the new firm of Stanton & King, were married May 20. The bride is the daughter of E. A. Stanton, Mr. King's partner. Mr. King was superintendent of the grounds of the Winona Lake Assembly, at Winona Lake, Ind., until he and Mr. Stanton recently purchased the North Side Greenhouses here from Benjamin Lipman.

Garrettsville, O.—S. C. Templin, in speaking about advertising, recently said: "In successful advertising there are three factors, proper medium, popular goods and honest dealings." In the case of the new pelargonium, Easter Greeting, which he has popularized this season, he has used but one medium in advertising, The Review, so it is easy to place the credit for the orders. He hints that, for the amount spent in advertising, the returns would show up favorably with anything yet reported in The Review.

IN the words of the New York World, the MacNiff Horticultural Co. probably offers some MacNifficent opportunities at its auction sales.

FLORISTS are somewhat concerned about the new fashions, reports the St. Paul News, because some of the new blouses do not contain enough material to pin a rose on.

Attention, Vegetable Growers!

My neighbor, who is noted for his fine, large stock, says he always praises his cabbages to all who come into the garden. For, says he, it gives them the big head. J. C. G.

Look Out the Ventilators!

A high wind was blowing, and in his excitement to get the ventilators lowered, this is the way the foreman got it off:

"Zoo many windt! Zoo many windt! Peter Peterson, you look out the ventilators." A. E.

What If She Gave Him Hop Seed?

A Brooklyn lady recently said to her maid:

"I don't know what's come over my husband. Instead of starting off for the office cursing and swearing as usual, he went out just now happy and twittering and whistling like a bird."

"It's my fault, madam," said the maid contritely. "I got the wrong package and gave him canary seed for breakfast food."—Southern Merchant.

Supply and Demand.

FAIR DANDELION.

Golden emblem of redundance,
Were you
But few,
Rather than of great abundance,
The fair
Their hair
Would deck with you in selfish mood;
And then
With pen
Would poets rave and lovers brood
O'er you,
So few. —Illinois Advance.

Then florists in their stores would show
A few
Of you,
And in their houses thousands grow
To sell
As well.

...NEWS NOTES...

Winsted, Conn.—Joseph Durand has opened a store in the Geraty block, on Main street.

Milwaukee, Wis.—Arthur A. Schumann, clerk in Judge C. M. Fritz's court, resigned June 1 and will start a store at 714 Center avenue.

Elkhart, Ind.—William and Ella Currier have filed suit against E. A. Skinner and F. R. Flynn for $2,000 damages for allegations which the defendants made in a recent suit. These the plaintiffs declare were untrue and harmful to their characters and business.

St. Thomas, Ont.—The Horticultural Society of St. Thomas, headed by President Frank E. Bennett, paid a visit to Rochester May 24 to see the lilacs in Highland park and other things of horticultural interest. The members of the society were the guests of the Rochester park board.

Valencia, Pa.—G. L. Curry & Sons are working from daylight to dark trying to get out the orders on hand for bedding stock and, from present estimates, will not have enough plants to meet the demand. They are going to add to their range this summer and will have, when the additions are completed, triple the present amount of glass.

Marion, Ind.—Last year F. M. Meadows and wife, Katherine Meadows, began business here under the title The Meadows, market gardeners and florists, growing lettuce in the winter and bedding plants for spring sales. Demand having developed beyond their expectations, they now are establishing a general florists' business, handling cut flowers, designs, etc.

Astoria, L. I.—H. Pritchard and wife celebrated their seventieth birthday anniversaries May 24 by giving a garden party. There were a great many guests and the gifts were numerous, including a bouquet of seventy American Beauties and another of seventy Victory carnations. Mr. and Mrs. Pritchard will celebrate their golden wedding next St. Valentine's day.

Cleveland, O.—The residence and garage erected for J. C. Pettee, secretary of the J. M. Gasser Co., fronting on the lake, at West One Hundred and Seventeenth street and Lake avenue, has just been completed. Surrounding the large, elaborately-planned house are spacious grounds carefully laid out. A Japanese garden, terraces and a rose garden, 65x120 feet, are features of the grounds, and at one end will be a vegetable garden and orchard, 120x300 feet.

Princeton, Ill.—George H. Jennings, foreman of the Trimble Greenhouse Co., reports that all the glass on the large rose range has been replaced and the crop for Memorial day broke all records since the company began business, notwithstanding the recent hail storm. Although the weather was extremely hot, business was exceptionally good all the week. By June 6 the glaziers will have the carnation ranges fully restored to their former appearance and will return to Chicago. The foreman and his force are busy planting carnations and young rose plants in the benches, so as to be ready for an early crop.

Incorporated by Act of Congress, March 4, 1901.
Officers for 1914: President, Theodore Wirth, Minneapolis; vice-president, Patrick Welch, Boston; secretary, John Young, 53 W. 28th St., New York City; treasurer, W. F. Kasting, Buffalo.
Thirtieth annual convention, Boston, Mass., August 18 to 21, 1914.

Results bring advertising.
The Review brings results.

AN imitation honeysuckle has extremely little interest for a wise bee.

It is not at all necessary to compete on price—there are plenty of people, in the trade and among the public, who are willing to pay for quality.

NOT a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper.

A VASE of America gladiolus of excellent quality adorned the desk of the editor from May 28 to June 1. The dozen spikes were shipped from San Francisco, Cal., May 23, by Hogan, Kooyman & Co., and arrived in fair condition after being four and one-half days on the road.

PROFIT is not all there is in business—the pleasure one gets out of business really counts for more. But pleasure and profit usually go together. Few men can get money out of a business that is irksome to them, and a business that a man enjoys ordinarily will pay him a profit. It is so with most florists.

THERE are numerous reports that, since the hot weather came, Mrs. George Shawyer has been the best pink rose in market. When C. H. Totty undertook the dissemination of this variety in America he said he expected it eventually to displace Killarney. Practically every grower who has tried it is increasing his planting this year and clear across the country, from California, comes the statement of a big grower that Shawyer is a winner.

SKIP THIS.

If not interested in the returns advertisers get from full page ads in The Review.

Replying to your notice that you have completed our order for printing our full-page ad, please run this ad once more. We have sold immense quantities of stock but still have enough for one more insertion.—C. H. Frey, Lincoln, Neb., May 30, 1914.

THE most wasteful thing some florists do is to order on any handy scraps of paper. A busy wholesaler is likely to pass up the order that does not show on its face that the new customer is in the trade.

JUNE is a month during which every florist should bestir himself in the matter of collections. During the vacation months of July and August so many families are away that collections are bound to be poor.

ADVERTISERS, ATTENTION!

Practically every week The Review receives a number of advertising orders just after the paper has gone to press. The difficulty seems to be not so much inability to remember that orders must be in at 5 p. m. Tuesday as it is the result of a deplorable characteristic of mankind to put everything off till the last minute. If those who use the advertising columns of The Review would make it their rule to mail advertising instructions on Saturday, as most of them well could do, then their wishes would, in most cases, be known in the office on Monday, one day before forms close, instead of arriving, as many do, on Wednesday or Thursday, from one to two days late. Several telegrams are wasted each week by advertisers who have put off sending their orders until they know there is little chance of being in time.

Particular attention is called to the matter at this time because in the spring of the year orders to cancel plant ads usually end with the words, "All sold out." The Review does not want to carry any dead ads. Stop them when they have done their work.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

The most dismal forebodings with regard to Memorial day were fully realized. It seems to have been extremely unsatisfactory for everyone concerned. Growers are highly dissatisfied because the returns are among the worst imaginable, the retailers are dissatisfied because the stock was too poor to be handled with profit, and the wholesaler, who always stands between the devil and the deep sea, this time finds his position more uncomfortable than usual. The trouble all came through the extremely hot weather the first half of the week before Memorial day.

The report is fairly unanimous to the effect that the advance orders indicated a banner business. That orders fell off toward the end of the week, the usual heavy run of late telegraph orders failing to materialize, is believed to have been the result of earlier shipments showing the effects of the heat, and to out-of-town buyers realizing that the weather had made it practically impossible to do a satisfactory shipping business in cut flowers this Memorial day. A few houses report the total of the business as equal to that of last year, but most of them say there was a decided decrease. Sales are being further reduced this week by the necessity of making allowances to dissatisfied buyers.

The supply proved to be far heavier than anyone had expected; the heat rushed the crops. There was a glut of low grade stock. The principal trouble came with the carnations, as had been expected. The stock was so soft that it went to sleep in the boxes. Many thousands were thrown away by the wholesalers, being totally unfit for sale. Only the best flowers were shipped, but complaints are numerous. The average price, as the result of low quality and heavy waste, is the lowest obtained at Memorial day in many years.

The heat brought a flood of peonies. It was an impossibility to sell so many. This week there still are thousands of dozens in cold storage, left over from Memorial day. These flowers were picked and shipped to market in the high heat, and most of them, even the best, now scatter their petals when a bunch is shaken. With a heavy cut of fresh local peonies now on the market and likely to last for another week, there seems little possibility of realizing anything for most of the leftover stock in storage.

Beauties and roses also came in heavily for Memorial day, but they stood the heat better than did the carnations and peonies. There were large quantities of long Beauties that popped open and which were sold to the Greek fruit stores at next to nothing, and there were many thousands of wide open roses that found their principal outlet in much the same direction, but in general roses, while they sold cheaply, gave better satisfaction all around than did any other flowers on the market.

There is some variation in reports, but most of the wholesalers say they had a fair shipping business Thursday, May 28, while the following day was extremely dull for the biggest flower holiday in the year. The city trade seemed lighter than usual, but perhaps it was due to the buyer being loaded up at his own price at the first place visited. It was one of the deplorable facts that while business was best flowers were poorest and that the quality of the stock, favored by cool weather, began to improve rapidly as business fell off.

The market continues to be heavily loaded this week, everything being in full crop, with light demand. If the market was oversupplied last week, the overstock this week is just as heavy by comparison with the demand. There is more than the market needs, of everything. The temperature having been back to normal for several days, the quality of most of the stock is excellent, especially the home-grown peonies. A few shipments of cape jasmine arrived before Memorial day and sold excellently when the general condition of the market is considered, but shipments received this week have not realized express charges. Sweet peas are approaching the end of the season, the Maywood growers being about the only ones who still are picking. The peas fared badly in the fortnight before Memorial day, but are doing better now, probably as well as anything else on the market. The call for wedding flowers is cleaning up good quantities of valley and cattleyas also are selling well, though at only moderate prices.

Retailers' Association.

Monday evening, June 1, the monthly meeting of the Retail Florists' Association was held at 170 West Jackson boulevard. The meeting was called to order at 9 o'clock with about twenty members present. Those not bearing cards of membership are excluded. Sam Seligman, of Wertheimer Bros., exhibited his line of samples. Mrs. Frank Williams was the first lady florist to be present at a meeting of this association. The association has begun the publication of a periodical pamphlet and copies of the first issue were distributed at the meeting. It is nicely gotten up, with signed articles by Walter W. Adams, George Stollery, H. R. Hughes and Louis Wittbold, as well as much other interesting matter contributed by members whose modesty prevented the use of their names. The plan is to distribute the pamphlet to advance the interests of the association. The organization already has done much for the general good.

Various Notes.

The cemetery editor of the esteemed Tribune has been treating Mount Greenwood much more kindly than Rose Hill. His June bug story on W. N. Rudd's institution, printed May 29, was just as good reading as previous articles dealing with the financial side of cemetery management as it is said to be practiced on the north side.

Five acres were added to the peony fields at Klehm's Nurseries, Arlington Heights, last autumn, without a word being said about it at the time.

As the result of the report in last week's issue of The Review that June 1 would be his fiftieth birthday anniversary, A. L. Vaughan received many felicitations Monday, several by mail and wire from out-of-town customers.

At least one Chicago supply house will make a display at the Boston convention in August. T. E. Waters is preparing an exhibit for his department of Poehlmann Bros. Co. Boston is the home town of Mr. Waters, but this will be his first visit in ten years.

The O. J. Friedman store in the Congress hotel, now under the management of Victor Bergman, is building up a good trade. The business from the hotel itself is a considerable item and the list of regular accounts is growing. This is the only flower store with a window on downtown Michigan avenue, a mile-long business, theater and hotel section that rapidly is becoming one of the famous thoroughfares of the world.

Doubling the size of his store and improving its arrangement and appearance has resulted in a prompt increase in business for J. H. McNeilly, on East Sixty-third street.

In some of the eastern stores a big variety of stock is carried, but most of the Chicago stores confine themselves to the staples. The E. Wienhoeber Co., on Elm street, probably carries a larger variety of flowers than any other store in the city. North State street will buy lupines, calendulas and things of that character, while South State street will not look at such flowers.

The weather for May was most unusual. The first half of the month was seasonable, but in the latter half every day was from 3 degrees to 24 degrees warmer than normal. Precipitation exceeded normal by 1.86 inches, but the sun shone an average of ten hours and forty-eight minutes per day, or 10.4 per cent more than normal for the month.

The order for the material for the three new Beauty houses 34x375 to be built at Maywood, by the Weiss & Meyer Co., has been placed with the A. Dietsch Co.

The Chicago Florists' Club will meet tonight, June 4, at the La Salle hotel. In sending out notices Secretary J. B. Foley enclosed tickets to the peony show to be held at the Art Institute June 9 and 10.

Johnson & Chronis, 4701 Lake Park avenue, are making a specialty of window box trade.

In spite of a none too good Memorial day, H. N. Bruns is confident June will turn out the best month he ever has had. He has added materially to his retail trade since opening the new store and in the wholesale market, through commission houses, he expects to sell more cut valley than in any previous month of the many years he has specialized on forcing that article.

Mrs. Florence Moore Myers, 1377 East Fifty-fifth street, has returned from a two weeks' visit in the east.

John Zech says that the cape jasmine man who cannot get his stock on the market by May 28 would better save the money that it costs to pick and pack the crop.

Eisner & Redden recently removed from 5449 South Halsted street to 5503 on the same thoroughfare.

After spending the month of May at Wilmette, assisting in the spring rush of Pyfer & Olsem, H. E. Philpott returned to Winnipeg June 1.

"The profits of the Memorial day business were lost in the stock that could not be sold," according to E. E. Pieser.

A new cash register has been purchased by C. W. Potuznik, 3706 West Twenty-sixth street. He intends to remodel the store this summer.

The sale of flower seeds with Winterson's Seed Store has been double last year's record, according to John P. Degnan.

Funeral work recently has been heavy with C. Bachler, the McKinley Park Florist, 3601 Archer avenue.

According to C. A. Alles, last week's sales make the best totals Wietor Bros. ever have known in May, in spite of low prices.

Iris never bloomed better than this year, says W. A. Peterson, who adds that the peony cut will be only 30,000

Among the names of the patrons and patronesses for the new St. Patrick's social center appear those of Peter Reinberg and Mrs. Reinberg.

Mrs. George Wells, whose store is at 2813 Colorado avenue, has purchased a two-flat building at 2027 Warren avenue.

Fourteen would-be consignors of peonies were refused last week by Erne & Klingel, according to Charles Erne, who cites the fact as indicating how plentiful peony growers have become.

H. R. Hughes has an attractive window display in his store at 1859 West Van Buren street. It represents a wooded scene in summer time. A rustic bridge over a brook is in the foreground. The use of plants and forest foliage with a painted screen for a background carries out the effect excellently.

"Ferns were the one item that was short," says John Michelsen, who adds that the E. C. Amling Co. cleaned a good quantity from storage at prices that showed an excellent profit.

C. L. Washburn reports that Memorial day business was the largest in the history of Bassett & Washburn.

A. L. Randall says he is unable to recall a Memorial day when so good a prospect had so unsatisfactory a fulfillment.

Three brothers, old friends of Henry Neve, of the Geo. Wittbold Co., met sudden death the evening of May 29, two of them in front of the Wittbold establishment, where they had been arranging for funeral flowers for the other, who had been killed in a motorcycle accident. The two were standing with Henry Neve on Halsted street, when the snapping of a heavily charged electric wire brought instant death. All those present at the Wittbold store say that they will never forget the horror of that night.

The retail store of the Geo. Wittbold Co., on Buckingham place, was entered on the night of May 31, by two cracksmen, who evidently expected a rich haul after a holiday and a Sunday coming together. They were discovered by a watchman and a lively revolver battle followed. The robbers made good their escape by way of a front window, having secured no loot. The interior of the office, walls, partitions and furniture, bears marks of many bullets.

With a contract in sight covering complete fixtures and refrigerator for an up-to-date flower store, Sidney Buchbinder has made two trips to Valparaiso, Ind., within the week.

F. H. Gelderman, of L. Baumann & Co., is expected home the latter part of this week, after a six weeks' trip to Europe.

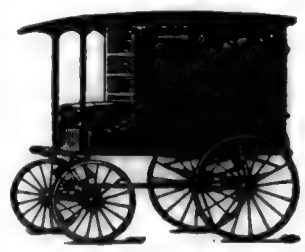
ST. LOUIS.

The Southwestern Market.

The business done for Memorial day was good, but from reports of many of the retailers it was considerably less than last year as far as cut stock went. Those who handled plants say that trade was as good as in any previous year, though showing little if any increase in this line this year. The wholesalers put in busy days May 29 and 30, with shipping orders and filling the local demand. There was plenty of stock. Few advance orders were placed by the local trade at prices quoted early. The prices that really prevailed the last day were not too high, which caused a liberal demand. The weather was hot and consignments were in anything but good condition. There were plenty of carnations which plainly showed the effects of the hot weather. All roses, unless cut in tight bud, arrived with wide open flowers and, of course, were of little value. Gladioli, such as America, King and The Bride, were fine and sold well. Sweet peas were plentiful and low in price. Peonies were abundant, as were outdoor roses, field daisies, a good quality of jasmines and a great lot of other outdoor cut stock.

In greens the market was easy, with everything plentiful.



Various Notes.

The Florists' Club's trustees, Messrs. Windler, Ossick and Connon, will this week take a day off and select a place for holding the yearly outing. This is one day of the year when the trade in all its branches has a day off.

George H. Pring has charge of the big orchid houses at the Missouri Botanical Garden and everything is in fine shape.

Our park commissioner, Dwight Davis, was a guest of honor at a banquet given at the American hotel May 26. Mr. Davis was presented with the golf championship cup won by him this year. Mayor Kiel made the presentation speech.

Hotel Jefferson, July 24. Frank Windler, chairman of the trustees, says that all members should send in their acceptances at once. The list is already long and we are assured of a large attendance.

W. W. Eggleston, of the Bureau of Plant Industry, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., was a recent visitor to the Missouri Botanical Garden in consultation on herbarium. He was a guest of Dr. Geo. T. Moore, director of the garden, during his stay.

Fred H. Meinhardt, John Nyflot and the Koenig Floral Co. had a great Memorial day business. Their places are just across the way from the two large cemeteries. Plants and cut stock had a great run because of the many visitors during the day.

Frank Weber, of the H. J. Weber & Sons Nursery Co., says he is getting his work in shape so as to be able to attend the meeting of the American Association of Nurserymen at Cleveland this month. From there he will visit all the large eastern places and be home in time to attend the florists' picnic, which he seldom misses.

The local wholesale florists will start early closing this week, closing their places every day at 5 o'clock and at noon on Saturday and Sunday. The employees at these places greatly enjoy these early closings and vacation days.

The local florists experienced quite a lot of shipping business to nearby towns the latter part of last week and especially on Friday, May 29. These orders can be charged up to Memorial day business. Some say it was better than last year.

Henry Ostertag, the gentleman who presides over the "House of Flowers," reports a satisfactory Memorial day business and has a number of advance orders for June weddings and decorations. The month of May was good for a lot of extra funeral work.

Henry Berning installed a new Brecht refrigerator last week. It came in handy for the large consignments of flowers that came in during the week.

DAYTON, O.

The Market.

In spite of the fact that every farmer within twenty-five miles of Dayton had an abundant supply of peonies and retailed them at 25 cents per dozen, Memorial day trade was as good as it ever has been. A week previous it looked doubtful as to whether we would have any home-grown peonies, as the temperature was low and the peonies were backward, but during the last week the weather was warm and it brought them in from all sources. Some were of excellent quality, while others were inferior. The florists held their prices up to $1 per dozen retail and, while they did not dispose of such large quantities as in some other years, the majority had few left over. Those sold by the farmers and gardeners on the street market May 29 looked much overcome by the intense heat, but many people bought them on account of the price.

The weather had been such as to keep carnations in good condition for the Memorial day trade. They brought a good price. The rose supply also was abundant, but there is never a great quantity of roses used for grave decoration. The pot plant trade this spring has been most gratifying, and most of the florists have almost sold out.

June weddings and commencement requirements are next in order, for which the outlook, at present, is most encouraging.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Eastern Market.

The intense heat of May 26, 27 and 28 ruined the cut flower business at Memorial day. The temperature was higher than in May in the previous thirty years. The heat was tropical, ranging from 90 to 94 degrees. It brought in an immense crop of flowers, wholly unlooked for, and it injured the quality of many of them. The out-of-town shipping orders are the strength of the market for this holiday. Despite careful selection, much of the stock arrived in a condition not satisfactory to the buyers and much more of it was not good enough to ship. Peonies arrived in immense quantities. It had been doubted whether more than ten per cent of the peony crop would be in time, as late as five days in advance, but the heat and the rain brought the crop forward with a rush and the quantity sent in was many, many times greater than the most sanguine expectation. For instance, one wholesaler required three days up to May 27 to fill an order for 5,000 peonies. He received nearly double that many by the end of that day and doubled it again May 28 and again May 29. This is merely a single instance.

The outlet seemed smaller than in previous years, although this point is disputed. At any rate, the supply was so heavy that the demand appeared absent and there was much stock left over. Prices were extremely low, except on select stock. Carnations and roses suffered with peonies; there was no demand for valley. Indoor sweet peas were unsalable; only choice outdoor stock was wanted. The heat wiped out snapdragons and gardenias and wound up the callas. Iris is about over.

The June demand is only fair. Orchids, valley and outdoor sweet peas are most sought. Peonies continue plentiful, with indications that the local crop will not last so long as usual.

late spring makes it more than probable that June will be a month of much activity. Geraniums are late. Blooming stock was exceedingly scarce in May. Ferns, too, of salable size are short of the demand. The cemetery florists as a rule have done well, but there are some notable exceptions. Taken all through, business has not been up to the mark, but it has not suffered so badly as in many other lines.

A Reply to W. N. Craig.

Paul Berkowitz takes exception to a paragraph in last week's Boston letter from the gifted pen of W. N. Craig. Mr. Craig said in this article that the sale of wreaths and artificial flowers interferes with the sale of natural flowers. Mr. Berkowitz asserts that this is not a broad view of the matter. Mr. Berkowitz thinks that artificial flowers and foliage have their uses and meet needs quite distinct from those of the natural product. He thinks that they help the florist rather than interfere with each other. Mr. Berkowitz instances the different grades and prices of straw hats and of shoes and says that you might as well say that one kind of hat or shoe interferes with another kind of hat or shoe. It doesn't; there are kinds and prices to meet the needs of all classes of customers.

Memorial Day Ideas.

Robert Q. Shoch, discussing the ever changing conditions, says that the magnolia leaf is gaining fast in favor, displacing to some extent the metal design. The magnolia wreath is an improvement on the moss wreath. It is made up to suit the taste of the individual florist. In some sections it is apt to be adorned with natural flowers, in others with crepe flowers. Mr. Shoch, who has been brought up in close touch with the needs of the cemetery florists, believes that the magnolia wreath affords an opportunity for lucrative business that is grasped by the New England florists more than by florists in other sections of the country. These wreaths are made by some New England florists by the thousands and sold for delivery anywhere at from $2.50 apiece up. They commence work after Easter and use all spare time in this way until the end of May. The profit often is better than in plants or flowers and the stock is not subject to inclement weather conditions. Mr. Shoch also believes the durability of the magnolia leaf and the crepe flower makes them more satisfactory for cemetery use in many cases than cut flowers. A New York state florist, who doubted his ability to sell magnolia wreaths, disposed of 175 wreaths the first season he tried it.

Club met June 2, at 7 p. m., in the club room. June 22 was selected as the date of the annual outing, in place of the earlier date previously announced. The place will be Schuetzen Park. There will be lots of sports, and prizes galore. A humorous tone was given to the introduction of Mr. Barnhart as speaker of the evening at the Florists' Club meeting June 2 by the statement that he would speak of things Pacific.

Edward Reid, with his family in his Cadillac, captured first prize from a field of seventy cars in an 84-mile run to Stone Harbor, N. J., May 30. It covered the distance in four hours, twelve minutes and thirty-eight seconds.

Otto Thomas, of Baltimore, Md., was married in this city June 2 to one of our local belles.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

There seemed to be a complete harmony of opinion in the wholesale cut flower market Saturday, and that was that no such disappointing Memorial day had been known in the market's history. Not only were values at their lowest average, but even the expected clean-up was not in evidence, even with prices at the mercy of the retailers. You can imagine, therefore, the midsummer conditions of the entire week. The present one begins with accumulations in all lines, and, apart from the weddings, there is nothing on which to build any uplift or improvement, unless it be the lower temperature, the 95-degree heat having been sidetracked during the closing days of May.

Memorial day, as usual, proved a harvest for all the florists located near the cemeteries, but in the city itself there was no evidence of any unusual demand. Shipments to out-of-town florists were limited, and of every variety of flower there was "enough and to spare."

Enormous shipments of roses have been arriving; most of them have sold, in all sizes, at $10 per thousand, just as they arrive in the shippers' boxes. Only a few American Beauties touched $15 per hundred. Jacqueminot will be in this week. A few Brunners are still arriving, and of tea roses, especially Killarney, there seems to be no limit.

It was lamentable to note the depression in the carnation values. Few indeed, even of the selected Wards and whites, brought over $1.50 per hundred, and even these were offered Saturday as low as $10 per thousand. For anything at all, in the older kinds, from this price down to 25 cents per hundred was the general quotation. Shipments that should have arrived Friday were delayed by some of the growers until Saturday, and these "kept-overs" were inexcusable.

Orchids have fallen. Gigas, Mossiæ and Mendellii are abundant. From $10 to $40 per hundred was the Saturday quotation. The weddings of June should maintain a better average. Four dollars per hundred would have bought the best of the lilies Memorial day. Hundreds were sold at $2 and $3 per hundred and there remained a large accumulation even at these unheard-of figures for this occasion. Valley should improve in price, now that the wedding bouquets are coming in. From now on there will be enormous shipments of peonies. The south has been liberal in its supplies and the flood continues. Gladioli, iris and lilac are abundant. Sweet peas can hardly be given away and daffodils and tulips have made their departure.

Schling's Enterprise

Max Schling started a huge load of flowers for the Celtic, in one of his high-grade, plate glass motor trucks last Thursday morning, May 28. The truck, good for twenty years, could not withstand the shock of collision with a heavily loaded brewery wagon, and you can imagine the mixup of flower baskets and designs, plate glass and the article that made Milwaukee famous. Then came a police hold-up of twenty minutes for investigation and meantime the big ship sailed away. Then came Marconi and the wireless. Every patron's commission will be executed on the ship's arrival at Liverpool. Everyone to whom flowers were consigned on the vessel was notified by wireless before the ship passed out the New York harbor, and so nobody will have any fault to find. So much for the Schling style of rapid thinking and enterprise, regardless of expense.

Mr. Schling had three wedding jobs for June 2 and has twenty more booked for later in the month.

Various Notes.

Don't forget the final meeting of the New York Florists' Club Monday evening, June 8, at the rooms in the Grand Opera House building, at Twenty-third street and Eighth avenue. There will be much news of the outing, the next flower show and the trip to Boston in August to interest those who attend, and a stereopticon lecture as well.

The outing committee of the New York and New Jersey Association of Plant Growers is composed of Julius Roehrs, Anton Schultheis and W. H. Siebrecht, Jr. The annual event commences June 23 and will be held at the Delaware Water Gap, lasting three days. The Hotel Kittatinny is the place and $12.50 each covers all expenses.

Mrs. I. S. Hendrickson, of Floral Park, is now convalescent, after a severe illness and operations, at a Brooklyn hospital, with every prospect of complete recovery.

The plant auctions continue and will until the end of June, from present indications. The MacNiff Horticultural Co., realizing the need of greater room for the crowds that attend, has leased the large store next door to its present headquarters and will have, when the two stores are connected, one of the largest seed, bulb and auction centers in the country.

August Millang has purchased the colonial dwelling on Whitestone avenue, near Higgins lane, Flushing, L. I., from James A. Gray. The house is on a plot of four and one-half acres. He plans to remodel the building and will take possession upon the completion of the alterations.

When he issued his new booklet of bouquets, designs, plant arrangements, etc., Max Schling sent copies to the florists with whom he has business relations. Many in the trade, he says, have written appreciatively of the illustrations, which were in color. He adds that although some appear to think the plates were the work of imagination, the fact is that the etchings were from the original, "the only difference between the original and the picture being that the artist could not give the color the flowers really possessed."

BALTIMORE, MD.

The Market.

The thermometer during the last week reached 96 degrees on several occasions and the heat, with the continued dry weather, is having a bad effect on outdoor plants. Everything is suffering from the continued drought, and those plants not having artificial watering are faring badly. The warm weather no doubt had its effect on trade in general. The earlier part of the week, business was rather poor, but the latter half was up to the season's average. Memorial day sales were about as usual, but no unusual business was done. There were plenty of outdoor cut flowers, which lowered the prices on indoor stock. Peonies, of course, had the call, but other stock sold fairly well. Peonies were quite plentiful and sold reasonably low. There were large quantities of outdoor roses and Spanish iris on the market, which could be bought at a low figure. Some of the local growers, thinking of the shortage in flowers later, put their entire crop of peonies in cold storage, to be brought out at some future date when peonies will be conspicuous by their absence. Bedding plant sales have decreased considerably, many growers being nearly sold out, and the present supply is hardly as good as that earlier in the season.

Various Notes.

Samuel Feast & Sons had a fine display of peonies at their store on North Charles street for Memorial day.

It has been reported that Erdman & Ulrich, of Belair road, disposed of their entire cut of 30,000 peonies on Memorial day.

Superintendent of Public Parks Jas. W. Boone met with a painful accident last week. While he was repairing something on his motorcycle, the little finger of his right hand caught between the sprocket wheel and the chain and was almost severed about at the second joint. At the present time it is doing well, but will be disfigured permanently.

Lehr Bros., of Brooklyn, have finished their new 300-foot house and have already partly planted it in roses, which are looking well.

Mrs. Wm. F. McKissick, wife of the popular manager of the local branch of the Leo Niessen Co., is on a visit to relatives in Philadelphia.

Joseph Merritt has finished his new 200-foot carnation house.

The annual summer meeting of the Maryland Horticultural Society was held at the Maryland Agricultural College Saturday, May 30. There were many events of interest on the program, among them being an address by President Robert L. Graham, a well known member of the local trade. Owing to this meeting being held on Memorial day, when most of the florists are busy, there was not the number of members present that would have been there if it had been on other than a busy day. An enjoyable time was spent, however, by those who found time to attend. It has been decided to hold the annual exhibition of flowers and fruits at the Fifth Regiment armory, Baltimore, November 17 to 21, inclusive. A large number of valuable prizes are being offered. Those who have not received a premium list may secure one by applying to Geo. Morrison, P. O. Station D, Baltimore. A much larger space will be devoted to flowers this year than on former occasions, and it is to be hoped it will be well filled. Prizes for specimen chrysanthemum plants are being offered, and those growers who contemplate growing for this class of plants are assured of fair returns for their efforts. There have been few of these seen in late years, and it is hoped to reawaken an interest in these showy plants, which are a triumph of the growers' art.

GREAT FALLS, MONT.

The Electric City Conservatory reports an increase of thirty-three and a third per cent in Memorial day sales over those of 1913. These figures were obtained from five days' actual sales, from May 25 to May 30, of each year. Both plants and cut flowers were completely cleaned up and some artificial goods were sold after the flower supply was exhausted. The weather was favorable, Memorial day itself being a perfect day. June will be the last month of this firm in its present quarters; a complete remodeling and enlarging is to take place the last of the month, immediately after the June selling.

Please ship via express, promptly, one thousand fancy cut ferns for Memorial Day use. The ferns which we have been getting from you have been so much better than those received from wholesale houses nearby, where they have been rehandled, that we feel justified in shipping them so far. Only wish that we could use enough to ship more frequently.

PLANTS AS CHATTELS.

That a plant is to be regarded as a chattel, although growing in the ground, and not as a part of the real estate, follows as a necessary conclusion from the decision of the Arkansas Supreme Court to the effect that strawberry plants growing on land are subject to replevin at the suit of a person who is the owner of them and entitled to possession as against another person in whose custody they may be. (Cannon vs. Mathews, 87 Southwestern Reporter 428.) It will also be remembered that an Ohio court has decided that a florist's or nurseryman's growing stock is subject to a personal property tax.

An interesting result of this view would seem to be that plants or nursery stock may be sold under contracts reserving title in the seller until payment of the purchase price. That this may be done does not appear to have been directly decided by the courts, but, if the plant is to be declared to be a chattel for the purpose of taxation or replevin, it must be held to be personalty for purposes in general, and as such to be as much a subject of conditional sale as a sewing machine or a piece of furniture. ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

As far as can be seen, Memorial day trade was all that could be asked for. Everybody seemed to be busy and appears to be well satisfied. This year an unusual quantity of potted stock was sold for cemetery use and the last two days business was heavy on cut flowers. A large quantity of galax, magnolia and metal wreaths was sold. Wreaths with sprays of wax flowers attached did not seem to sell fast; the majority of people here are more pleased with the natural flowers, which, of course, are more artistic and graceful. The cut flower supply was quite heavy and good quality stock arrived with each shipment. A particularly large supply of roses was on hand, especially on Friday, but, according to all reports, the market was fairly well cleaned. Sunburst is making rapid strides and is about the most popular rose here. Cardinal, Milady and Richmond all sell well and they have been unusually good during the last week. American Beauties have been of good color and sold well at the usual prices. White Killarney and Killarney have been abundant. White carnations are fairly good, but Enchantress is losing out in color. Some fine Delights are on the market and these always sell well. Sweet peas are in large supply and sell fast. The last week has brought them into extra fine condition. Baby gladioli are having a good call, and retail at about $1 per dozen. A generous supply of outdoor valley reaches us, which has to be sold at 25 cents per dozen retail to clear. White, pink and red peonies reached us just in time for Memorial day, and a large quantity was disposed of. Purple and white iris also sold fairly well. Prices for Memorial day were in some cases slightly in advance, but on the whole little change was made.

Various Notes.

Schuyler Arnold is visiting his parents at Greece. In a few days he expects to leave for Painesville, O., where he will be connected with R. E. Huntington.

Horace J. Head has been home sick with a series of colds for about nine days, but is now back on the job feeling much better.

Geo. B. Hart says he has been quite busy the last two weeks, and business seems to be steadily increasing. Members of the store force have been working late the last few nights.

We are glad to say Mrs. E. P. Wilson is steadily improving and is able to get downstairs now.

The Lord & Burnham Co. is doing a good business here, receiving calls for estimates about every day.

Most of the florists closed at noon Memorial day, but a good business was done by the two or three who kept open until 6 p. m. Beautiful weather prevailed during the whole holiday and to this we attribute the good business.

Some of the smaller growers have been bringing in potted geraniums, etc., to the public market each morning and have disposed of their stock quickly.

PAGES OF RETAILERS' CARDS

THIS department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists—those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists—has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share—well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand.

To be represented costs only 70 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

Why not send your order today—now—before you forget it?

Gentlemen:

During the past year I paid you $18.20 for a half inch advertisement in the Retail Florists Department of The Review. I received through this small advertisement, from January 1, 1913, to December 31, 1913, orders to the amount of $566.00. They came by mail and telegraph from New York to San Francisco and from New Orleans to Minneapolis. Since I allowed the senders 20%, the record is as follows:

Total value of orders	$566.00
Less 20% allowed senders.. .. .	113.20
Net value of orders..... .:.	452.80

Here is an addition of $452.80 in business which could not otherwise have been obtained and at an expense of only $18.20.

Since my advertisement appeared only in The Review it goes to show what the retail florists through the country lose if they do not use this medium of advertising It also goes to show that The Review is not only there with a big "R" but that it has three more big "R's" - Readers - Reliability - Results!

Yours respectfully,
J. J. Beneke

The Market.

Memorial day was all that could be expected, as nearly everybody sold out clean. Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday were all pleasant days, and this made business heavy. The market was better supplied with flowers than at any previous Memorial day. There were many people who bought no flowers, as their own peonies and roses were in bloom, but for all that there was a heavy increase over last year in the amount of orders. All cut flowers brought good prices for this time of the year. Carnations in general sold well, though some that were shipped into this market were unsalable on account of the warm weather. The stock that came from Chicago arrived in good shape. Carnations were unusually large for the time of year, and of unusually fine quality.

Peonies sold well, ranking next to the carnations in amount of sales, and were the best ever seen in this market for Memorial day. Practically none of them had to be put into storage, as they came into bloom just right. A great many grocery stores had peonies to sell and nearly every one sold out. Roses were the scarcest flowers in the market; they brought a good price and all were sold. Sweet peas were in heavy demand. There were large numbers of pot plants, and anything that had a bloom was sold. All the dealers in bedding plants are about sold out in that line.

Various Notes.

Stevens & Hepting had a full crop of carnations and were able to supply their customers with all they wanted. Their carnations were in excellent condition, especially when the hot weather is considered.

The Rosery reports that business for May was the heaviest May business they ever had, especially the Memorial day sales.

The W. L. Rock Flower Co. sold out entirely in cut flowers and blooming plants for Memorial day, and they had an abundance of both to sell. They had a big increase of business as compared with last year.

The Peterson Floral Co. had an increase of business and also had better stock to sell than ever before.

T. J. Noll & Co. would have had plenty of stock on hand if some of the consignments had not arrived in poor shape. However, they were able to get enough good stock to fill their orders and are well pleased with the increase over last year.

Arthur Newell had no complaint to make, as he had plenty of fine, fresh stock, and business was good the whole week through. He sold out entirely in cut flowers and is satisfied with the increase in business.

Samuel Murray had a splendid week's business. He has a fine lot of Canterbury bells in bloom and they are as good as any that ever were seen in the city. He also had a nice lot of magnolia wreaths made up, which went fast for Memorial day.

The Geo. M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co. had a fine lot of peonies this year, among the best ever seen here. They cleaned up in everything in the cut flower line. Shipping business showed an increase and out-of-town funeral work has been a large item with them.

W. J. Barnes has a new refrigerator, which holds 2,000 pounds of ice. He was well satisfied with the business in Memorial week. On Saturday evening he had two decorations, which kept things flying on that day.

The Baltimore Drug Co. has sold its flower department to Miss Lue Boggess, who was with the late Mr. Freudenthal for twenty-one years and two years with the flower department of the Baltimore Drug Co., which is the continuation of Mr. Freudenthal's old flower store. Miss Boggess was ill for about three weeks, but is able to attend to business again.

Peter Martin still has a fine lot of geraniums in bloom.

A. F. Barbe sold out everything in the bedding line and had a better cemetery cut flower business than in any previous year.

Business across the line was good, but would have been better if there had not been so much outside stock available. William Foith had a clean-up on everything. He had a fine lot of sweet peas and baby gladioli, and also some extra good carnations and roses.

R. S. Brown practically sold out in everything and had the best Memorial day business in his experience.

Mrs. T. A. Moseley reports business better than the year before, especially in pot plants. W. J. B.

BOSTON.

The Market.

What had promised to be a record-breaking Memorial day business was, to a large extent, ruined by the intense heat wave which prevailed from May 25 to 28. Temperatures of 90 to 96 degrees were recorded on several successive days and, coming as they did after such a prolonged spell of cool and comfortable weather, the effect on the cut flower trade was disastrous. Of the flowers arriving at the wholesale markets May 26 and 27, a large proportion were absolutely unsalable and wagon loads of ruined flowers had to be carted away. A change to cooler conditions May 29 and 30 saved many flowers and prevented complete disaster, but it is safe to say that growers, salesmen, retailers and wholesalers never have experienced such conditions for Memorial day trade and hope never to see such again.

As usual, large quantities of pickled stock appeared and most of this went to the rubbish heap. Good carnations May 29 and 30 made $4 and $5 per hundred, a few fancies $6, but earlier in the week quotations were out of the question. Short and medium roses cleaned up moderately well the last of the week, but prices were low. The first half of the week many arrived blown fully open and unsalable. Sweet peas did not sell as well as usual. The intense heat had softened the flowers so that, while they looked fresh when received, if placed a few hours in the ice chest they were useless. The same held true of such flowers as stocks, snapdragons, feverfew, etc. For some of these prices could hardly be quoted. Valley from outdoors was abundant and good. This hurt the sale of the forced article. Lilac and other outdoor flowers were never more abundant, but all suffered from the heat. Some Darwin tulips and the old double white gardenia-scented narcissus rang the curtain down on the 1914 Dutch bulb season. Gladiolus Peach Blossom and other small varieties sold fairly well; so did America, but Spanish iris closed up with the heat.

The sales of artificial wreaths and sprays reached tremendous proportions and seriously hurt the cut flower trade. Many retailers advertised these heavily and at every flower stand and in department stores they were on sale. Some retailers did an enormous business in these and only a limited number failed to handle them.

The heat hurt trade in bedding plants, but locally growers already are pretty well cleaned out.

This week trade is dull and prices low. June weddings are the hope of growers for the present month. Such flowers as stocks, candytuft, feverfew, etc., are not wanted at any price. Roses, carnations, gladioli, Spencer peas, valley and yellow marguerites sell the best.

Various Notes.

A fire, May 27, destroyed the house, barn, boiler room and three greenhouses of Everett E. Cummings, Woburn, Mass. Damage is estimated at $8,000, partially covered by insurance. Mr. Cummings is one of our leading single violet specialists, following violets with cucumbers, tomatoes and chrysanthemums.

Memorial week of 1914 will long be remembered by local flower growers, and not in a pleasant way. May 28 three large wagon loads of flowers went to the rubbish heap from one of the wholesale markets, something unprecedented for a week when practically every flower usually finds a sale.

J. A. Budlong & Sons Co., of Auburn, R. I., will add Beauties to their list of roses for next season. For Memorial day they had specially fine Maryland, Russell, Taft, Sunburst and Fire Flame.

F. E. Swett & Son, of Stoughton, had a splendid lot of Gladiolus nanus for Memorial day. Brilliant, light scarlet, sold finely; also Peach Blossom, Mina, Blushing Bride and The Bride. They have 5,000 America just coming into flower and 75,000 in fine variety in the field.

At the Montrose Greenhouses two new steam boilers, each of 150 horsepower, and new 10-inch steam mains, will be put in this summer. About 30,000 roses are planted here and the stock, when I saw it, carried a splendid Memorial day crop. Leaders here are Dark Pink Killarney, White Killarney, Ward and Richmond. Russell is blooming well now, but did poorly through the winter. Milady will be discarded. Double White Killarney proves less prolific than the original white. A few new sorts are being tried in a moderate way. Young stock planted is coming along finely. An up-to-date dairy farm is conducted here. There are forty milch cows, mostly Holsteins, in addition to young stock. Many improvements outside are being made on the farm under the supervision of Eber Holmes, who has one of the best rose establishments in New England.

J. E. Stickwell, of Tewksbury, a near neighbor of L. E. Small, had a fine lot of Gladiolus America and pink snapdragons for Memorial day.

F. H. Houghton says his Memorial day business was nearly double that of a year ago. He had not planned to carry any artificial wreaths, but he had so many inquiries for them that he was obliged to handle some and sold twice as many as a year ago.

Harry Quint, the Tremont street retailer, was a heavy advertiser for Memorial day, spending nearly $1,000 in this way. He prepared 2,500 wreaths at various prices and at noon May 30 had not over fifty small ones left, being also cleaned out of both plants and cut flowers. For a young florist, Mr. Quint is unmistakably a progressive and live one, with plenty of nerve in his make-up.

N. F. Comley, of Lexington, had a strenuous time picking sweet peas for Memorial day. He sold 40,000 May 29 alone.

Henry M. Robinson & Co. report excellent Memorial day business, considerably ahead of 1913. Sales of artificial flowers reached immense proportions.

Mr. and Mrs. Owens, of Watertown, who are popular with the trade, have the sympathy of a host of friends in the death of their daughter, Florence, in her seventeenth year, May 14.

Spencer peas and candytuft of splendid quality and in large quantity were marketed by Frank Edgar, of Waverley, for Memorial day.

Welch Bros. Co. reports a good Memorial day business. They had some losses from shipments May 28, which were unavoidable, owing to the intense heat.

Jackson Dawson, of the Arnold Arboretum, has a good, healthy batch of Acacia pubescens, grafted last fall. Some grafted in August, 1912, are now heavy plants eight feet high. He says the winter losses in evergreens were light, but that the rose family suffered severely, some kinds being entirely killed out. His new Chinese rhododendrons are growing splendidly and, judging from the great variations in character and foliage, will be something worth inspecting when they reach flowering size.

L. L. MAY & CO.

ST. PAUL, MINN.

Brookline, was married June 3, by the Rev. C. F. Dole, of the Unitarian church, Jamaica Plain, to Miss Alberta M. Billingham, of Jamaica Plain, at the home of the latter. The groom was attended by Arthur Billingham, brother of the bride, the maid of honor being Miss Esther Billingham.

At Penn's Memorial day trade equaled that of 1913, which is saying a good deal. Shipments of special wreaths were made in immense numbers to all parts of New England from their large warehouse on Bromfield street, opposite the store.

Preparations for the ladies' night of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club, to be held in Horticultural hall June 16, are actively progressing and the occasion will undoubtedly be the best ever.

Local growers who had big batches of late tulips, Narcissus poeticus, etc., for Memorial day, had their flowers mostly completely sizzled by the intense heat wave of May 26 to 28. Flowers only partially opened were scorched as though by fire.

J. Newman & Son, on Tremont street, as usual had a heavy Memorial day trade. Artificial wreaths here had a big sale.

Peonies from Pennsylvania appeared in large numbers last week, but the intense heat was too much for them. Queen Victoria, particularly, fell to pieces if touched, although not nearly expanded.

At Galvin's the whole force was kept busy. Artificial wreaths were not carried here, but the business done in natural flowers exceeded that of 1913.

The wholesale flower markets will close at noon on Saturdays during July and August as in previous years.

series, sails on the S. S. Imperator, June 6, on a business trip. Nursery business has been good with him this season.

Recent callers have included the Hon. Vicary Gibbs, of Elstree, England, who has the most noted collection of Chinese and other shrubs in Great Britain. Edwin Beckett, who has charge of his estate, is noted as the most expert vegetable grower in Britain.

W. N. Craig.

LANCASTER, PA.

The Market.

Business for Memorial day was most satisfactory to all connected with the trade. The early peonies came in on time. There was an abundance of outdoor flowers—snowballs, iris, mock-orange, etc. Some fine outdoor sweet peas were seen. The carnation growers had heavy crops, which were in fine demand.

Various Notes.

W. A. Hammond, at his new North Prince street store, has an attractive showing of evergreens in tubs and potted roses in bloom.

Geo. Goldbach's store makes a fine appearance with window boxes of blooming plants, vines and bay trees.

Charles F. Edgar, manager for B. F. Barr & Co., put up a novel decoration last week for the opening of the Elite Confectionery. Large pergolas were erected and covered with grapevines with fruit. Among the foliage were hidden many miniature lights, and the whole presented a most pleasing appearance.

Lancaster county's representative in Congress, W. W. Griest, has introduced a resolution suggesting that the people of the United States on Memorial day wear sprigs of evergreen, tied with bows of red, white and blue ribbon. This will be of value to the retailers.

The city council has awarded the Foreman Forestry Co., of this city, the contract for scientifically caring for the fine old trees in East Reservoir park.

John Lewis Childs' new gladiolus, Scribe, is in fine form at H. D. Rohrer's. Its habits are of the best, and its fine markings on the delicate pink background make it most attractive.

Seed Trade News.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, C. C. Massie, Minneapolis; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.
Thirty-second annual convention, Washington, D. C., June 23 to 25, 1914.

WHOLESALE seedsmen complain that, although the season has been large, collections still are slow.

W. ATLEE BURPEE and son, David, spent Memorial day in Naples. They will be in Paris the latter part of this month and in London in mid-July, for the sweet pea show.

THE warm weather has brought the peas along at a rate that has done much toward making up for the backwardness of the start. The critical blooming season will come at about the usual date.

IN the trial of a suit for damages on account of crop failure, brought by George Demit against the Janssen Seed & Floral Co., of Springfield, Ill., the jury awarded a verdict for the defendant May 20.

THE seed business of Borders, Chaffin & Co., at Flora, Ill., has been sold to the Louisville Seed Co., of Louisville, Ky. The members of the firm will devote their efforts to other lines in which they are interested.

GOOD rains at Chicago last week did much for the onion set crop, which had begun to suffer for want of moisture, May having been unusually dry. Since Louisville and Chillicothe dropped back as onion set centers the crop at Chicago has become of paramount importance in the trade.

To promote the back-to-the-farm movement, J. Bolgiano & Son, of Baltimore, Md., established this year a free employment department in connection with their seed business. Under the management of Claude B. Ramsay, this department has furnished employers with reliable help and helped to lessen the urban army of the unemployed.

A SEVERE hail storm swept over Rocky Ford, Colo., on the evening of May 28. It is reported that two-thirds of the cucumber seed crop and one-half of the muskmelon crop was completely ruined. It is too late to replant muskmelons, but some of the earlier varieties of cucumber might be replanted. J. C. Robinson, of Waterloo, Neb., whose company has a large acreage at Rocky Ford, said May 29: "Details are yet lacking as to the extent of this storm, but it evidently is one of the worst hail storms that have ever visited this district in cropping season."

STRAIN TESTS OF TOMATOES.

A difference in yield of more than thirteen tons per acre is shown by tests of tomato seed conducted by the Agricultural Experiment Station at State College, Pa. "These differences must

Not How Cheap, But How Good.

The Sign That Made Lily Bulbs Famous

What brain so dull but that when Milwaukee is mentioned does not at once have thoughts of that well known brew that made Milwaukee famous—or who when lily bulbs are mentioned does not at once think of Horseshoe Brand Lily Bulbs? Reputations are built up through diligent, hard and persistent labor—being able to deliver something better than the ordinary—or in plain every-day American words—making good. A reputation founded on solid basis gains popularity by being brought before the public through publicity—what better medium is there for such than advertising? In the Good Book we are taught to let our light shine before the world so that all may see it. Some jealous of the success of Horseshoe Brand Lily Bulbs spread all sorts of vilifications against us—but we should worry—every knock is a boost. Horseshoe Brand Lily Bulbs are acknowledged as the best in the world—all the large growers buy them—not for the name, you may be sure—but because they are the best lily bulbs to be had. Get in their class—buy Horseshoe Brand Lily Bulbs—then you know that you can look for a successful crop. A catalogue with prices on request.

Not How Cheap, but How Good.

be attributed, not to environmental conditions which are improved at considerable expense and which are of short duration, but to heredity, a factor which is more or less persistent and which acts without expense. In view of this fact, the importance of considering the factor of variation should need no further amplification,'' it is asserted by C. E. Myers, who has tabulated the results.

It was in 1908 that the station instituted tests of cabbage and tomato seeds. The results with cabbage were published in 1912 and the figures on tomatoes now are given out. The seed obtained from each source is designated as a strain, although it is quite likely that in reality several seedsmen may have had a common source of supply. Six varieties were tested for three years, 1909-11. Here is the result with one:

By "corrected yield" is meant the total yield after having been corrected for apparent variations in the fertility of the soil. In the opinion of the writer, it most nearly expresses the yielding property of the strain.

A study of the record shows that the variation in the size of the fruit was quite pronounced in that it varied from .22 to .29 pounds, while the percentage of marketable fruit was fairly uniform. The variation in earliness is of considerable interest. It will be seen that the average yield to August 15 ranged from 1.77 to 4.46 tons, a difference of 2.69 tons per acre in favor of the superior strain. The early maturing strain also ranked fifth in corrected yield and the field notes show that it was otherwise desirable. It will also be observed that the productiveness of the various strains ranged from 9.21 to 17.94 tons, although in this case the highest yielding strain was not very desirable in character of fruit.

Any seedsman who wants the full data on the six varieties should write to Pennsylvania State College Agricultural Experiment Station, State College P. O., Pa., for Bulletin No. 129, which concludes:

''In the study of the preceding pages, the variations which have been noted are significant of the importance that this factor plays in the profitable production of farm crops. While the experiments have been confined to tomatoes of six varieties, yet there is ample reason to believe that the principle involved is of general application, regardless of the particular kind of crop grown. Thus, whether a person be interested in the production of crops as diverse as the growing of cucumbers under glass or potatoes and corn in large acreages, the possibility of securing a strain superior to the one already being grown continues to exist.''

TWO SERIOUS BEAN DISEASES.

The blight and anthracnose of garden and field beans caused a loss in Michigan alone estimated at $2,000,000, or twenty per cent of the crop of 1913, according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture, which says it is becoming more difficult each year to secure bean seed free from one or both of these diseases.

Bean anthracnose is caused by a fungus which attacks the stems, leaves, pods and seeds of the plants. The bean blight differs from anthracnose in several ways. It is caused by a bacterial organism. Both diseases cause serious losses in the snap bean trade. Diseased pods are unmarketable. In the seed bean trade all beans must be handpicked to get out the discolored, diseased seeds. From fifteen to thirty per cent of diseased beans are frequently sorted out, involving heavy loss of beans as well as the cost of sorting. Diseased beans used for seed usually give a poor stand and result in the production of a badly diseased crop.

It has been conclusively demonstrated that anthracnose can be avoided by a careful system of seed selection. Save seed from perfectly healthy pods, selected with great care for entire absence of spotting. Carefully keep them away from diseased pods, shell by hand to avoid reinfection, and plant on clean land. Pull and burn any plants showing disease. By planting the seed thus secured enough disease-free seed can be secured to plant the whole crop. The bean blight is more difficult to control than anthracnose, but the same methods will give the best results at present available.

THE GLAD HAND

GLADIOLI -- GLADIOLUS -- GLADIOLUSES

Which is right?—the only way to find out is to plant some of our stock. And if planted now, or even later, they will BLOOM when the earlier planted stock is past, which means higher prices for the flowers and is GOOD BUSINESS. We offer the following varieties, less 5% if cash accompanies the order:

BODDINGTON'S QUALITY GLADIOLI

AMERICA (Our Specialty). This beautiful new Gladiolus has produced as great a sensation as the now famous Princeps. The flowers, which are of immense size, are of the most beautiful flesh-pink color and, as a florist who saw it said, it is "fine enough for a bride's bouquet."

Selected Bulbs, 2 to 2½ inches: 25c per doz., $1.75 per 100, $15.00 per 1000. 1st size, 1½ to 2 inches: 20c per doz., $1.50 per 100, $12.00 per 1000; 1 to 1½ inches: $1.25 per 100, $10.00 per 1000.

PEACE. The flowers are large, of good form and correctly placed on a heavy, straight spike. They are a beautiful white, with a pale lilac feathering on the inferior petals.
"Peace" is not an early bloomer, but rather medium to late, and planted at the same time with other stock, it is in its best condition when most other varieties have passed blooming. Per doz. $1.25, per 100 $9.00, per 1000 $85.00.

Grand Novelty Orchid-flowered Gladiolus

MRS. FRANK PENDLETON, JR. Order early to procure Mrs. Frank Pendleton, Jr. Awarded First-Class Certificate of Merit by the Massachusetts Horticultural Society of Boston and by the American Gladiolus Society at Baltimore, 1911. Its color is the most exquisite salmon-pink with a very conspicuous blood-red blotch in the throat on the lower petals. Per doz. $5.00, per 100 $40.00.

PINK AUGUSTA. Color a lovely soft pink. This variety is especially suitable for forcing under glass, for which purpose it is especially recommended. Per doz. 35c., per 100 $2.50, per 1000 $20.00.

EUROPA. One of the finest white Gladioli, and the individual flowers are the purest in snowy whiteness. $1.75 per doz., $14.00 per 100.

DAWN. (Tracy's.) The most beautiful shell-pink Gladiolus ever offered. A long, graceful spike of magnificently formed flowers, all open at one time. $1.00 per doz., $7.50 per 100.

INDEPENDENCE. A brilliant rose-pink, with richly marked throat. A long spike of wax-like flowers. One of the best for cut-flowers and for massing because of its color and the lasting quality of the bloom. $2.75 per 100, $25.00 per 1000.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Oregon City, Ore.—In the section for professional florists in the rose show held here May 23 the winners were James Wilkinson and H. J. Bigger.

Ukiah, Cal.—Carl Purdy has an exhibit of delphiniums, peonies, iris and oriental poppies at the show of the Alameda County Floral Society at Oakland.

Hogan, Ore.—Theodore Wedell, formerly of Gresham, Ore., has leased the Crystal Springs Greenhouses for five years from Martin Winch. The range contains about 12,000 square feet of glass.

Portland, Ore.—The amateur floral contest inaugurated here last season aroused so much interest that another is proposed this year. There is no fee for entrance and the schedule covers everything from a hanging basket to a large garden. The trade takes great interest in the contest, and the committee now working on the plans for the contest include J. G. Bacher, A. J. Clarke, A. Rahn, R. R. Routledge and Hans Niklas.

LEONARD COATES, of the L. Coates Nursery Co., of Morganhill, Cal., objects to the tendency which, he says, is shown in horticultural publications, to refer to the climate of southern California, rather than of California in general, as being especially favorable to the growth of stock that is only half hardy. He thinks that thus injustice is frequently done, though unintentionally, to the more northern parts of the state. "For instance," he says, "in southern California many thousands of eucalyptus trees were cut to the ground by the elements last year, and many large trees, fifty to 100 feet high, were killed, while 500 miles farther north hardly a leaf of the same varieties was hurt."

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

The principal outlet for flowers this week has again been funeral work and, although a slight fillip may be given by Memorial day, the experience of the last two or three years has been that so many people have flowers in their own gardens that their patronage of the flower stores is not heavy. The retailers are making a good bid for the business, though, by showing fine stock in great abundance. Easter lilies, gladioli and similar flowers from outdoors are shown in the best of condition. Carnations have never been better at this time of the year and sweet peas are finer than usual. Only the best Spencers stand any chance of a market now, but these are excellent in every way. Roses are good for this time of year, and plentiful, both from under glass and outdoors. Among the varieties grown outside the old La Detroit is making an elegant showing. Radiance, too, is becoming popular as an outdoor rose, though the shape is not so good as from indoor plants. The color is superb. Mrs. John Laing sells on sight and there is seldom any surplus of this fine old remontant. Orchids are plentiful, with fair demand. Valley sells well and is of good quality. In plants, a few benighted azaleas and rhododendrons still grace the boards and there is pretty little stock of tuberous begonias, gloxinias and kindred plants.

Ferns are scarce, but there is a good supply of kentias in all sizes and reasonable in price. Greens are plentiful in all varieties.

Various Notes.

I recently had the pleasure of a look through the Bauer pottery here and while I have been familiar with the excellent line of flower pots and similar goods sent out by the company, I must confess that I was surprised at the extent and variety of the line manufactured. Many things in the way of glazed jardinieres, fern dishes, vases and other material that I had imagined we had to send east for, are here in greater variety and extent than most people are aware of. We have, in short, an up-to-date pottery, with the latest machinery for turning out ware of all kinds and skilled labor imported from the east and from Europe. It was an eye-opener to me. When the big shows at San Diego and San Francisco are opened to eastern sightseers, there will be some things shown by the J. A. Bauer Pottery Co., of Los Angeles, that will be interesting to say the least.

John Morley, superintendent of parks of San Diego, has been in Los Angeles for a day or two on a business trip.

"Unto him that hath," etc. When the word went around that Jacob Dieterich had received a legacy everyone thought that our wizard of Wall street had again struck it rich. "Jake" loves a joke and we were all told to look in the papers for particulars of the latest addition to his bank account. The climax occurred when the amount was made public—$1, to be paid in pennies. This from a man whom Dieterich had befriended in this life in many ways. At first it is said that he thought of making another investment in Montebello real estate; then he figured on a plant of sweet verbena or eucalyptus to put on the grave of the departed for sanitary purposes, but as the fortune of the late lamented did not foot up to the amount of the legacies, Jake "guessed" he stood a poor chance of getting 100 cents for that dollar after all. Ach! Such a foolishment!

Howard & Smith continue to make an elegant show in the store. The gladioli and sweet peas are at their best now. At the Montebello nursery the rows are magnificent. They save their own seed from selected varieties of all the best in commerce and add all the new ones as they come in. The morning I called Fred Howard had just cut a magnificent rose, one of his own seedlings that looked like a glorified Wadell with a dash of Lyon in it and, needless to say, he is quite proud of his acquisition.

Now that Montebello has electric light and power service, the nurserymen are pulling out gas and other engines and installing motors. Both Henry Turner and Howard & Smith have placed orders for their equipment.

SPOKANE, WASH.

The Market.

The week of Memorial day opened with a decided drop in temperature, which, as is usually the case, resulted in a slackening of the plant demand. The bulk of the spring planting, however, has already been done, and with most florists has been quite satisfactory. Aster days, May 22 and 23, instituted by the Spokane Ad Club, helped to move a large quantity of plants. To encourage the liberal planting of the aster, which is Spokane's official flower, the plants were advertised to be sold at half price, two dozen for 25 cents. Because of the fact that groceries, markets and fruit stores have gone into the handling of plants, the two days' busi-

CUT FLOWERS AND FLORISTS' SUPPLIES

IN ANY QUANTITY ROSES AT ANY TIME

Now that you have decided definitely on your planting for the coming season, would esteem it a pleasure to submit samples and prices covering your requirements. Our stock is in splendid shape for immediate planting, especially in the following varieties. We guarantee satisfaction.

Prince E. C. d'Arenberg—This sterling new red is being planted heavily and is going to make a record. We have an extra fine lot of it for June 1st and later delivery. At the price we are delivering it for, you can give it a very liberal trial.

Mrs. Geo. Shawyer—Here is another one that you make no mistake in devoting a liberal amount of your bench space to. You will eventually discard all other pinks for it. Better make a good start this season; there will be no regrets.

Dble. White Killarney—Will surely supersede the original; larger, stronger, double and pure white in the hottest weather.

Lady Alice Stanley—A grand rose and easy to handle, of extremely vigorous growth, splendid at all seasons of the year.

Killarney Queen—A favorite with every one, wherever tried, always in demand at advanced prices.

Jonkheer J. L. Mock—Gaining friends everywhere, this giant pink has made a great place for itself and deservedly so.

Sunburst—The only yellow rose you can afford to devote space to, and a big money-maker.

Antoine Rivoire (Mrs. Taft)—Sells on sight and a favorite with every one; always brings top prices; beautiful in all stages of development and a splendid keeper.

Milady—A wonderfully good red that has proven itself a winner; grow cool and you will be surprised with its vigorous growth and freedom.

Mlle. Cecile Brunner—This charming little rose is a staple in every first-class flower shop in the country. There is always room for a few benches of it, and the returns are steady and generous.

Prima Donna—The demand exceeds the supply wherever grown, and is being planted in greatly increased quantities this season. Larger than Russell and a better and easier one to handle.

Mrs. Wakefield Christie-Miller—Strong grower, a big, massive built rose that every one likes, and very free.

ness did not mean as much to the florists as has usually been the case. All florists are complaining of the dearth of funeral orders. Either this is a mighty healthy country or people are saving their money; maybe both suppositions are correct.

As yet only a few home-grown peonies have made their appearance in the local market. These are P. officinalis rubra and are grown by Olsson & Benson, who had a good crop for Memorial day. Most of the pink and white peonies are coming in from the Miller Gardens, at Milton, Ore. Carnations, on the whole, will be rather scarce, as a number of growers have thrown out their plants to make room for cucumbers.

Various Notes.

L. F. Austin, sales manager for the Spokane Greenhouses, Inc., positively refused to promise any quantity of carnations to any retailers for Memorial day, although expecting a full crop. He said that an overestimate of their Mothers' day supply got him into all kinds of trouble. L. B. H.

ers a month ahead of previous years; there were, therefore, plenty of flowers for the general public to use from their gardens. A number of people, however, were not fortunate in having gardens and had to depend on the local florists for their supply. Peonies are about all gone. Roses are plentiful. Carnations were in good supply. The shipping trade was better than in previous years, commencing May 27 and keeping up until the last moment. Sweet peas are plentiful and of good quality. Stocks, also, were good and moved at a good price. Snapdragons, delphiniums, gaillardias and Spanish iris helped to fill the general display. There was a scarcity of small blooming plants for cemetery purposes. Hydrangeas, ramblers, geraniums and gloxinias were among the varieties available.

Various Notes.

Niklas & Son displayed a choice lot of gloxinias in a variety of colors.

Fred Jensen, of Kelso, Wash., was in town May 31 with his bride of a few weeks.

The Oregon City flower show was held May 23 and was open to professionals and amateurs alike. J. Wilkinson won the first prize for the best general exhibit, and H. J. Bigger, the second. The general effect and displays were up to the standard. Roses, of outdoor varieties, were the predominating flowers.

Wm. Martin has moved his family to his new home, near Forest Grove, Ore., where he has greenhouses.

Henry Clemmens, of Newberg, Ore., has an acre and a half planted to sweet peas, which are now in full bloom.

R. W. Gill, the dahlia man, was made manager of the new public market, which was recently opened.

BUILDING A LETTUCE HOUSE.

Whenever I am in perplexity I write to The Review; as yet it has not failed me. I have two even-span, single greenhouses, each covering ground 24x100 feet. I am going to tear them down and build one house on the same ground. I want it for growing lettuce. How shall I build it? The house will run east and west. Would you recommend a shed roof, with glass in the sides, or a broken-span roof, with the long span to the south? Would the sun be too strong for lettuce on warm days, here in southwestern Pennsylvania? Does lettuce do better in a high house or in one with only walking room? What kind of walks do you prefer? The ones I have are sunk. What size of glass is best? If you will answer these questions and add any advice that would be helpful, I shall be greatly obliged.

W. A.

If one house the size of the present two houses, or 48x100 feet, is to be erected, I would prefer to use a three-quarter-span roof, unless it is to be built upon a hillside with a slope of 15 degrees or more, in which case a shed or lean-to roof might be used. Really, however, for growing lettuce and similar crops I would prefer to erect two houses 24x100 feet, with the middle gutter supported by a row of gas-pipe posts and without a partition. In either case I would have the walls five and one-half or six feet high, with three or four feet of glass below the gutters.

If the soil is sandy, the beds may be practically on the ground level, but if the soil is so heavy that perfect drainage cannot be secured, the beds should be slightly raised above the level of the walks and, if necessary, one or more tile drains should be placed under each bed. If proper arrangement is made for ventilation, there will be no difficulty about preventing sunburn; in fact, there will be less of such danger than in low houses. For growing Grand Rapids and similar open-head varieties, it is a good plan to have the beds several feet below the glass. I would use glass at least 16x20 inches and the 20x24 size is preferred by many of the most successful growers.

Full directions for building and piping greenhouses are given in "Greenhouse Construction," by L. R. Taft, and suggestions for growing lettuce and other greenhouse vegetables, as well as the leading greenhouse flowers, will be found in "Greenhouse Management," by the same author. Either of these books will be furnished postpaid by The Review for $1.50.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

THE death of Clarence M. Stark, for many years president of Stark Bros. Nurseries & Orchards Co., at Louisiana, Mo., is recorded in this week's obituary column.

THE death of E. Alvin Miller, who, until his retirement from business two years ago, was vice-president of the Jackson & Perkins Co., of Newark, N. Y., is recorded in this week's obituary column.

SIXTY-EIGHT acres of peonies in bloom are just now attracting the attention of the population in the vicinity of Sarcoxie, Mo., where Gilbert H. Wild and the Wild Bros. Nursery Co. have their big peony farms.

THE American Peony Society holds its annual show this month in Chicago. The Art Institute is the place and the date June 9 and 10, not June 12 and 13 as originally fixed. Schedules and entry blanks have been sent out.

ONE of the most important departments of the Alvin Nursery Co., at Mobile, Ala., is that devoted to the care of orchards under contract. Orange and pecan orchards are the company's specialty and about 700 acres of the former are now in its charge.

THE Vermont state forestry department has leased a tract of land at Townshend, Vt., on which about 185,000 2-year-old trees are being set out, for transplanting to state reservations and for sale next year. The trees are largely white and red pine and spruce.

CHARLES ISSELEE, who is starting a nursery at Mt. Kisco, N. Y., formerly was one of the proprietors of the Flora Nurseries, conducted in partnership with the De Coninck brothers, "Bromley road, Catford, London, S. E., opposite Jam Factory." Since coming to the United States he has been on private estates near New York, having lately resigned as superintendent of the E. C. Schaefer place at New Rochelle.

EDWARD KIRK, for twenty-three years manager of the estate of George W. Vanderbilt, has purchased the Northeast Harbor branch of the Mt. Desert Nurseries, of Bar Harbor, Me. He took charge of the property May 18 and will carry on a general nursery business as well as do outside contract work. The business was established at Northeast Harbor fifteen years ago and the property there now comprises three acres of land, an office building, outbuildings and greenhouses.

You may discontinue our advertisement, as we are through with our spring shipments, but we will give you another order for fall, as THE RESULTS from the one for spring HAVE BEEN VERY SATISFACTORY.—Franklin Davis Nursery Co., Baltimore, Md., May 19, 1914.

THE regular annual inspection of nurseries in the state of Wisconsin will begin July 1 and continue until October, according to the announcement of J. G. Sanders, state inspector, at Madison, Wis.

THE Wealthy apple is the specialty of G. D. McKisson, at Fairmont, Minn., and his shipments of trees of this stock totaled over 50,000 this spring. Shade trees are also an important line at his 120-acre nursery.

SOUTHEASTERN Michigan orchardists say the week of warm weather in March which was followed by a period of extreme cold practically ruined the peach crop. On many trees not a bud is to be found, although the trees themselves are apparently uninjured.

MUST DAMAGES BE PAID?

Or Would Replacement Suffice?

A clause in a contract for a sale of fruit trees of certain varieties, reading, "Any stock that does not prove to be true to name as labeled is to be replaced free or purchase price refunded," does not prevent the purchaser from recovering damages for substantial breach of the contract as to the kinds of trees furnished, according to a recent decision of the Appellate Division of the New York Supreme Court, in the case of Wood vs. Sherwood, 146 New York Supplement 465. The court finds that this clause should be interpreted as merely applying to incidental errors.

Plaintiff sued defendant for $600 damages claimed to have resulted from the latter's delivery of Ben Davis and other varieties of apple trees that are unprofitable to cultivate, whereas 300 trees of the varieties known as McIntosh Reds, Delaware Reds and Fameuse were contracted for. As a defense, defendant relied upon the clause already quoted, but the court said:

Meaning of the Agreement.

"We are of the opinion that the affirmative defense pleaded is of no value to the defendant, unless it appears from the evidence that there was a substantial performance of the contract on his part; the clause permitting replacements or the refunding of the money being intended merely to provide for incidental errors in the delivery of the trees and not an entire failure to perform the conditions of the contract."

The court finds, however, that there was insufficient evidence to sustain plaintiff's claim that there was a material breach of the contract by defendant, and says on this point:

"Until the plaintiff has established that the orchard is not made up substantially of the three varieties which he says he purchased from the defendant, he has failed to make out the breach of the contract which he has alleged, and he has no right to any damages. The presumption must be that the defendant has delivered the goods contracted to be delivered, and evidence that out of a group of twenty-five trees, in an orchard of several hundred, there are no trees of two of the varieties is not meeting the burden of proof; is not furnishing any proof whatever of a violation of the contract." S.

FEDERAL INSPECTION IN APRIL.

In news-letter No. 9, accompanying the list of pests and diseases found on stock from abroad during April by federal inspectors, C. C. Marlatt, chairman of the federal horticultural board, states that "during the month of April two nests of the brown-tail moth and three egg masses of the European tussock moth were detected on French stock. One egg mass of the latter was also collected on stock coming from Holland. As will be seen from the attached list, many pests of greater or less importance have been detected by various inspectors during the last month."

The attached list shows that the pests intercepted were a few more than last month. Orchids from the Philippines and citrus stock from Brazil were, however, responsible for so large a number that the countries at the top of the list last month, aside from Holland, have far fewer checked up against them this time. Boxwood from Holland carried a large number of pests, most of them oyster-shell scale. The other infestations were widely various in character of insects and stock.

The Market.

Potted plants moved quite fast last week, and many of the florists were without plants three days before Memorial day. Business as a whole was excellent, funeral work being combined with the Memorial day rush. Most of the florists had to secure extra help both in the greenhouses and for delivering. Geraniums were in good condition and sold fast at from 5 cents up. Other plants were in good condition and sold well. Wreaths found ready sales, and not only were the retailers selling them, but the department stores also. Magnolia wreaths had the preference, although large numbers of galax ones were sold.

Various Notes.

Charles Lapham, of Central Falls, reports an exceedingly busy week, with a slight shortage of stock towards the end.

Alonzo Vose & Son, of Woonsocket, required the services of several extra men to handle the rush. They were about sold out.

Mr. Taylor, of the Boston Fertilizer Co., Boston, called on the trade last week.

Mrs. J. A. Staple, of Woonsocket, was busy last week with funeral work and the holiday rush.

M. J. Leach & Sons worked almost every night last week getting orders ready. T. F. B.

HARDINESS OF PLANTS.

Are cinnamon vines, Madeira vines and Spanish iris bulbs hardy enough to be left outdoors in winters, in the vicinity of Denver, Colo., or will frost kill them if they are left in the ground? F. A. H.

Spanish iris will prove perfectly hardy even where the minimum tempeature falls to 20 or 25 degrees below zero. A light winter mulch is beneficial. Bulbs should always be planted in well drained ground. Dampness, and not cold, kills them. The cinnamon and Madeira vines would not prove hardy with you and should be cut down before the ground freezes up, and stored in a cool cellar until early in May. C. W.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Department of Plant Registration.

Public notice is hereby given that Peter Henderson & Co., 35-37 Cortlandt street, New York city, offer for registration the geranium described below. Any person objecting to the registration or the use of the name proposed is requested to communicate with the secretary at once. Failing to receive objection to the registration, the same will be made three weeks from this date.

Raiser's description: A sport from Geranium Double General Grant; habit and foliage same as the parent variety, flowers deep salmon. Name, General Funston.

The United States Nursery Co., S. W. Crowell, manager, Roseacres, Miss., offers for registration the rose described below. Any person objecting to the registration or the use of proposed name is requested to communicate with the secretary at once. Failing to receive objection to the registration, the same will be made three weeks from this date.

Raiser's description: A sport from Climbing American Beauty; identical with the parent in growth, foliage and general appearance, except the color, which is a deep, pure pink; the variety is exceedingly floriferous, and the flowers maintain their color until the petals fall. Name, Climbing Pink American Beauty.

As no objection has been received or filed to the registration of Lælio-cattleya Tuttleæ, by Mrs. B. B. Tuttle, of Naugatuck, Conn., same becomes complete.

GERANIUMS

It pays as well to keep up the quality of your Geranium stock as of any other flower you grow. The scrubs left over from the bedding season are not fit to propagate your next season's stock from. We have some thirty thousand vigorous young plants in 2-inch pots, propagated late for lining out. They are a real bargain at $2.50 per 100, $20.00 per 1000. We have

HARCOURT—White	CASTRIES—Cerise	RICARD—Scarlet
POITEVINE—Salmon	BARNEY—Cerise	MARVEL—Deep Red
PRESILLY—Rose	DECORATOR—Scarlet	NUTT—Crimson

We still have some fine 4-inch Vincas at $8.00 per 100, $70.00 per 1000. Speak quick, they are going fast.

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

Up to Saturday of last week, the temperature far exceeded the average for the month of July and resulted in bringing into the market unlimited quantities of stock, which gave the wholesalers plenty of everything, and to spare. Local stock reached the market in good condition, but the shipped stock suffered. Sweet peas came in melted; few were fit for sale. The southern storage peonies were badly affected. There were, however, quantities of fine stock from near home that more than supplied the demand. The unusual quantity of good peonies hurt the sale of lilies. Roses arrived in such quantities that the wholesalers selected the best to fill orders, throwing away the poorer grades and those that the heat forced open. Plantsmen did well, but they still have plenty of stock left to take care of those who are late in getting their planting done on account of the late season.

The retail stores report a good Memorial day trade for cut flowers. Some, however, say it is not as good as last year, owing to the extremely hot weather, but generally they were well satisfied.

Various Notes.

Pittsburgh has built a new market on Duquesne way, but has not been able to get the gardeners to take hold of it. May 30 another effort was made and Miss Carrie Jordan, of the old market, was the first to open a flower stand. She was joined later by a few gardeners. By next Saturday it is hoped to have the market going right.

Miss Alice Fuchs, daughter of J. J. Fuchs, the south side florist, was married June 1.

The business of the Colonial Floral Co., which has been located at 3610 Forbes street, with the Haller bakery, now is being conducted by the Iroquois Flower Shop. Miss Catherine Sauers, an accomplished florist and an expert in making up corsage bouquets and floral designs, is in charge.

Earl Lutz, of Monessen, Pa., who formerly was in the retail business and was compelled to discontinue on account of failing health, died Saturday, May 30. Clarke.

Chas. W. Johnson, Sec'y.

BLIGHT ON VERBENAS.

Can you tell me what is the matter with the enclosed verbena leaves? What can I do to save them?

L. M. S.

The verbena leaves seemed to be affected by a fungoid disease. I would advise spraying the plants once a week for a few weeks with Bordeaux mixture, Fungine, or one of the special anti-fungus preparations. This should help clean out the trouble. Spray in the evening. Use a fine spray nozzle and be sure to wet every part of the foliage.

CYCLAMEN.

200,000 GIANT FLOWERING CYCLAMEN SEEDLINGS AND BLOOMING PLANTS.

For the last 16 years we have selected three-fourths of our seed-bearing cyclamen stock before Xmas, to assure early blooming plants, and claim the finest commercial strain in this country; no fizzle of many so-called English varieties. Our aim is strong growers that don't have to be petted to be grown into a choice salable plant—a well built, five-petaled flower (many of them at one time), with well marked foliage; every plant an ideal, a prize winner. Received first prize at the Cleveland show and first and second at Toledo, early November, when blooming cyclamen were scarce.

STRONG AUGUST SOWN SEEDLINGS, once transplanted, $3.50 per 100; $30.00 per 1000.

Cash with order. Cultural directions with all orders.

PLANTLIFE

PLANTLIFE has several advantages over liquid insecticides on the market. Containing refined tobacco dust it can be used to mix with the soil, acting as an excellent fertilizer, at the same time destroying worms and insects in the ground before they have a chance to reach the plant.

PLANTLIFE has been found very effective in ridding greenhouses of insects by dusting on plants. When dry, use for dusting about once a week.

Put up in bulk for greenhouse men; in packages for retail trade.

Bailey's Standard Cyclopedia of Horticulture.

First volume just off the press. Remaining volumes will be issued as soon as possible. The following are a few of the features to be found in this new work:

KEY TO IDENTIFICATION OF PLANTS.

This is a device to enable one to find the name of a plant. The name thus found is quickly referred to under its alphabetical location, where full information will be found in regard to it.

SYNOPSIS OF PLANT KINGDOM.

This is one of the most important features of the new edition. It constitutes a general running account of the classes, orders and groups of plants, with a brief sketch or characterization of 215 of the leading families comprising those that yield practically all the cultivated plants. These family descriptions give the botanical characters and the number of genera and species and the ranges.

THE GLOSSARY.

This is an analysis of all technical terms that are used in the work and in similar works.

TRANSLATION AND PRONUNCIATION OF LATIN NAMES.

In Volume I is inserted a list of between 2,000 and 3,000 Latin words used as species—names of plants, giving the English equivalent or translation and the pronunciation.

ILLUSTRATIONS.

There are 24 colored plates, 96 full-page sepia halftones, and more than 4,000 engravings which serve as guides in the text.

This work consists of six large quarto volumes, more than 3,600 pages, 500 collaborators, approximately 4,000 genera, 15,000 species and 40,000 plant names. Price, $6.00 per volume; $36.00 per set. Can be paid for one volume at a time.

The Recognized Standard Insecticide

W. N. Craig writes in Florists' Review (March 5, 1914): "Scale on greenhouse plants is not easy to get rid of, as doses which are sufficiently strong to kill the scale will usually disfigure the plants at the same time. I have found APHINE a first-class remedy for scale, and if you will apply it according to directions you will kill and loosen the scales, although they will not fall off, as will some other pests."

It will only require the hose to wash off dead scale.

Greenhouse Heating.

Subscribers are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

COAL MEN ARE HOPEFUL.

The most noticeable characteristic of the latest reports from the coal dealers is a general tone of hopefulness—a slight atmosphere of cheerfulness, if nothing more substantial. There does not seem to be much improvement in the actual, present conditions of business, but there is some improvement in the outlook. As far as the present state of the market is concerned, the most gladsome statements do not seem to amount to much more than the philosopher's last grain of comfort, "It might be worse," but future prospects seem to contain real reason for encouragement.

It is admitted that "the coal trade last week suffered an intensification of midsummer dullness, and on several occasions current prices were in danger of being shattered and the whole year's price policy was more or less in jeopardy because of a desire to get some business," but the less doleful news is added that, "except in a few cases, actual breaks in prices were avoided." It is admitted that "bituminous trade, the country over, is extremely dull because of the light demand for steam coal. As a rule, bituminous production is at about fifty per cent of capacity. This, on the whole, is about ten per cent below what is customary at this time of year." But that somber account of the situation is followed by the assertion that business in general, which has been at an extremely low level, now shows sure signs of an upward tendency. Great

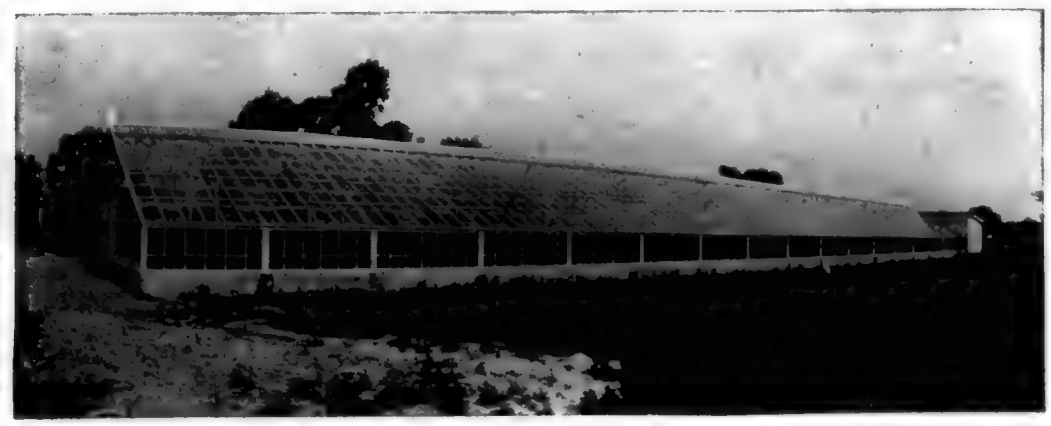
The President Tells Why We Know All We Know About Heating Fittings and Equipment

DID you know that the oldest concern in the greenhouse business used to come to us to heat their houses? Well, it's so. When they went into heating greenhouses, then we went into building greenhouses.

Hitchings were pioneers in the greenhouse heating business. Sixty-five or more years ago we started. If any one knows about greenhouse heating, we do.



With the exception of a few valves and wrought pipe, there are mighty few things used in greenhouse heating that we do not make ourselves.

We carry any number of kinds of fittings to fit every possible need and purpose. We cast our own fittings and all our 3½-inch pipe and make all the valves to fit it.

We have a Trouble Man who can help you to get out of your heating troubles, and keep you from getting in them.

Have your heating overhauled right now and get that off your mind. Don't dilly-dally around until next Fall and then expect us to drop everything and rush to your help. We will if we can, but we can't promise we can.

In anything about greenhouse heating you can depend on depending on Hitchings—and we "go anywhere for business."

commercial concerns, it is said, which have cautiously refrained from spending money in increasing their supply of goods, now find their warehouses empty and must replenish their stocks. And the most hopeful sign of all, it is said, is that "the crops all over the country are in extraordinarily fine condition. Unless something most unfortunate happens, this country will have this year the largest crops in its history by a big margin. If that should come, as now seems most likely, every other industrial condition would be in such shape as to respond instantly to the improvement thus indicated."

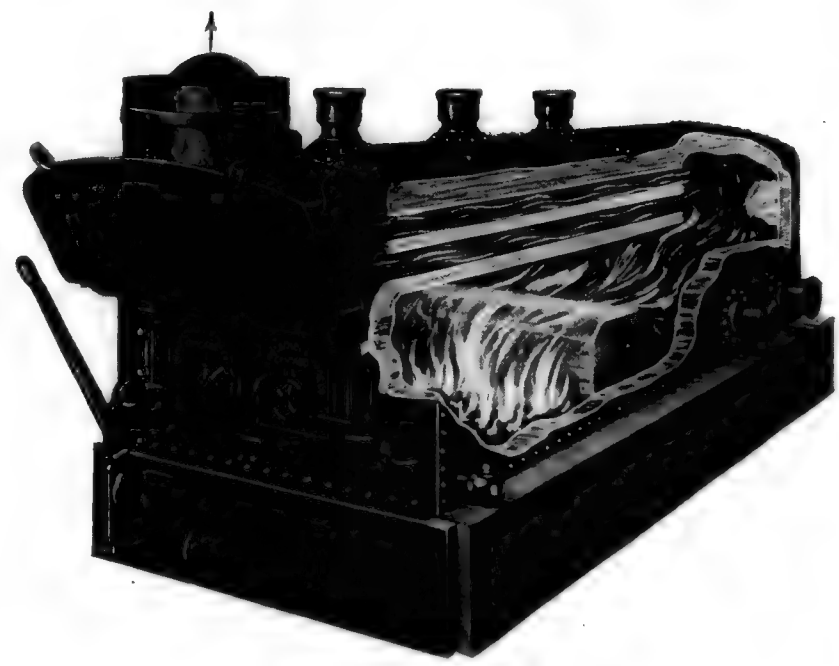
In the same hopeful mood the Black Diamond gives its views with special reference to Chicago and vicinity, as follows: "The technical situation of the smokeless market has been improved within the last week. At this time a week ago it was not sure whether the circular price was going to hold either on spot business or on contract. There was so little buying by the retail dealers and others that off-grade coals, sold at a big reduction from circular price, about dominated the market. This seemed to establish the market on an extremely low level, at which $1 per ton was a fair price and 90 cents per ton at the mines on mine-run coal not an uncommon price. These low prices were due to an accumulation of consignment coal which had to be moved and the situation was relieved by the withdrawal of that consignment coal in large quantities from this market."

PIPING TWO OHIO HOUSES.

Enclosed you will find a sketch of a greenhouse, 26x50, running north and south. The height of the house to the ridge is fourteen and one-half feet. The side walls are six feet high and consist of two feet of concrete and four feet of glass. The gable ends also are glass, but the north end is partly protected by another building. At present we are heating the house with two flues, one under each side bench and running the entire length of the house. The fireplaces are in a pit under the level of the benches. However, we contemplate building another house, a duplicate of the present one and standing alongside it, and we are planning to install a hot water system of heating. Will you kindly state what horsepower of boiler will be needed for the two houses? Please state, also, the right number and size of pipes and the best arrangement of them. The distance from the floor of the present pit to the eave plates is eight feet. Can this pit be used for the boiler to stand in?



We expect to have the two houses connected by taking out the west wall of the present house, thus converting them, practically, into one house, with a total area of 52x50 feet. At some future time, also, these houses may be extended to a length of eighty feet, but we wish to be as economical as possible at present. We should like to be able to keep a night temperature of 55 to 60 degrees. In this part of Ohio the thermometers outdoors have occasionally registered from 15 to 22 degrees below zero. H. B.

For the two houses 26x50 feet, each of which will have four feet of glass in one wall, not far from 1,200 square feet of radiation will be required, and the boiler should have a rating of 1,500 square feet of hot water radiation.

To heat these two houses, I would suggest that 2½-inch flow pipes be run about three feet below each ridge and also upon the plate of the outside wall of each house. There should be a fifth pipe upon the middle wall, between the houses. These can be extended and will answer for houses eighty feet in length. Use six 2-inch return pipes upon each of the outer walls and connect six returns to each of the flow pipes under the ridges of the houses. To the flow pipe on the center wall con-

The Market.

Now that Memorial day is a thing of the past, the market will return to normal conditions and there will be no holiday sales for some time to come. Memorial day, taken as a whole, was not at all satisfactory, as the quality of stock in general was not up to standard and the sales were not as large as they should have been. The wholesalers found it the hardest week in which to do business that they have experienced in some time. Local orders were taken care of with some degree of comfort, but it was extremely difficult to find stock fit for shipping to other cities.

Carnations were affected by the extreme heat during the earlier part of the week and were soft. They were much poorer than last year and, as a consequence, prices were lower. At the end of the week carnations picked up wonderfully and on Memorial day the stock was exceptionally fine. This, however, was too late to do any shipping and it seems a pity that the stock was not as fine earlier in the week, when it was needed badly. There was a large supply, brought on by the unusually hot weather. There was an abundance of roses, which the trade was unable to handle in a satisfactory manner, although the stock was fairly good throughout the week. Lilies were a drug on the market and, although the stock was good, large quantities had to be dumped, owing to the enormous supply. Sweet peas, while in abundant supply, showed the effects of the extreme heat. There were some good ones, however, which found a ready market. Tulips were out of the market, as the heavy rains and hot sun spoiled the crop entirely. Iris was in fine condition and in good supply, but met with comparatively little demand. Peonies were soft, owing to the heat, and some large shipments were received during the week. The sale of these was large, but did not come up to last year.

Plants had their usual good sale and the returns for these were satisfactory in the main. Geraniums are scarce. Among some of the out-of-town trade the idea seems to be prevalent that they can send in plant orders and have them picked out, packed and shipped at an hour's notice. The trade does not seem to realize that it requires more time to ship plants than cut flowers, as the plants require better packing and are usually in houses on the outskirts of the city. A little more time on this class of orders would insure more satisfactory results.

THEY GROW LIKE MAGIC

When you use our specially prepared Magic Brand Fertilizer.

All our fertilizers are as carefully prepared as a chemist compounds a prescription.

They are made so every atom does business.

You can't get away from the fact that quality "brings home the bacon." If you are raising flowers for profit you must feed them a properly balanced fertilizer. Our Magic Brand of fertilizer is properly balanced to meet the requirements of all soils and conditions, containing in its composition all the basic salts that constitute mud or soil.

Let us show you what it will do for you in the way of increasing your profits by cutting down the cost of growing.

What all flower growers desire is value for their money. Our Magic Brand is composed of organic and vegetable matter, and does not contain one ounce of make-weight or filler.

We are prepared to supply the trade at all times with any special mixture desired.

Scotch Soot

Where there is a house that is just full of buds almost ready to show color, nothing will turn better color into the flowers than a little soot, that can be scattered over the benches before watering. The amount applied should not be excessive, as the soot is very strong and may damage some of the foliage somewhat. Apply just enough to blacken the surface of the soil in the benches and let it go at that. Better a little oftener than too much all at once.

We offer the genuine in original cwt. sacks, at $2.75 per 112 lbs.; $12.50 per 560 lbs.

COLUMBUS, O.

The Market.

Trade for Memorial day was rather light, as there were quantities of outdoor flowers to be had. The number of peonies on the market was a surprise, as the first part of the week it looked as though there would be few. It turned out that there were wagon loads of them, offered at any price that could be obtained. It shows that the number of plants has been greatly increased. Stock of all kinds was plentiful and it was a hard matter to clean up in the way we like to do on a day like that. Carnations were quite plentiful, but the quality was away below what it was a week or so ago. The extremely hot weather had its effect on all flowers, but it showed especially on sweet peas and carnations. Roses were abundant and a large part of them, especially Killarney, popped open and were hard to move at any price.

The plant trade has been heavy and orders that came in late last week had to lie over to this week. It will take at least ten days to get caught up. The sale of geraniums has been heavy, as has that of salvias. A great many streets have their garden and flower clubs, which have been doing good work. It looks as though it will be a permanent thing for them to get together and plan the work for spring planting. J. M.

GLEN COVE, N. Y.

The monthly meeting of the Nassau County Horticultural Society was held May 13, at Pembroke hall, with President H. Gaut in the chair. Prizes for the society's fall shows were received from the following: J. M. Thorburn & Co., John Wilk, Cottage Gardens Co., Pierson U-Bar Co., Lord & Burnham Co., Titus & Bowne, Kohler Bros., F. B. Edmonds and C. A. Coffin, and Mrs. F. S. Smithers presented a set of valuable books for competition. There were two petitions for active membership.

Judges for the monthly exhibits were J. Adler, J. MacDonald and J. F. Johnstone. Awards were made as follows: Twelve Darwin tulips mixed, H. Gaut, first; vase of flowering shrub, F. Honeyman, first; three lettuces, J. McCarthy, first; cultural certificates to H. Gaut for a pot of clarkia and to J. Robinson for a pot of lilium; honorable mention to A. Fournier and F. Honeyman for a vase of Darwin tulips.

S. J. Trepess, J. F. Johnstone and E. Westlake were appointed as the local committee of the N. A. G. The annual rose show was postponed to Tuesday, June 16. Mr. Gommersall gave an interesting and instructive address on hardy gardens and perennials, which was heartily applauded. The exhibits for the next meeting, June 10, will be twelve largest strawberries, twelve hybrid perpetual roses in one variety and twelve peonies mixed.

HOUSTON, TEX.

Preparations are being made for the state flower show to be held here next November. Although this is to be the first ever held in this state, from present indications it will be a big affair and draw a large attendance. Every branch of the industry is to be represented and exhibits are promised by florists all over the state, to compete for the prizes on the big premium list. The local clubs in the various cities are taking particular interest and are doing their share to make the show a success. The committee decided to hold it the last three days of the carnival, as this will be the time to get the biggest results.

The Houston Florists' Club met Monday night, May 18, and discussed several matters in connection with the flower show. An amendment to the constitution was passed, giving a broader scope to the club's work.

June weddings give promise of a large business for H. H. Kuhlman, from the number of orders booked. Gladiolus is selling quite well and profitably. Mr. Kuhlman is contemplating many improvements at his nursery grounds and plans to erect a large range of glass soon.

Present business is good at the Forestdale Nurseries and John J. Boyle, the manager, reports the outlook for June good, as wedding work will be large. Mrs. Hohenke, who has been turning out work for eighteen years, has a wide reputation in this line.

Several changes are being made at the Brazos Hotel Greenhouses, and the manager, Mr. Hewitt, and his grower expect to have stock in fine shape by fall.

EVANSVILLE, IND.

The Market.

Business for Memorial day was fully up to the usual volume, if not better. The weather was fine, except that it was too warm. Considerable funeral work had to be done at the same time and it kept everyone on the go. There were quantities of outdoor flowers in the market. The quality would have been better if it had not been for the dry, hot weather. Peonies, however, were good and there were plenty of them. Roses and carnations were of fair quality and in good supply.

Various Notes.

June was the twenty-sixth day without rain.

The Gateway to the South.

The roses and other flowers in the gardens cut a tremendous hole into the Memorial day business this year. The midsummer weather that lasted through the entire week forced all garden flowers into full bloom and the people used these instead of patronizing the florists. Wholesale prices started out at the usual Memorial day level, but before more than a few hours of May 29 had passed had dropped to fifty per cent of the opening figure and by the time the afternoon was around buyers' prices governed. It was simply a case of getting whatever the wholesaler could. After the day's business was over great quantities of stock still were on hand, with no possible outlet. The growers were greatly to blame. Hardly any of them would give the wholesalers any definite idea of the prospective size of their cut. All insisted that their shipments would be light. The result was that the wholesalers booked orders only from regular customers and turned down many prospective buyers. The receipts turned out to be a half dozen or more times the quantity that was anticipated. Furthermore, the extremely hot weather made the handling and shipping of flowers rather difficult and quite a few lots of blooms that came in were absolutely unsalable. One florist says he never saw a Memorial day like this one in the thirty-eight years of his experience in the trade.

The market this week is so glutted with stock of all kinds that it is utterly impossible to predict for it for the balance of the week. The demand for cut ferns is good. New eastern ferns are in the market and are fine.

Various Notes.

The Florists' Club will meet Monday, June 8, at the usual place. The nomination of candidates for club offices and discussion of the annual outing will be in order.

Months, yes years, were spent in the studying out of the best types of structures for the various purposes intended, and the University of Illinois has what has been pronounced by those who know, the finest greenhouses for the purpose in the United States, if not in the entire world.

Hundreds of florists who attended the annual meeting of the joint Associations of Indiana and Illinois at Danville, went over in a body and saw for themselves and were convinced of the above statement—many of them said they did not know it was possible to build such structures.

PEONY SOCIETY MEETS

National organization holds its annual exhibition and business session at Chicago, scoring a success in spite of unfavorable weather

FOR the second time in the history of the organization the annual meeting of the American Peony Society was held at Chicago, June 9 and 10, in the Art Institute. Not since the second annual meeting of the society, in 1905, has the society held its meeting west of Ohio. To show that the west is not behind the east in the growing of the peony, three of the big Chicago peony growers put forth their best efforts and, in spite of weather that was anything but favorable, made an excellent display.

The weather was an important factor in this exhibition, and but for it the show would have been a much stronger one. The spring in this vicinity this year has not been to the liking of the peony growers. Until two or three weeks ago, the weather was unseasonably cold and held back everything. Then, in the space of a week, extremely hot weather came and lasted for a few days, to be succeeded by a temperature that called out overcoats again. The latter part of last week, however, saw a return to June temperature and since then the weather has become hotter each day. Under the scorching sun the peony buds popped out and one could almost see them opening in the field. Certain it is that blooms which were in the best of condition at the time of judging Tuesday afternoon were beyond their best by the time the hall was closed at 6 o'clock. The best of care could not keep stock in good shape when the thermometer registered 95 degrees in the shade.

The Exhibition.

It's an ill wind that blows nobody good, the saying goes, and it was just as true as ever at the time of this exhibition. The growers north of the city, who get the effects of the cool lake breezes, always are a few days later with their stock than are the growers to the south and west. The result was that some of the flowers were fresh from the field, whereas most of them had spent several days in cold storage. Peterson Nursery staged some magnificent blooms and carried off over half of the prizes awarded. Ten first prizes stand to its credit on thirteen entries, and in five classes Peterson Nursery made clean sweeps, out of a list of twenty-one classes for peonies open to commercial growers. Among those in the list of prize-winners of this grower that won special admiration were Avalanche, a truly beautiful pure white; Couronne d'Or, shown in splendid shape; Delachie, Eugenie Verdier and Livingstone. In the classes calling for a large display of blooms of one variety, the W. W. Barnard Co. was the principal, in some cases the only, exhibitor.

The growers outside the state faced not only the difficulty of transportation, but excessively hot weather. The combination of the two was enough to discourage anyone, and those who made the attempt deserve full credit for the showing they made. The collections of 100 named varieties by President B. H. Farr and E. A. Reeves drew much attention, and Martin Kohankie's fine vase of M. Jules Elie, which won first prize in its class, was an object of much admiration. A. P. Saunders, secretary of the society, brought some good stock from Clinton, N. Y., and did his part to fill the amateur classes, but was alone in this effort, as no other amateur entrant appeared.

The Arrangements.

The lack of amateur participants and the small number of the professional exhibitors—there were six—was due, according to some, to the lack of publicity given the show beforehand, especially in the public press. Be this as it may, the other arrangements were well taken care of by the representatives of the three organizations who were back of the undertaking, the American Peony Society, the Horticultural Society of Chicago and the Chicago Florists' Club. The judges appointed for the occasion were Thomas Wallis, of Rose Hill cemetery, Chicago; W. A. Rieman, of Vincennes, Ind., and Secretary A. P. Saunders, of Clinton, N. Y.

Peony exhibitors face disadvantages that members of the other flower societies do not have to contend with in their exhibitions, and the aid of cold storage to keep their blooms does not nearly offset these. The difference in locality of a score of miles may mean an appreciable difference in the blooming time, and while the exhibitors of greenhouse grown flowers may time their stock almost to the minute, the grower of peonies must depend to a large extent on chance. Frosts, the weather, etc., cannot be taken into account beforehand, however much they affect the final outcome. Then, too, shipping is usually a more hazardous undertaking with peonies than with other flowers, and one show, therefore, cannot draw competitors from so large a territory as an exhibition of another kind. Taking into account these difficulties which face peony exhibitors, an estimate of the Chicago show must prove it a success.

The Awards.

The awards in the classes open to commercial growers were as follows:

Collection of not less than 100 named varieties, one of each —B. H. Farr, Wyomissing, Pa., first; E. A. Reeves, Cleveland, O., second; no third.

Display of blooms, variety, quality and quantity to be considered—W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, third; no first or second.

Largest display of blooms of any one variety—Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago, first and second, on Duchesse de Nemours (Calot) and Charlemagne respectively; W. W. Barnard Co., third, on Queen Victoria.

Vase of 100 blooms arranged for effect, usual accessories permitted—W. W. Barnard Co., second, on Isabella Karlitsky; no first or third.

Collection of fifty double, in twenty named varieties—B. H. Farr, first; no second or third.

Collection of twenty-five named varieties, double, one bloom of each—Peterson Nursery, Chicago, first; Vaughan's Seed Store, second; no third.

Fifty blooms, white, double, one variety—Peterson Nursery, first, on Avalanche; Peterson Nursery, second, on Baroness Schroeder; Vaughan's Seed Store, third, on M. Dupont.

Fifty blooms, light pink or pink and cream, double, one variety—Peterson Nursery, first, on Couronne d'Or; Peterson Nursery, second, on Albert Crousse; Peterson Nursery, third, on Eugenie Verdier.

Fifty blooms, dark pink, double, one variety—Martin Kohankie, Painesville, O., first, on M. Jules Elie; Vaughan's Seed Store, second, on Jules Calot; Peterson Nursery, third, on Mme. Geissler.

Fifty blooms, red or crimson, with stamens, double, one variety—Peterson Nursery, first, on Delachie; Peterson Nursery, second, on M. Krelage; Peterson Nursery, third, on Pierre Dessert.

Fifty blooms, red or crimson, without stamens, double, one variety—Peterson Nursery, first, on Felix Crousse; Vaughan's Seed Store, second, on Augustin d'Hour; W. W. Barnard Co., third, on Rubra Triumphans.

Fifty blooms, one variety, any combination of two or more shades, double—Vaughan's Seed Store, first, on Jeanne d'Arc; Peterson Nursery, second, on Princess Beatrice; W. W. Barnard Co., third, on Magnifica.

Collection of twelve distinct named varieties, double, one bloom of each—Vaughan's Seed Store, first; no second or third.

Twelve blooms, white, double, one variety—Peterson Nursery, first, on Couronne d'Or; Peterson Nursery, second, on M. Dupont; Peterson Nursery, third, on Avalanche.

Twelve blooms, light pink or pink and cream, double, one variety—Peterson Nursery, first, on Eugenie Verdier in clusters; Peterson Nursery, second, on Claire Dubois; Peterson Nursery, third, on Eugenie Verdier.

Twelve blooms, dark pink, double, one variety—Peterson Nursery, first, on Livingstone; Vaughan's Seed Store, second, on M. Barral; Peterson Nursery, third, on M. Jules Elie.

Twelve blooms, red or crimson, with stamens, double, one variety—Peterson Nursery, first, on M. Krelage; Peterson Nursery, second, on Delachel; Peterson Nursery, third, on Karl Rosenfield.

Twelve blooms, red or crimson, without stamens, double, one variety—Peterson Nursery, first, on Directeur Aubry; Peterson Nursery, second, on General Davoust; E. A. Reeves, third, on Modeste Guerin.

Twelve blooms, one variety, any combination of two or more shades, double—Vaughan's Seed Store, second, on La Tulipe; no first or third.

Collection of hardy perennials, other than peonies—Vaughan's Seed Store, first; no second or third.

The Amateur Classes.

The entries in the eleven classes open to amateurs were conspicuous by their absence. In spite of the generous premium list prepared for them, there was only one contestant, A. P. Saunders, of Clinton, N. Y., secretary of the American Peony Society. He, however, had only three prize-winning entries, and these, on account of the hot weather and the long distance they had to travel, could not be ranked high. The awards made in these classes were as follows:

Collection of blooms, variety, quality and quantity to be considered—A. P. Saunders, third; no first or second.

Collection of ten named varieties, double, three of each—A. P. Saunders, third; no first or second.

The Business Session.

The business meeting of the society was held at 11 a. m., Wednesday morning, June 10, in the Art Institute, with the president and secretary in their places. After the minutes had been read and approved, President Farr delivered an extemporaneous address, dwelling briefly on the points he considered of most importance to members of the society. He spoke first of the creditable showing which had been made under exceedingly unfavorable weather conditions and then went on to show how strong the society was, not only financially, but in the loyalty and constancy of its members, who have rarely dropped away of their own accord.

Inasmuch as his idea of the object of the society is, he said, to define the varieties of the society's flower, to the advantage of both buyer and seller of roots, the manual which is now in preparation will be the big achievement of the organization. This, it was planned last year, was to have been ready by this meeting, but those who are working at it came to the conclusion that the best results could be obtained by taking a longer time, and so the publication has been postponed for six months or so.

In connection with this work of the society, the president spoke of the planting that is planned at the grounds of the United States government at Arlington, near the national capital. This will give an opportunity for studying the different varieties in the same fashion as at Ithaca, N. Y., at present, but in a different latitude. If such grounds can be kept under the control of the society and out of politics, it will prove, the members present later asserted by a rising vote, an undertaking well worth the society's support.

In closing, President Farr dwelt on the need of popularizing the peony and educating the public to its more extensive use. Instead of being merely a Memorial day flower, it should be used for decorative purposes throughout its season. A fuller discussion of this point came up later in connection with the publicity committee's report, or rather failure to report, and W. A. Rieman told how the peony had grown in popularity at Vincennes, Ind., while Dr. Knapp, of Evansville, Ind., lamented the public's lack of appreciation of it in his town.

Publicity for the Peony.

Various methods were suggested to bring the peony into wider use as a cut flower and in the garden. W. A. Peterson suggested the society's getting up a set of lantern slides with a lecture, to be presented before women's clubs, schools and any other organizations which would pay the express charges on the outfit and for any breakage that might occur. In this connection it was suggested that the society offer prizes at other shows besides its own, inasmuch as a single peony show can draw competitors from so small a territory. This, together with other proposals, was discussed without definite action being taken.

Publicity for the peony led to publicity for the society and the secretary, at his own request, was authorized to draw up a circular setting forth the aims and work of the society and giving an invitation to those interested in this flower to join. Copies of this circular are to be sent in stamped envelopes to members of the society, to be directed by them to those whom they think likely to join.

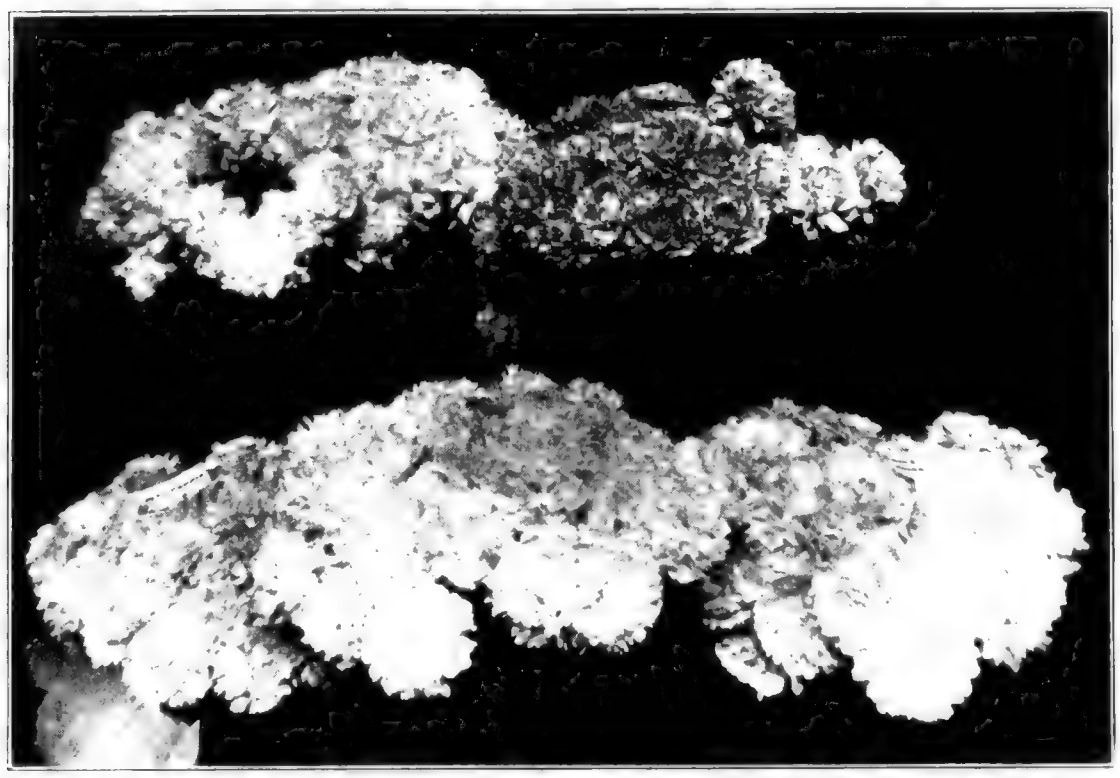
Treasurer's Report.

The treasurer's report, which was forwarded by mail to the secretary and read by him, in the absence of Mr. Humphreys, showed a balance of $1,128.30 from last year and an income from dues, etc., during the year, of $369.50, making the total receipts $1,497.80. Disbursements included $17.64 for vases at the Cleveland show and $85.20 for medals and the die, leaving in the treasury $1,394.96, to which may be added $361 due from members for dues and admission fees, giving the present assets of the society a total of $1,755.96.

After the judges' report had been read by the secretary, the election of officers resulted in the present incumbents being continued for another year, and E. A. Reeves, the retiring director, being chosen to succeed himself for another three years. The fact that the officers were in the midst of the work on the peony manual was considered good reason for continuing the present regime until the publication of the volume.

New Members.

Twenty new members were admitted, raising the total membership to 113. All the committees were reappointed for the ensuing year, save the publicity committee; this now consists of C. S. Harrison, of York, Neb.; W. A. Rieman, of Vincennes, Ind., and W. A. Peterson, of Chicago.



The discussion of the question of the next meeting place brought forth a hearty invitation from the Twin Cities, represented personally by D. W. C. Ruff, of St. Paul. Upon the statement by the president that the eastern members expected the show in their section after two years west of the Alleghenies, the matter was placed in the hands of the officers and directors for decision at a later date. The important business concluded, those present then adjourned to the Auditorium cafe for the consideration of any minor affairs which might demand their attention.

The Visitors.

The attendance of the trade from out of the city was almost too small to be mentionable. Railway trains are not the most comfortable place to be when the thermometer hovers around 95 degrees in the shade, and it takes something tremendous to attract anyone but peony enthusiasts to go any distance in such weather. The enthusiasts, however, can be counted on, and they were there. Those in attendance among the trade who were noted up to the hour of going to press were as follows:

Cushman, E. A., Sylvania, O.
Farr, B. H., Wyomissing, Pa.
Franken, A., Deerfield, Ill.
Knapp, A. J., Evansville, Ind.
Kohankie, Martin, Painesville, O.

CO-OPERATIVE ADVERTISING.

The following is from Newspaperdom, a publishers' and advertising agencies' trade paper, published in New York:

"The Philadelphia Retail Florists' Association has been running some strikingly clever advertising in the Philadelphia newspapers for more than a year, the idea having been proposed by Theodore E. Ash, an advertising man, who has been writing the copy. It is the first campaign of its kind, but has already been taken up in other cities with excellent results. Usually a live advertising manager of a newspaper singles out the livest florist and coöperates with him in organizing a retail florists' association, if the town does not already have one. It is fairly easy then to induce the other florists to make small appropriations, as each shares alike in the benefits arising from this form of collective publicity.

"Newspaperdom is of the opinion that the national distributors of seeds and bulbs could be induced to contribute to a fund to advertise flowers in a national way. There seems to be no reason why the excellent advertisements of the Philadelphia Retail Florists' Association or advertisements of a similar nature should not appear in the newspapers of every city in the country. We commend the idea to some up-to-the-minute advertising agency.

"To one who has been abroad, America's seeming lack of interest in flowers is almost appalling. On the other side of the water the great abundance of flowers in the home, in the cafes, and even in and about public buildings of all kinds, is quite impressive. The flower markets of Paris and London and in many of the German cities are worth going miles to see, but one readily understands why they are so generally appreciated if one watches the buyers carefully. The old world people have a passion for beautiful growing things that always surprises an American, but more than that, it makes a flower enthusiast of the tourist, and his enthusiasm greatly increases as he makes comparison on his arrival home."

WHO WILL HAUL FLOWERS?

The American has been awarded the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific railway's express contract, effective July 1. This contract covers a mileage of 8,042 miles, and is the most important of the seventeen contracts hitherto held by the United States express, which recently voted to cease operation.

The contracts which have been reassigned to the American to date are for the Lehigh Valley, 1,188 miles; Philadelphia & Reading, 1,301 miles; Kanawaha & Michigan, 170 miles; Marietta, Columbus & Cleveland, 48 miles; New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, and the Louisiana Southern, 334 miles; Beaumont, Sour Lake & Western, 118 miles; Orange & Northwestern, 62 miles; Central Railroad of New Jersey, 529 miles; and after July 1 the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern will be occupied by the American exclusively, the United States heretofore having had through rights. The mileage operated by the American Express Co., including the mileage obtained under its newly acquired contracts, is about 63,000 miles.

The contracts formerly held by the United States and recently awarded to Wells Fargo & Co. are for the St. Louis & San Francisco system (except the Birmingham-Kansas City line), 4,200 miles; Chicago & Eastern Illinois and the Evansville & Terre Haute, 1,274 miles; Baltimore & Ohio and the Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern, 4,531 miles, and the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton, 1,015 miles. The Southern will operate over the Kansas City, Memphis & Birmingham division of the Frisco line. As yet the Pere Marquette railway, 2,330 miles, and the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western, 999 miles, have not reassigned their express contracts.

It is understood that the contracts call for the payment by the express companies of forty-five per cent of their receipts on eastern lines and fifty per cent of the receipts on western lines.

MORTGAGE INCLUDED CUTTINGS.

When a florist or nurseryman mortgages his growing stock, the question may arise, as it once did in a Maine case, whether cuttings from the plants or shrubs mortgaged, after being set out, remain subject to the mortgage. This question was answered in the affirmative in the case referred to. (Bryant vs. Pennell, 61 Maine Supreme Judicial Court Reports 108.) Plaintiff mortgaged his stock under a chattel mortgage which included "all the stock of Elmwood nursery, consisting principally of plants, shrubs and trees.'' In construing this mortgage, the court said:

''By virtue of his mortgage, Sparrow acquired title to the property mortgaged. The plants and trees were included in it. The cuttings are from the plants. The portions severed, before severance, were subject to the mortgage. They are none the less so after severance. The mortgagee loses no rights, because after severance they remained in the same greenhouse in a condition for further growth and development.'' S.

WHEN TO GATHER PANSY SEED.

Enclosed you will find a few pods of pansy seed. Would it be advisable to gather the seed at this stage of development, or should I let it ripen a little more? I notice that when the pods open, a great deal of the seed is lost.
E. W. C.

The pansy seed you sent was in excellent condition. You are picking the pods all right. Lay the pods on sheets of paper to dry. It is best to pick the pods just before they start cracking.

FIRST AIDS FOR IVY POISON.

It has been ascertained by those of the medical profession that the poison from the three-leaved ivy, which is so painful to those who are not for some mysterious reason immune from its effects, is primarily an irritating oil produced by the poisonous species of rhus. Bacteria may make the results worse if they happen to attack the skin after the rhus poison has destroyed its integrity, but the oil is the primary cause of the poisoning, and the cure is the removal of the oil before it has gone far with its work.

First aids for ivy poisoning, with this object, are given in the May 2 issue of the Country Gentleman, by Charles H. Lerrigo, M. D. A simple but quite effective remedy if applied at once after poisoning is scrubbing the affected parts with hot soap-suds and a brush. Laundry soap is preferred, as its alkaline qualities seem better to dislodge the oil, and the use of the words ''scrubbing'' and ''brush'' means that the action must be vigorous as well as prompt. The ivy poison is an oil or tar, and it takes more than merely bathing to remove it. If the exposed surfaces—hands, wrists, forearms, face and neck—are thus treated at the first opportunity after exposure, the poisoning will in all likelihood be prevented.

If, however, in spite of, or for lack of, this precaution, the poison has gained so much ground that one feels the burning of the skin, there is still time for ''first aids.'' The scrubbing with soap-suds and brush is to be continued, but with further treatment. A mixture of equal parts of alcohol and water should be used to sponge the affected parts. This mixture should be used not merely enough to dissolve the poison and spread it over new places, but liberally enough both to dissolve it and wash it away.

There is also the further treatment of the potassium permanganate solution. The affected parts should be liberally bathed in a hot solution. If the skin is broken, a one-per-cent solution should be used; if the skin is not broken, the strength of the solution may be greater. A one-per-cent solution is about a scant level teaspoonful of the crystals to a pint of hot water. Potassium permanganate is, it should be remembered, itself a poison, and repeated applications should only be made with a physician's advice. It should also be noted that the potassium permanganate solution will stain the skin, but the stain is not permanent and not nearly so disfiguring as the poison eruption. Those who are too late for these first aids, or who have taken the poison into the system, through a cut or otherwise, have the physician to look to.

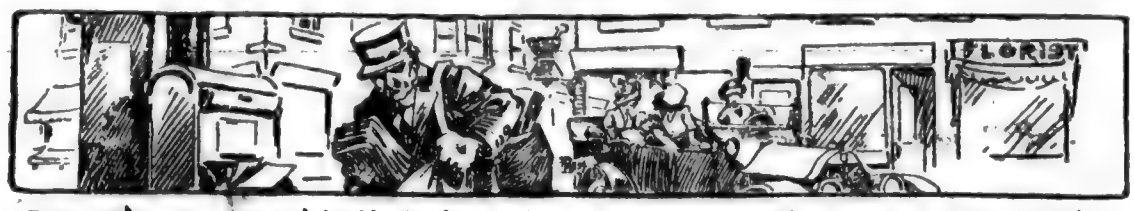
REX BEGONIAS.

What kind of soil and care must I give to Rex begonias to get the best results? G. W.

These plants succeed particularly well in a light but moderately rich soil. One consisting of two parts fibrous loam, one part leaf-mold and one part well decayed cow or horse manure, with some sand added, will suit them to a nicety, although they will grow in almost any good soil. These begonias must have a shaded position; the leaves will scorch in the full sun. They enjoy spraying overhead in warm weather, and, when well established in pots, can be fed once a week with liquid manure. They grow well outdoors in summer under the shade of trees, if mulched and kept moist at the roots. C. W.



SLIME ON SOIL IN POTS.

What brings on the oily substance that forms on the soil around cyclamens and other house plants? How can I prevent it? G. W.

This may be due to the nature of either the water or the soil. Use a pointed stick and keep the soil stirred up. If your soil is the cause, some lime added to the compost will help to correct it, but do not add manure at the same time, as the lime will release much of the ammonia into the atmosphere. It is necessary to remove this slime from the surface of the soil, as the plants will not thrive with it.

Johnston, R. I.—Hitchings & Co. have the contract for the two greenhouses at Olney Williams' range, each 110 feet long, which will replace two old houses.

Baltimore, Md.—A fire in the greenhouse of the Broadway Florist's Shop, at 231 South Broadway, caused a loss of about $500 May 27 before it was discovered by John F. Krauss, one of the owners, and quickly extinguished by members of the fire department.

LOCATION COUNTS.

The Memorial day business of the R. & S. Flower Store, here in Missoula, Mont., increased more than 200 per cent over last year. We were located on the main thoroughfare of the city last year, but moved to the street on which the electric light works, water works and postoffice are located, and took possession of a store on the same side of the street. The street is traveled by all residents of the city at some time or other. The United States land office is also located on the same side of the street, and this brings in all the easterners who have settled on homesteads within a radius of 150 miles. Our shipping business has increased to three times its volume in previous years. We pay one-half again as much rent as we did in our former location, but our business now justifies the difference. There is a flower store on the opposite side of the street that has been located there for five years. The stock carried in it is first-class, but the people come on the busy side of the street. Though the season was advanced one month by the mild weather and outdoor flowers were plentiful, our force of five salesmen were kept busy waiting on customers all day on the Friday and Saturday preceding Memorial day. Peonies, lilacs, roses, carnations, stocks and snapdragons were cleaned up completely.

I would advise all florists to get a location where the people pass.

THE IRIS COMING TO ITS OWN.

I am glad that the iris is coming to its own and that Dykes has got out his splendid work, "The Genus Iris." It is expensive, but then it will be a delightful garden of flowers in itself. In blooming time there is nothing like the irises. They combine the beauty of earth and sky; they weave into their robes the hues of the sunset and all the tints, colors and shadings of the rainbow. Monsignor is an image of splendor; it heads the list; it is large and brilliant, the strong stem staggering under the weight of the massive flower. There is Mithras, in garments of gold and purple. Cypriana superba is a queen. Perfection is resplendent in shimmering purple. Fairy scents all the air with the odor of peach blossoms. Many of the irises are exceedingly fragrant and this adds greatly to their value.

But you have got to drag Miss Prejudice out of that swamp. Her opinions, based on sheer ignorance, are dense and immovable. Suppose you sell her some iris blooms; no matter how beautiful they are, she comes at you with glaring eyes, exclaiming, "You a florist! You, who sell me nothing but flags, such as grow in the swamps back home!" You show her the beauty of them and she says again, "Nothing but flags!" Yet there are but few of the great iris family that could live in water a week; it would kill them. Most of them need dry land. I found one—a beauty, too—growing on rocky and high places in the Black Hills and it is doing beautifully here.

Let us have a campaign of publicity. I have Dykes' smaller work on the iris, and the large one, I am sure, must give both information and satisfaction.

AWARDING A CONTRACT.

Has any reader of The Review had an experience similar to mine? Until three years ago there were two of us in the florists' business in this town of about 3,000 inhabitants, and our cemetery board awarded to each of us the planting of two beds in the cemetery, having the same beds year after year. Special stock was grown for this purpose and was charged for by us at retail prices for stock up to 3-inch. On stock above that size we allowed a reduction of 5 cents to 20 cents per plant, as one bed was a good advertisement. These plants, where flowering p'ants were used, had from one to three flowers. The beds were to be, and were, planted not earlier than May 28 of any year, nor later than May 29. No charge was made for preparing the beds and planting.

About May 1, 1912, we spoke to one of the members of the board in regard to the work and he replied, "Suppose the same as usual, although we haven't had a meeting." About May 20, however, the caretaker notified us that the board had ordered him to award the job to the lowest bidder, and the "other fellow" got it, though he was not the lowest bidder either, as the lowest bidder's offer was thrown out because he had not specified the kind of plants he would use. A year ago the caretaker came and asked us for a bid, as he called it, to be handed in to the board. He made the rounds and then—please take notice—on his way back he stopped at the first place to give the people there a chance to put in another bid.

That occurred under municipal ownership. Now, do not misunderstand me; I am not "sore" or jealous because we did not get the job. The questions that I have in mind are whether or not we, one and all, should have been required to put up bonds for a specified amount and whether all the bids should have been sealed.

THE RETAIL FLORIST.....

COMMENCEMENT BOUQUETS.

Getting the Business Back.

One of the serious losses sustained by the trade was that caused by the widespread adoption of the rule prohibiting sending of flowers to those completing public school courses. Flowers still are permitted to be sent to those who participate in the commencement exercises of private schools, but almost everywhere the sending of gifts to graduates on the stage at public school affairs has been tabooed. Those florists fortunate enough to be located in the vicinity of private schools still get a good bit of business from that source, but by far the larger part of this work has been lost; where formerly thousands upon thousands of gifts of flowers were sent to those completing the public school courses now scarcely any are sold, because of the rule that they must be sent to the graduates' homes instead of being presented on the stage.

But T. J. Wolfe, of Waco, Tex., has found the business coming back. This is how:

"Some ten or twelve years ago," said Mr. Wolfe, "we did an immense commencement exercise business. Then came a public notice through the press from the school board prohibiting baskets and bunches of flowers at commencement exercises and our trade fell off to where we hardly sold a thing. However, the schools closed June 4 this year and we did a great business in corsage and hand bouquets. I presume we sold more than we had ever done in any five years combined. It seems that the greatly increased popularity of corsage and hand bouquets that nearly all florists have noted in the season now closing has hit the public schools as well, and there appears to be no objection to this use of flowers at these affairs."

Big Business in Sight.

If every young woman completing her grammar school or high school course could be made to think that she must wear a corsage bouquet or carry a hand bouquet, it would mean the return to the florists of a large part of the business that was lost. Graduating classes grow larger and larger, and schools more numerous. The use of even the lowest priced bouquets would mean the consumption of an immense quantity of stock at a time when flowers ordinarily are cheap.

The greater number of schools are yet to have their commencements—the next two weeks will see many thousands of them. If there does not seem to be any sign of a call for bouquets to be worn by the graduates, it will pay the florist to start the fashion—he can do it by advertising, or he can do it by sending, on the great morning, bouquets with his compliments to some of the girls whose families are numbered among his good customers.

MILDEW ON SHAWYER ROSES.

Will you oblige me by telling me whether the Mrs. George Shawyer rose is especially subject to mildew? We have planted a batch this season and they are constantly covered with mildew in spite of everything that we have done for them. T. J.

I have handled Mrs. Shawyer roses for the last three years and have had practically no mildew on this variety. On the other hand, some good growers tell me they cannot grow it without mildew. Personally, I think it all depends on how the rose is grown. Shawyer is a quick grower and on that account should not be grown too warm, as it is liable to be thrown into soft growth and consequently to acquire mildew. I recall the same trouble with Killarney when it was first introduced. We had been growing Brides and Maids in a temperature of 55 to 58 degrees at night and Killarney needed a few degrees more. Until this was generally understood, Killarney was subject to more censure than any other rose ever introduced. Today complaints of mildew on Killarney are comparatively scarce. Shawyer does not need to be grown so warm as Killarney, and this is a point in its favor, as every added degree of heat in cold weather means so much additional coal.

This variety has done wonderfully well in California and the south, as well as in the east, and it will eventually find its place as a staple pink in the market, because the color does not fade as does that of Killarney and the plant is a wonderfully quick grower and wonderful producer of blooms.

Chas. H. Totty.

STORING DORMANT ROSES.

Will you kindly inform us what are the best methods of keeping tea and hybrid tea roses dormant through the winter? We have two large cellars and a packing shed, but the tender varieties turn black and die, either when packed in moss or shingletoe. Last year we stored them in the cellar and packed the roots in clean, sharp sand, but still we lost nearly all of the following varieties: Rhea Reid, Etoile de Lyon, Lady Roberts, Mrs. Aaron Ward and Betty. P. W. C.

Neither moss, sand nor shingletoe packing will carry roses, or, for that matter, any shrubs through the winter in proper condition. Nurseries make a practice of carrying large quantities of stock over winter in packing sheds, usually packed in sand. This often is far too dry and, while the plants may look fresh when taken out, on being exposed to the sun, air and outside conditions, much of the wood invariably shrivels and dies back. The main trouble is that the roots get too dry, and no tree or shrub can get dry at the root for any considerable period without being seriously injured or killed.

If you want to carry over your roses successfully, pack in moist earth and be sure the roots are moist when you store them away. If necessary, water them to settle the soil about the roots. A temperature as near freezing as possible will winter them finely. You can pack the teas in coldframes, burying the plants well, and later cover with leaves and place sashes over them. Hybrid teas will winter well the same way, or can be entirely buried outside, giving the ground over them a good mulch of straw or leaves. Such plants are pretty sure to come out plump and green at planting time in spring.

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

The members of the American Rose Society are invited as a body, or as many as can conveniently do so, to visit Elizabeth park rose garden, at Hartford, Conn., June 19, meeting at 11 a. m. in the Union station at Hartford, Conn. The program will be to take lunch there, then go out to the park. The roses will be in good condition at that time.

Alex. Cummings, chairman of the American Rose Society's rose garden committee, reports that at this writing everything looks most inviting. Not only the members of the American Rose Society are invited but anyone who takes an interest in roses.

The affiliation effort of recent months has resulted in a membership of some 300 persons. Wallace R. Pierson, president of the American Rose Society, says: "Give the matter all the publicity possible and invite any rose lover to come with us."

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Freesias.

Flats or pans of freesias which have been given suitable treatment now will be well ripened and, when time permits, can be shaken out and sorted. The small bulblets, at planting time, which need not be earlier than July 15, can be sown moderately thick in flats and will produce fine flowering bulbs a year later. Do not, however, save bulbs from freesias which have been cut down close to the soil. No matter how well these may look as regards size and firmness, they will bloom disappointingly.

Amaryllis.

The houses after this time are much too hot for amaryllis. An excellent summer treatment is to plunge them to the brims in a bed of leaves or strawy manure in frames. Tilt the sashes well back and front over them and give them a coating of kerosene and white lead. Spray over once or twice a day, and once a week for the next three months feed with liquid manure. Plants treated in this way will make wonderful bulbs, double the size of those kept on hot, dry greenhouse benches, and will throw two and in some cases three spikes per bulb, instead of one.

Winter Snapdragons.

Since Easter the flower markets seem to have been all more or less surfeited with snapdragons, the first time this condition has really arisen, especially in the case of good pink varieties. The trouble seems to have been that everyone aimed to get a big spring crop and the produce was more than the market could take. From October to early March there are comparatively few snapdragons obtainable, and these are of poor quality. There surely is a field here for wide-awake growers to enter. The plants should now be of sufficient size to prick off into flats. It is a little too late to sow seeds which will produce good flowering plants by the early part of October. Of course they would flower by that time, even if sown late in June, but they would not have the size and strength necessary for midwinter bloomers. So, if you have no strong seedlings, buy rooted cuttings of one or more of the good named sorts advertised. Bench them toward the end of August.

Seed Sowing.

Now that coldframes are comparatively clear of bedding plants, there are many seeds that can be sown with advantage. A light soil containing considerable leaf-mold and old, screened manure, with some sand added, is excellent for the purpose. I like to screen the soil, or at least the upper three inches of it. This insures a fine rooting surface and more even germination; seedlings, also, come out more readily. A few seeds which should be sown now are: Sweet william, digitalis, Canterbury bell, provided they are not already sown; perennial larkspur, lupinus, aquilegia, lychnis in variety, perennial campanula in variety, arabis, aubrietia, Alyssum saxatile and many other hardy perennials.

It is too early yet to sow pansies, violas, double daisies and myosotis, but full advantage should be taken of the opportunity to raise good batches of perennials and biennials, all of which are constantly growing in popularity. By starting early really fine plants can be had of most varieties before fall.

Late sowing of a number of annuals now is timely. These include such subjects as Shirley and other poppies, nigella, godetia, larkspur, lupine, aster, hunnemannia, clarkia, alyssum, balsam, calendula and other useful sorts. Be sure to pulverize the ground well where these annuals are to go. Many of them germinate quickly and the hoe or cultivator should be plied among them as soon as the lines show, and they can hardly be stirred too often.

NEW FORCING VARIETIES.

November-Blooming Spencers.

The sweet pea has become such an important item in the cut flower trade that the entire industry, from growers to retailers, is keenly interested in the progress made with the flower and will attach importance to the announcement that two new early winter-blooming Spencers are to be offered this season.

The sweet pea began to take on importance as a greenhouse flower at the time Anton C. Zvolanek introduced his winter-blooming type, of which Christmas Pink was the leader, but by far the most rapid strides have been made since the Countess Spencer type of pea was developed into a winter-blooming class. The original spring-blooming Spencers were of considerable value to greenhouse growers, but nothing like the importance of the early-flowering varieties. To give an illustration of the way the trade took these up, Mr. Zvolanek, who introduced those heretofore generally grown, offered them at $8 per ounce, or $128 per pound, and has publicly stated that over 3,000 growers bought and planted his seed in greenhouses last season; certain growers are said to have used as much as twenty pounds of it and the winter-blooming Spencers have been a big item in the wholesale cut flower markets and in the retail stores, where they are given credit for much of the wonderful increase in corsage work this season.

Under these circumstances it is natural that everyone should be keeping a sharp lookout for novelties that could be offered as affording a further advance along the same line. While new or better colors were in request, it was apparent that the most important factor is that of earliness; while the winter Spencers sold profitably all through the season, the best money was obtained, as almost always is the case, by the growers who were on the market ahead of the rush.

Anita Wehrman.

One of the earliest peas of the Spencer type was offered on the Chicago market by the E. C. Amling Co., agent for Henry Wehrman, of Maywood, Ill. It was a good, clear lavender and was weeks ahead of other varieties. Mr. Wehrman has been marketing flowers of the variety in small quantities for three or four years. He found it among a lot of the old Countess Spencer, the spring bloomer, where it attracted his attention by going ahead rapidly from the day of germination, being ready to pick weeks earlier than anything else on the bench. He saved the seeds of the first plants and worked up stock until this year he had eight benches of the variety. Alex. Henderson, of A. Henderson & Co., Chicago, has had it under observation from the start and, it is understood, has acquired an interest in the stock of seeds which is to be harvested in the next few weeks and will disseminate the variety under the name of Anita Wehrman. John Michelsen, of the E. C. Amling Co., who has known the variety longer than anyone but Mr. Wehrman, says the flowers run three to four to the stem and that it makes unusually long stems, giving a pick of long stems for a greater length of time than do most peas. By planting early it can be had in good crop for Christmas, or even for Thanksgiving, but it should be remembered that the seed has all thus far been greenhouse-grown, ready in July, or several weeks earlier than the outdoor-grown California seed with which it is compared.

Rose Queen.

Another pea of the orchid, butterfly or Spencer type that came to notice before this class was available for winter blooming was one that showed up at Indianapolis, at the establishment of Albert J. Pittet. Four years ago he sent flowers to winter exhibitions, attracting wide attention. The flowers he has picked have nearly all been used in retail stores at Indianapolis, where they were in much demand. Mr. Pittet's seed also has been greenhouse-grown, which may account for the fact that he has been able to pick flowers in the first part of November, but he says it is the earliest and strongest grower he ever has had on the place. He says he found it among a lot of hybrids of Spencer, Unwin and winter-blooming peas and that he soon found it an especially good seller. The color is bright light pink and it is a good keeper. Mr. Pittet has had many offers for the seed, but has held on to it until now—he states that he recently disposed of an interest in this year's crop to S. S. Skidelsky & Co., Philadelphia, who are planning its distribution under the name of Rose Queen.

Rumor has it that these new peas are to come out at $12 an ounce! This will be a new price for seed of a variety that it is expected to sell to trade growers for a market crop, but it is less than has been asked for many sweet pea novelties on the other side of the water, where retail prices of from 2 cents to 4 cents per seed are not infrequent.

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

Newell, W. Va.—Application was granted June 2 for the appointment of a receiver for the B. A. Mick Floral Co., and also B. A. Mick and Annie E. Mick. The McCallum Co., of Pittsburgh, filed the application, and Judge Newman, of the Circuit court at Wheeling, appointed F. B. Lawrence receiver. The McCallum Co. held a judgment of $800 against Mr. Mick for flowers which he had purchased. Under the direction of the receiver, John Nelson has been placed in charge of the greenhouses. Mr. Mick has left this vicinity and, it is said, has left behind a number of creditors.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

So far as the wholesale cut flower business is concerned, last week was "the limit," and the present week opens with cellars and iceboxes full to overflowing and no stability to prices. Even weddings seem to have lost their uplift, notwithstanding the fact that over 300 licenses were issued June 1. Maybe business will improve as the month grows older. Shipments will surely lessen, and there can be no deeper bottom to values than now, even when midsummer arrives.

There is no limit yet to the peony arrivals. Some of the iceboxes are a ravishing sight on the wholesale streets, though to the wholesalers themselves they look much more ravishing when empty. The price is down to $2 per hundred for the best of them, with but a few exceptions of the specially selected, and most of the stock arriving has sold at 10 cents per bunch. Great quantities have come from the south.

Roses are showing the effects of the hot weather, and prices for most of them are unmentionable. The few perfect ones of any variety sell quickly, but many go into the discard. Carnations are deteriorating rapidly; $10 per thousand was top on Saturday, and from that on down for the inferior ones, to 25 cents per hundred. 'Twas a bad fall, and some fine stock was disposed of at bargain figures. Lilies are the surprise of the year. Thousands of them remained unsold at the close of the week's business and every wholesale house of any size seemed to be overwhelmed with them.

There has been no advance in orchids or valley, and the music of "Here comes the bride" seems to have lost its potency. There is much outdoor valley, but it sells slowly, and there is plenty of gladioli, iris, daisies and sweet peas. Lilac is done. Outdoor roses are in bloom. There will be no end of ramblers.

Club Meeting.

The final meeting of the Florists' Club until September 14 drew a good average attendance June 8. The exhibits by P. W. Popp, of Mamaroneck, N. Y., were pots of Schizanthus Bridal Veil and Salvia Greggii. Each was awarded a vote of thanks.

New Winter-blooming Spencer Sweet Pea, Rose Queen.

Appropriate resolutions on the death of J. F. Slimon were read.

F. H. Traendly stated that the final report of the spring flower show will be made at the September meeting. J. H. Pepper referred to the generous publicity efforts of the Brooklyn florists in behalf of the exhibition and Brooklyn day. A. L. Miller, chairman of the committee, stated that $281 was collected and most of it expended in featuring Brooklyn's loyalty, $24 remaining as a nucleus for much greater effort in 1915. Messrs. Mellis and Crawbuck were the other members of the committee. A vote of thanks was unanimous.

C. H. Totty, in the absence of F. R. Pierson, who has I. W. W. troubles at Tarrytown, stated that the weekly meetings of the joint committees are being held each Monday and said the prize schedule is complete and will be mailed early, giving prospective exhibitors ten months' leeway on next spring's show. The guarantee list and space sold each amount to over $4,000.

F. H. Traendly, chairman of the transportation committee, recommended the use of the Eastern Steamship Co., all-water line, in going to the Boston convention and the club voted unanimously to accept the recommendation. The boat leaves the dock at the foot of Murray street at 5 p. m. Rooms may be reserved up to within ten days of the date of sailing. The rates for rooms are $1 and $2 and the fare is $4 each way. The committee was voted $100 to be used for comfort on the trip. An attendance of 200 is expected. Those from other cities and towns who intend joining the New York club would do well to write Mr. Traendly at once for stateroom reservation.

Chairman W. E. Marshall, of the outing committee, announced all arrangements complete for the annual event, July 1, at Glen Island. Tickets are: Men, $3.50; ladies, $2.50; ages 12 to 16, $2; children under 12, $1; babies free. Nearly $500 has been secured for prizes. Tickets include refreshments on the boat and a shore dinner at the island.

Louis Gleitsman was elected to membership and Henry Wessel and Michael Daly were proposed.

After recess Messrs Melosy, Dick and Deamud gave loyal addresses and William Plumb made a talk on the San Francisco exposition.

Various Notes.

Saturday and Sunday, June 6 and 7, the Horticultural Society of New York held an exhibition of peonies, hardy roses, rhododendrons, azaleas, irises and orchid plants in bloom, which attracted many flower lovers and proved the best success of the summer season to date. Saturday, June 6, Vice-president Geo. T. Powell lectured in the Museum building, Bronx Park, on "The Soil the Basis of Success in Gardening and Other Lines of Productive Work."

Andrew Cova, treasurer of the New York Florists' Supply Co., left New York June 9 via the Kaiserin Augusta Victoria for a two months' European trip, for the purchase of novelties and supplies. Geo. Cotsonas, president of the company, has been elected president of the Greek-American Florists' Society. The annual outing of this organization will take place July 8, at Wetzel's Point, L. I.

John Wilk, the seedsman of West Thirty-third street, says his first year has been a greater success than he anticipated. His location is ideal. He uses large advertising signs to secure publicity on Long Island.

John Gunther and George Hildebrand have been serving their country as jurors in the Federal court.

Arthur T. Boddington has returned from his southern trip, having visited many of the principal cities there. He was especially delighted with Galveston, with its picturesque streets and gardens. He says all the florists south are prospering and predicts a great future for that country. "Young man, go southwest," is his echo of Horace Greeley's admonition.

G. H. Sinclair, of Holyoke, Mass., was a recent visitor. Other visitors were S. J. Mitchell and George M. Cosh, of Houston, Tex., on their way to Europe, and Edward Tufnail and Eric G. Sutton, of Reading, England.

William Plumb, superintendent of horticulture for the Panama exposition, has visited Baltimore, Washington, Albany and Philadelphia in the interests of the show, and is doing some hustling. "Everything," he says, "indicates a huge success." He was a guest at the meeting in Albany last week of the state commission of the Panama exposition.

C. C. Trepel has been enjoying a week's rest at Kiamesha lake, in the Catskills.

Julius Roehrs will leave for his European trip immediately after the three days' outing of the New York and New Jersey Plant Growers' Association, June 23 to 26.

The flower show next March promises well, Secretary Young declares, over $4,000 worth of space having been sold, a guarantee fund pledged of nearly an equal sum and the good work only just begun.

John Miesem is in Germany, but will return in time for the S. A. F. convention.

Much discussion is going on here over the Sunday closing movement for July and August in the wholesale cut flower district. The majority are strongly in favor of it.

Theo. Outerbridge, of Bermuda, proprietor of beautiful Sunnylands there, was a recent visitor.

The auction sales of plants, etc., by the MacNiff Horticultural Co. often continue until after 7 o'clock in the evening.

Secretary Bunyard announces the distribution of the schedule for the Sweet Pea Society's show for June 20. The sixth annual exhibition will take place June 27 and 28 at the New York Museum of Natural History.

George C. Siebrecht has just installed a new, large and modern icebox in addition to other facilities.

Myer, at Madison avenue and Fifty-eighth street, has a 21-year lease of the ground, 20x50, on which stands the 4-story house he has purchased. Modernizing of the front begins at once. A 15-foot basement is to be added.

The early closing movement finds favor with the majority of the seedsmen. During June, July and August 5 o'clock daily and 12 o'clock Saturday seems to be the rule.

Thomas Collie, with Burnett Bros., is enjoying a visit at his old home in Scotland.

Frank Verona, for some years supervisor and right-hand man with C. C. Trepel, has secured the cut flower and plant department of Schellenberg & Co., Philadelphia, and will take charge September 1, remaining with Mr. Trepel until July 1. Mr. Verona is a young man of excellent character, enterprise and experience.

Emil Glauber, of Denver, was in New York June 8 on his way to Europe for a vacation. A. J. Guttman decorated his stateroom with carnations, roses and peonies.

The plant growers' outing to Delaware Water Gap, for three days next week, is already an assured success, the reservations exceeding last year's total.

The MacNiff Horticultural Co. will hold its last auction of the season Tuesday, June 16, a trade sale of large proportions, from a big private estate of Glen Cove, L. I. J. Austin Shaw.

The front of the store of Wertheimer Bros., on East Twenty-fourth street, is a good advertisement for the firm and for the trade, as the windows are ornamented by large and well-filled boxes of geraniums and vincas. It is the most attractive showing in the neighborhood and an object lesson to others in the textile trade.

Max Schling has ordered a new plate glass body for the auto recently in disastrous collision with a brewery truck. The accident, while costly, has proved an excellent advertisement, as the publicity has served to emphasize the Schling method of giving service without thought of expense.

The craft in New York will be specially interested in the article on another page of this issue, "Ward Starts Pacific Nursery." It is the latest project of C. W. Ward, of the Cottage Gardens, who has of late made his headquarters at Eureka, Cal.

PIERSON ON THE JOB.

F. R. Pierson is president of the village of Tarrytown, which has figured conspicuously this week in the newspapers of the country because of invasion by a large body of I. W. W. agitators, making a demonstration at the Rockefeller mansion. According to one report, "by order of Village President Pierson a length of hose has been attached to each hydrant in the business section of the town and manned by three firemen. If trouble starts, policemen will be assigned to guard each squad of firemen while water is poured into the ranks of the invaders."

Among the threats that have been reported to the Tarrytown authorities are that Mr. Pierson would better watch out or his big greenhouses will be given a shower of stones.

When Upton Sinclair and a committee appeared before the village board to demand a permit for street meetings, "We have a love for free speech," Mr. Pierson declared, "and we object to being advertised as opponents of free speech. If you go hire a hall, you can have all the free speech you want, but not on our streets." Those who know Mr. Pierson can imagine the positiveness with which he said it.

SALESMAN A SVENGALI.

The photograph reproduced herewith was taken in the evening by flashlight in the service shed of the Robert Craig Co., in Philadelphia, and shows Leonard J. Sieger, the popular salesman, entertaining an audience of the workers with an exhibition of his hypnotic powers. In front of Mr. Sieger is one of his subjects stretched rigid at full length. On his left is another, imagining he is doing something, I know not what. The photograph was given me by William P. Craig as an example of what Mr. Sieger could do in placing people "under the influence." When asked under what influence, Mr. Craig replied that Mr. Sieger had developed remarkable powers of hypnotism under Professor Somebody and that these exhibitions given to amuse his friends were quite equal to anything Svengali had ever done. He really deserves notice, this Leonard Svengali Sieger, Mr. Craig asserted, so strong a power does he possess. This solemn assertion seemed convincing reason why the picture should be presented to The Review's readers. Phil.

L. J. Sieger, the Hypnotic Salesman of the Robert Craig Co., at Work.

Malta, O.—W. C. Scovell reports that although he had an unusually heavy stock of geranium plants this season, he could not meet the demand. His Memorial day trade was heavier than in previous years. Outdoor flowers were scarce in this locality.

BUFFALO, N. Y.

The Market.

The peony is queen of the market this week, for there are all sizes, shapes and colors. They are in fine condition and the prices are reasonable. The large whites are the choicest at present. Roses are plentiful; in fact, there is an oversupply and they go at low figures. Cattleyas are abundant, for the spring crop of orchids is being cut. They are used for corsages, funeral work, baskets, etc. There are a few irises in the market, of the early German variety, but they are only fair in quality and are quite perishable. Carnations are still good; they are getting smaller, however, and get sleepy readily. Harrisii lilies are scarce and there is little demand for them. Cornflowers are beginning to come into the market. Outdoor valley is still abundant, but is somewhat poor. Gardenias are on the decline and are not selling well. There has been a great deal of funeral work in the last week, besides numerous weddings, and the volume of business has been greater than usual.

Several of the larger florists have reported that the trade for Memorial day was not as good as usual, owing to the fact that there was so much outdoor stock for sale. Every vender, market and grocery had cut flowers for sale, thus taking the trade away from the regular florists. All outdoor work, such as the filling of veranda boxes, pots and urns and the setting out of bedding plants, is being rushed. There are only a few flowering plants for sale, such as late spiræas, rhododendrons, forget-me-nots, etc.

Various Notes.

Three of the force of W. J. Palmer & Son are indisposed. Thomas Tobin has two boils on his neck, Miss Ruby Marks has an abscess in the ear, and Mr. Palmer has a scalp wound. No, there has not been a fight, as one might suppose; it just happened so.

The Forman-Beyers wedding was an elaborate church affair. The bridesmaids carried arm bunches of Mrs. Ward roses. Two others carried arm bunches of Killarney Queen. The matron of honor carried Safrano roses and the bride carried a shower of lilies of the valley, white orchids and maidenhair ferns. The church was decorated with hardy spiræas and White Killarney roses, with a few white lilacs here and there. W. J. Palmer & Son did the decorating.

Edwin C. Armbrust spent a few days in New Britain, Conn., last week.

Ed. Stephen and his family are at Fort Erie Beach for the summer.

Henry Weber, of Springville, N. Y., has sold his greenhouses and has gone to reside permanently in Florida.

Felix Alberts reports that business is increasing steadily, but that the Memorial day trade was not as good as he anticipated.

Jacob Wiese has had his auto repaired. Business was only fair last week, he reports.

L. H. Neubeck was exceedingly busy last week with all kinds of outdoor work, planting cemetery urns, etc.

Visitors: S. Greene, of Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia; Mr. Mulloy, of Schloss Bros., New York. E. C. A.

Perry De Haven.

Perry De Haven, for many years in the florists' business in Tulsa, Okla., died June 5, a paralytic stroke being the direct cause of death. Mr. De Haven returned June 4 from Claremore, where he had been for several weeks taking medical treatment. The well-known Tulsan had been in failing health for many months, but his condition was not thought to be critical. Death came in the morning, shortly after he had gotten up. Mrs. De Haven, his wife, is the only Tulsa relative surviving.

Anson Wheeler.

Anson Wheeler, of Concord, Mass., owner of one of the largest greenhouses in the state, is dead at his home, Nine Acre Corner, Concord, at the age of 51. Mr. Wheeler was a member of the Boston Market Farmers' Association and was interested in local industrial enterprises and town government. He is survived by his widow, two sons and three daughters.

Samuel Wheeler.

Samuel Wheeler, of Berlin, Mass., aged 62 years, died June 1 in Marlboro hospital, at Marlboro, Mass., where he underwent an operation ten days before for cancer of the liver. He had suffered much from ill health for several years past, and, his condition becoming much worse, he was brought to Marlboro hospital for treatment about three weeks before his death.

He was the son of Samuel H. and Sarah Holden Wheeler. He was born November 3, 1851, in Berlin, where his life was passed. He put up buildings on a part of the homestead of his father, where he engaged extensively in market gardening and growing carnations, having five large greenhouses.

He served the town of Berlin several years as a selectman and was a charter member and the first master of Berlin grange.

He was a member of the Friends' meeting in Bolton and a worker in the Methodist church. He married Miss Emily Bruce Hudson, August 15, 1871, who survives him. He also leaves two sons, Herbert L. and Edwin E., and three daughters, Mrs. Cora, wife of Arthur L. Brewer; Marion B., Boston, and Bernice A., Berlin.

The funeral was held June 3 at 2 o'clock, from the home on Sawyer hill road.

Hans Schmalzl.

Hans Schmalzl, until recently proprietor of the West End Greenhouses, at Lincoln, Ill., was found dead in bed at 7 o'clock Wednesday morning, May 27, by his family, when called for breakfast. Death had occurred several hours previous to the discovery of the body, and the attending physician stated death was due to heart failure.

Hans Schmalzl was born in Spietzholl, near Regensburg, Bavaria, March 26, 1860. He came to America at an early age and settled in Canada, later coming to the United States, where he settled in Kansas.

He was united in marriage to Anna L. Ziegler, April 21, 1897, and left immediately for Marion, Kan., where he made his first business venture. The year following he went to Lincoln, where he has since resided. For ten years he conducted the West End Greenhouses and was one of the best florists and designers in Lincoln. Recently the greenhouses were sold, and plans were being completed for the erection of a new range, and a stock company had already been formed.

He is survived by his wife and three children, Carl F., Susie H. and Kurt; also two brothers in Germany.

Eva B. Haas.

The death of Eva B. Haas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Haas, well known florists at Meadville, Pa., occurred at Joseph, Ore., May 30, after a brief illness of pneumonia. Miss Haas was a graduate of Allegheny College and after acting as principal of the Union City High School for several years, went to Oregon, where she had taught school for the last five years. Besides her parents she is survived by the following brothers and sisters: George and Roger, of Meadville; Herman, of Butler, and Robert, Florence and Nellie, at home. The body was interred at Joseph, Ore.

THE CONVENTION GARDEN.

The open-air garden of the Boston S. A. F. convention, to be held in August, bids fair to be the greatest event of its kind ever held in the country. The late spring rain and a rather slow response on the part of the growers made the outlook somewhat dubious at first, but such a generous response has been made during the last week, from the active work of the executive and garden committees, that a large portion of the garden, nearly 30,000 square feet, has already been planted. Deputy Park Commissioner Shea, who is chairman of the garden committee, ably assisted by the other members, Patrick Welch, John K. M. L. Farquhar, Thomas Roland, E. Allan Peirce, Wm. J. Kennedy and Wm. J. Stewart, have done yeoman service, and a great success is assured. However, more exhibits are needed to bring it up to the standard hoped for.

It is a great mistake not to be represented at this time, as the occasion will be one long remembered in horticulture and productive of great results to those who participate, for it is estimated that over 500,000 will view the garden during the summer. The time is growing short and those who have not already taken space at the small cost required should do so at once. Many fine plots, from $10 up for the season, are still available. This includes all costs of planting, preparation and maintenance. All goods should be shipped to James B. Shea, chairman convention garden, Back Bay fens, Boston, Mass. For particulars, address James B. Shea, 33 Beacon street, Boston.

Among those who have already taken large spaces are: Robert Craig Co., Knight & Struck, Arthur Cowee, A. H. Hews & Co., Bidwell & Fobes, A. T. Boddington, A. N. Pierson, Peter Henderson & Co., F. W. Fletcher & Co., R. & J. Farquhar & Co., John Lewis Childs, William Tricker, W. A. Manda, Henry A. Dreer, Carter's Tested Seeds, Inc., James Vick's Sons, E. E. Stewart, Samuel Goddard, B. Hammond Tracy, Mount Desert Nurseries, Harry Quint, Conard & Jones Co., Henry R. Comley, W. W. Edgar Co. and William Sim.

Dows, Ia.—J. H. Shaffer, of Shaffer & Sons, proprietor of Dows Greenhouse, says spring trade, and especially that for Memorial day, was beyond expectations. Branch stores were opened at Grundy Center, Clarion and Emmetsburg. Mr. Shaffer says his firm finds The Review invaluable, as they have to purchase a great deal of stock.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Incorporated by Act of Congress, March 4, 1901.

Officers for 1914: President, Theodore Wirth, Minneapolis; vice-president, Patrick Welch, Boston; secretary, John Young, 53 W. 28th St., New York City; treasurer, W. F. Kasting, Buffalo.

Thirtieth annual convention, Boston, Mass., August 18 to 21, 1914.

THERE will be few sweet peas other than Spencer varieties flowered in greenhouses next year.

T. W.: The anonymous communications still go into the waste basket; we don't bother with people who don't sign their full names.

THE wide trade acquaintance of Charles Willis Ward will cause special interest to be taken in the article, "Ward Starts Pacific Nursery," on page 72 of this issue.

IF you have a printed letter-head, use it; if you haven't stationery that shows who and what you are, don't do without it another day. Let those you deal with know you at a glance.

NOT a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper.

WHEN a man writes a letter to a trade paper and says "the florists' business with me has only been a side line," is he entitled to trade prices even if he does live at some out-of-the-way place in Canada?

ONE of the healthiest signs of the times is the disposition to curtail credits and enforce prompt payment. As the trade gets bigger the margin of profit becomes narrower and losses through uncollectable accounts become a matter of more serious moment.

IT will pay any florist doing a wholesale mail order business to adopt a thorough system and follow it religiously. Every order should be acknowledged with a post card stating when the stock will be shipped. If it can not be shipped on the day specified a card should give notice of the delay and the new shipping date. The day the shipment goes out a notice should be mailed stating route and date of the merchandise. Such a system, used with stock that unquestionably is worth the money, will build a list of satisfied customers that will make advertising doubly profitable.

CROPS INSURE PROSPERITY.

The greatest wheat crop in the history of the United States is on the eve of being harvested. Supplementing glowing reports from the wheat producing centers of the country, the government crop report for June, issued June 8, indicates this year's yield at 900,000,000 bushels.

The forecast for this enormous harvest is based on present conditions. Should the present promise be maintained until the crop is harvested, a period of about a month for the late states, the total yield may exceed considerably the government June estimate.

The total estimated yield is 137,000,000 bushels in excess of the record harvest of last year. With the winter wheat crop practically made and conditions extremely satisfactory in the northwest for the growth of spring wheat, the country is assured a sound basis for agricultural prosperity during the year. The winter wheat crop, estimated at 638,000,000 bushels, is by far the largest ever raised in the United States. The spring wheat harvest, estimated at 262,000,000 bushels, also is unusually large.

In addition to the unprecedented wheat crop, other grains promise well. The indicated oats yield is 1,216,000,000 bushels. If this crop is harvested it will be the second largest on record, having been exceeded only by the bumper yield of 1,418,000,000 bushels in 1912. Last year the final figures on the oats crop placed the yield at 1,122,000,000 bushels, or 94,000,000 bushels less than is promised this year. A barley crop of 206,000,000 bushels is indicated, 28,000,000 bushels larger than a year ago.

The significant feature of the report is that crop conditions are almost uniformly favorable throughout the country. The southwest and west are assured by far the greatest wheat crop they have ever had, and other crops promise almost equally high. In only a few sections of Illinois, Missouri, and in Indiana have conditions been unfavorable, and, in spite of the drawbacks, the crops in these localities will have been reduced only from bumper to about normal proportions.

If present agricultural conditions furnish any criterion, a revival of general business should result from the flattering crop promise.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

The market is more heavily overloaded, and with a lower grade of stock, than has been the case in many months. A few days of normal weather conditions last week did not serve to clean up the market and a return of midsummer heat this week has resulted in a state bordering on complete demoralization. There are enormous quantities of all flowers on the market, but much of the stock is of such poor quality that it cannot be shipped. Much work is required to sort out the stock for such shipping orders as are received, and the balance so far exceeds the needs of the local retail stores that the bulk of each day's receipts either is jobbed off to the bargain sales people or is cleared by way of the waste barrel. The waste in the last fifteen days probably exceeds anything hereto-

USE OUR STOCK AND YOUR BUSINESS WILL GROW

BEAUTIES

THESE WILL SHIP WELL IN HOT WEATHER

JUNE is a good month to sell Beauties—nothing more satisfactory to your trade. They ship perhaps better than most other flowers when the weather is hot. And you can get of us all the Beauties you want at prices that will make it possible for you to sell a lot of them at a good margin for yourself. We can supply short and medium stems.

FANCY ROSES

It is well to remember that Amling's specialty always is a grade of Roses just a little better than can be had elsewhere in quantity. A good crop is on, and the best roses ship best in the warm season. We have a full line, including

MILADY WARD SUNBURST
BULGARIE KILLARNEY RICHMOND
WHITE KILLARNEY KILLARNEY QUEEN

VALLEY

You can get here as much as you need. A big lot for June.

ORCHIDS

You will like our Orchids and we will like your orders.

FANCY PEONIES SELECT

The Peony is the big decorative flower of June—but it makes all the difference what Peonies you order. Not many growers know how to put up Peonies so as to give invariable satisfaction. We have the oldest and largest of these, as well as the best of the newer growers—our Peonies please.

CARNATIONS

Our Carnations are the best in the west. Try some and see for yourself.

NEW FANCY FERNS

By ordering of us you can get all the Hardy Cut Ferns you need. Our stock is good; we never ship anything but the best on the market.

BEAUTIES

Order of us and you can get all you need, of the length your trade calls for and at a price that will make your work pay you a good profit. These are good Beauties—as good as the market affords—and they will ship well—at least as well as any other flowers in hot weather.

VALLEY

You can count on Randall at all times to furnish fancy Valley. Have arranged for a specially large supply for June. Wire your orders if time is short.

ORCHIDS

Our Cattleyas are the fresh, home-grown stock, large, dark colored, the kind that every retailer shows with pride. A large cut this month.

LILIES

We can offer specially attractive prices on large lots of Giganteum Lilies for June wedding decorations.

ROSES

Plenty of short and medium roses—all varieties—just the length you want in quantity. Write for quotations on large lots.

PEONIES

You can get of us all the first-class peonies you need. Our stock is put up by an old and reliable shipper.

GLADIOLI

America, Augusta and red in quantity. We have these of excellent quality and at attractive prices.

GAILLARDIAS

When your work calls for something bright—Bulgarian—use these: $1.00 to $1.50 per 100.

fore known in this market. The condition of heavy supply appears to be general over all that part of the country to which Chicago ordinarily ships, for orders are light and many who have canceled standing orders have stated that for the time being they have a local supply, perhaps not the flowers usually obtained from Chicago, but of something they want to work off. The weather reports indicate that the tropical heat is general from the Rocky Mountains east. It will finish off the crops quickly, and then there will be good summer business in Chicago for those who are taking care of their plants so as to be able to cut good quality a little later.

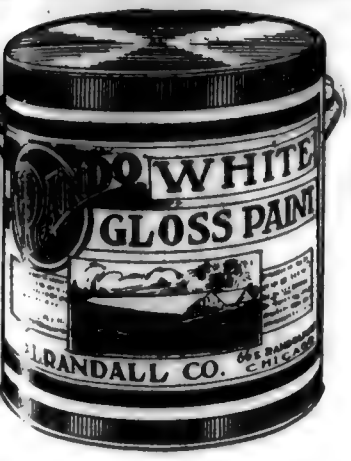
Beauties are more plentiful than they have been in months and are selling well because they ship well. An out-of-town buyer can place reliance in Beauties reaching him in salable shape even when the mercury is flirting with the century mark. Of course a large part of the Beauties are open and cannot be shipped. The prices these bring when sold to the Greek fruit venders are so low that nothing more can be said for them than that to the growers they are better than nothing. Roses are much in the same situation. There is an abundance of everything, quality averages so low that only a fraction of the day's receipts can be trusted for shipping, the local trade takes only a part of the remainder, and the popped open roses are jobbed at anything the buyer will pay.

Carnations scarcely can be shipped in such weather. First-class stock is hard to find, and it is a risk to ship even the best while the heat is so high. Still, many buyers insist that their orders be filled. Since Memorial day the complaints have not been numerous, for the buyers know how the stock will come. Of course the flowers are getting smaller in size and many are so soft that they are dead when they reach the market.

There has been no chance to sell the peonies left over in storage at Memorial day; the local crop has been so heavy and so fine that the storage stock still is in the freezer, along with many thousands of dozens cut in the last ten days. This week will see the end of the local peonies. There are fears that the keeping quality of the stock now going into storage may have been impaired by the great heat, for it has averaged 20 degrees above normal this week.

Gladioli are coming heavily. There will be millions of them this year. But sweet peas are going; the heat has finished them off. Of course there will be moderate quantities all summer, but the fine Spencers from under glass are not the factor they have been. Easter lilies are a glut; everybody has them and the buyer who will take a quantity can name his own figure; accumulations sold in job lots have gone at as little as $2 per hundred this week, something heretofore unknown in this market. Water lilies have arrived, but are an inconsiderable factor. Gaillardias have taken the place calendulas have occupied all winter. There are not many cattleyas, but enough. Valley is abundant and not selling so well as was expected; probably the weddings are consuming as much as ever, but more growers are forcing valley and in greater quantities.

Smilax once more is in good supply and selling at old-time prices. New eastern ferns are in and the market has dropped.



Various Notes.

Financial trouble is supposed to have caused the suicide of Stanley Knaflewski, who shot himself while in a bedroom in the rear of his store at 2321 North Hamilton avenue, June 7. He was 42 years of age, born in Russia. He came to this country eight years ago and has had the store at the above address six years, under the name Hamilton Floral Co. A wife, Stella, and six children survive him. Burial took place June 10 at the Bohemian National cemetery.

As an evidence that sweet peas pay, Henry Wehrman, the Maywood grower, last week invested in a new 6-cylinder Moline-Knight touring car. It will be of interest that the salesman was Charles Hartung, son of the pioneer florist. Mr. Hartung had Mr. Wehrman and John Michelsen out for a demonstration trip on which the only faster vehicle encountered was a motorcycle ridden by a policeman.

Returning from his third year at Culver Military Academy, John Poehlmann, Jr., is spending his summer vacation in the store. He is proud of his school, but next best he likes to lend a hand to T. E. Waters in the supply department of the business of which his father is president.

The bowling league of the Cook County Florists' Association completed its season June 3, the championship being won by the Violets, a team composed of the employees of Kyle & Foerster and C. W. McKellar. The Orchids were second, Carnations third and Roses fourth. Peter Olsem, of Pyfer & Olsem, made the high average, but Frank Ayers, of the McKellar staff, made the high game, 266, and the high 3-game average, 212.

Some years ago Peter Reinberg forced valley regularly, but none has been grown for the last several seasons. Within the last few weeks it has been taken up again and arrangements are being made, according to Felix Reichling, the new store manager, to keep the supply regular in the future. An amateur burglar entered the store Sunday night, June 7, and got away with some stamps and change not in the safe.

It is reported that the tenants of the building at 159 and 161 North Wabash avenue have received offers from the landlord for the surrender of their leases, negotiations being under way which may result in the tearing down of the building. A. L. Vaughan & Co. occupy the basement and made a new lease for five years less than two months ago.

E. E. Pieser, of Kennicott Bros. Co., has been laid up for a week with a difficulty bordering on paralysis in one of his feet. He is now able to be at the store for an hour or two each day.

W. F. Duntemann, of Bensenville, was a visitor at the store of Erne & Klingel June 5. He states that his new range is completed and planted, so that he can enjoy a few days' vacation.

J. Byers is making his headquarters with D. E. Freres until he finds a permanent position to his liking.

Three 300-foot houses of Killarney remain to be planted at the establishment of Wietor Bros. Then the roses will be all set for the new season.

The old building at the northeast corner of Wabash avenue and Washington street, once a florists' center, is being demolished to make way for a skyscraper. Fifteen years ago it was the headquarters of Kennicott Bros. Co., Bassett & Washburn and several others. E. C. Amling started there.

Returning last week from a trip to her Georgia pecan lands, Miss L. A. Tonner has been busy cutting her crop of peonies, which are sold by her sister, O. A. Tonner. The field is 3 years old. Most of the cut has gone into cold storage loose, a number of growers having followed Klehm's Nurseries in this. Miss Tonner also has stored most of the cut of the Austin-Littleford Nursery, of Downers Grove.

Mrs. George Wells, whose store is at 2813 Colorado avenue, has purchased a two-flat building at 2827 Warren avenue. Mrs. Wells is occupying one of the flats herself.

The store of David Hammer, 2014 West Division street, has recently been remodeled. He has installed a new refrigerator and counter.

Robert Northam, of George Reinberg's, was operated on for appendicitis last week at the Washington Park hospital. He is getting along nicely.

The Beauty has taken the place of the sweet pea as the flower in which the buyers take the most interest, according to Zech & Mann, who say that the Beauty is one flower on which the retailer never has any waste. Doubtless on the theory that weather and business conditions are so uncomfortable that a little more discomfort doesn't matter, John Zech has been keeping appointments with a dentist this week.

E. C. Amling and Mrs. Amling this week announced the engagement of their daughter, Adelaide Louise, to Rev. Jean M. Bailey. Miss Amling has many friends in the trade, as she has assisted in the office of the E. C. Amling Co. for several years.

Louis Gresenz, 1433 Clybourn avenue, reports wedding business has been unusually heavy this month. Mr. Gresenz, who for years was with Bassett & Washburn, now is a large buyer on the market.

The J. A. Budlong establishment has had excellent success with valley this season, and P. C. Schupp considers it one of the most profitable items handled. Last season's pips appear to have been especially strong.

John Junius, 1736 Byron street, expects to leave the first part of July for a two months' vacation in Europe. He intends to visit England, Germany, France, Ireland and Switzerland.

Bedding, window box and vase-filling business has been unusually heavy this year, reports W. W. Fuller, 4526 Ravenswood avenue.

Rush work is being done by the Lord & Burnham Co. on three houses 57x350 for the Meredith Flower & Vegetable Co., to constitute a new plant at Union Grove, Wis. A service building is included in the contract, which has previously been reported as having been awarded to the Garland Greenhouse Mfg. Co., but which recently has been transferred to the company represented here by Mr. Sykes. These are to be the commercial iron-frame type of houses and the first one is to be completed early in August.

Paul Swanson, well known as a former mushroom specialist on West Forty-seventh street, is preparing to re-engage in the business in Edison Park.

Returning from a trip to Texas, Frank McCabe, of the A. L. Randall Co., is enthusiastic over the prospects for the florists' trade in the southwest. Edward Galavan, of the company's office force, spent June 8 in Milwaukee.

CINCINNATI.

The Gateway to the South.

Last week was commencement week for the local high schools, but, while it resulted in a good call for certain special flowers or colors, it did not materially affect present market conditions. The supply is apparently increasing, if one takes the appearance of the florists' iceboxes as a criterion, for at the opening of this week all were overstocked. If that condition continues throughout the week the florists need not look for any good average of sales.

All kinds of seasonable flowers are in a supply that can easily take care of all demands. When the extremely hot weather is taken into consideration, the quality is unusually good. A few showers that were general in this part of the country last week helped the growers of outdoor stock, but all are in need of many more rains.

Club Meeting.

The regular meeting of the Florists' Club was held at J. A. Peterson's beautiful home in Westwood. The business session was held in the pergola that Mr. Peterson brought from the Detroit show a couple of years ago. The list of nominations is as follows: For president, James Allen and Ed. Schumann; vice-president, Max Rudolph and Fred Bachmeier; secretary, Alex. Ostendarp and Charles Murphy; treasurer, Gus. Adrian and Charles H. Hoffmeister; trustee, J. A. Peterson and Frank Volz. President Allen appointed an outing committee consisting of J. A. Peterson, chairman; C. E. Critchell, Wm. Murphy and Max Rudolph.

Before the meeting the visitors went through the greenhouses. Naturally the begonias were objects of special interest, particularly Melior and the collections of French and German varieties. After the outing the guests sat down to an elaborate luncheon. The concluding event on the program was an exhibition of lantern slides made from photographs that the various members of the family had taken on their travels. The subjects were flowers, prominent members of the trade throughout this country and abroad, the flood of 1913 and its consequences in the Ohio and Miami valleys and Mr. and Mrs. Peterson's trip abroad. The pictures were shown by Mrs. Peterson and Clarence Peterson. Nearly all of them have been taken from snapshots of people and places of interest to florists generally. E. G. Gillett, in a few well chosen words, thanked Mr. and Mrs. Peterson and their family for their hospitality.

cornflowers and a large quantity of coreopsis from George Klotter's place.

C. E. Critchell has been getting some excellent snapdragons from Tom Windram's place.

Hardesty & Co. had the Hager-Wulsin wedding decoration at Ashland, Ky., June 6. They used about 500 lilies and 3,000 roses, besides palms and other decorative material. The bride's table was decked with white roses, valley and sweet peas.

H. J. Vanderhorst, of St. Marys, O., was a recent visitor. C. H. H.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

The Market.

June, the brides' month, as well as the month of the sweet girl graduates, is keeping our flower stores busy. A number of large weddings have taken place and several more have been booked, some of them dated as late as the middle of July. The work for the graduates of the colleges and high schools began with the beginning of the month and work for these occasions culminates with the graduating exercises of our two public high schools for girls, held at the French Opera House. For that night the local retailers make up about 300 bouquets of different styles, all of a high grade of workmanship.

The outdoor crops of cut flowers, such as gardenias, Shasta daisies and the late plantings of gladioli, are of good quality, considering the dry, hot weather we have had in the last four weeks. If the rainless spell continues much longer, it will affect the coming aster crop considerably. Although the majority of the mums are planted and doing fairly well, some of the growers are holding part of their stock back, waiting for rain and cooler weather.

Nothing of importance is being done in the building line; the cause of this can be found in the lack of increase in business during the last six months.

Various Notes.

Abele Bros. have been doing considerable shipping of all kinds of outdoor stock. Their plants are always of clean and strong culture.

C. W. Eichling reports fair business. He receives daily shipments of gladioli, daisies, etc., from his Bayou La Combe nursery. The stock grown on his place is of a high grade and is sold at both wholesale and retail.

The Metairie Ridge Nursery Co. always has a good business and grows the greater part of the stock needed at the store. A well carried out rural scene, showing country life 100 years ago, occupies the entire big show window of this store at present and is attracting a great deal of attention. Mr Schlottmeier, the designer, is receiving much well-deserved praise.

Peter Chopin is one of the busy St. Charles avenue florists. He stated that since he opened his new store he has been doing three times his former amount of business.

The Orchid Store, of which Newsham and Scheuermann are proprietors, is still more than holding its own. The gorgeous displays of rare and beautiful orchids always find a large host of admirers, as well as buyers. At the nursery the stock of different kinds of plants and cut flowers is in fine condition. Two of their new houses, used last year for mums, have been planted with young roses of the new and standard varieties.

Mrs. Carrie Rehm always has the interior as well as the exterior of her place in attractive shape. It is no wonder she retains her old customers and continues to get new ones.

The Joseph Steckler Seed Co., selling at both wholesale and retail, reports this year's business as satisfactory, with an increase in the plant department.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Market.

The Washington market for the last two or three weeks has been completely inundated with flowers, with the result that more than fifty per cent of the cut has found its way to the trash pile, the remaining stock being sold at whatever price the buyers were willing to pay. Long-stemmed American Beauty roses have been sold for as low as $4 per hundred in quantity lots, and outdoor sweet peas were offered at retail at three bunches for 5 cents. The market from a wholesale standpoint is demoralized, and even in the retail stores, although business is fair, the prices are lower than they have been in several years. Cattleyas and valley are the only flowers that are moving easily and there are just enough of these to meet all calls. Carnations and roses are being almost given away and all other flowers are without price. Some excellent snapdragons are to be had, but no one seems to want this flower. Gladioli are plentiful, with the ruling price in the neighborhood of $5. All but the red seem to be moving on a par with the other flowers.

Club Meeting.

More than 100 florists and their friends attended the smoker given in connection with the June meeting of the Florists' Club of Washington. The business of the evening was rushed through, so that as much time might be given to the entertainment as possible. Arthur C. Garden, of Minnesota avenue, Anacostia, D. C., was elected to membership. The transportation committee, through Vice-president Jenkins, made a report on the trip to Boston in August. Mr. Jenkins stated that a number of applications for reservations had already been received. The trip to Boston is to be made on a chartered boat of the Merchants' & Miners' Transportation Co.

The evening's entertainment was given in the "grotto," which was specially decorated for the occasion. This meeting gave the florists an opportunity of finding out what good singers they were, for all joined in singing patriotic and popular airs to the accompaniment of an orchestra. The usual speeches of welcome were made and then Charley Stevens and his group of entertainers proceeded to hand out toasts and roasts, songs and recitations. The fun kept up until a late hour. Mrs. Clara Naecker favored the members with a number of selections. Others who aided in making the evening a pleasant one were D. S. Goumpf, Edward Hutchinson, I. S. Goldsmith, M. Hemlein, Dr. Staples and J. Schmidt.

Various Notes.

mittee has been continuously at work since the time of its appointment and has decided that the monument shall take the shape of a memorial building. The committee now asks that subscriptions for this purpose be sent to the chairman, William F. Gude, 1214 F street, northwest, so that the memorial may take tangible form at the earliest possible date.

Although outdoor sweet peas are coming into the market from every truck farm within shipping distance and are being practically given away, Gude Bros. Co. is devoting an entire house to this flower and is producing some of the finest stock ever seen here. This is being grown especially for the June brides, and is mainly of the Spencer type. This company furnished a large number of designs on the occasion of the unveiling of the confederate monument at the Arlington national cemetery June 4. Two hundred yards of garlands and fifty laurel wreaths were furnished for the government for presentation, and a number of wreaths, etc., for the southern states. This firm also did the decoration at the assembly hall of the United States Military Academy, at Annapolis, Md., for the annual german given by the graduating midshipmen. A novel tribute to the ladies was contained in a large heart design, eleven feet in diameter, standing three feet above the floor, covered with Asparagus plumosus, with the figures 1914 in white carnations across the center. Around this heart were 140 bunches of American Beauties, each tied with three yards of American Beauty ribbon. As each lady passed the heart she was presented with one of the bunches of Beauties. All of the roses had been carefully dethorned and so tied that they could be used as wands to be waved by the ladies in the fancy dress ball. Mr. Gude personally superintended the work.

George H. Cooke will give up his store at Connecticut avenue and L street, northwest, early next week and at that time work will be commenced on the demolition of a number of build-

Good Flowers during the Summer Months

Some of our growers make a special effort to produce good flowers during the summer months. They have found it profitable and we find ready sale for all the good stock. We offer you as good a supply as you will find in this market.

There is always a demand for good flowers and for this week we can recommend to you:

BEAUTIES: The supply is large enough to fill all orders. The quality is excellent. $1.00-$3.00 per dozen.

SWEET PEAS: The outdoor Peas we are getting in now are in fine condition. We have them in all colors and have a large, fresh supply of them every morning.

GLADIOLUS: America, Augusta, and other good commercial varieties. They make a good showing and prices are very reasonable—$6.00-$8.00 per 100.

EASTER LILIES: Can ship them in bud or open flowers. We expect to have a good supply of them every day. The quality of the flowers is as good now as at any other time of the year.

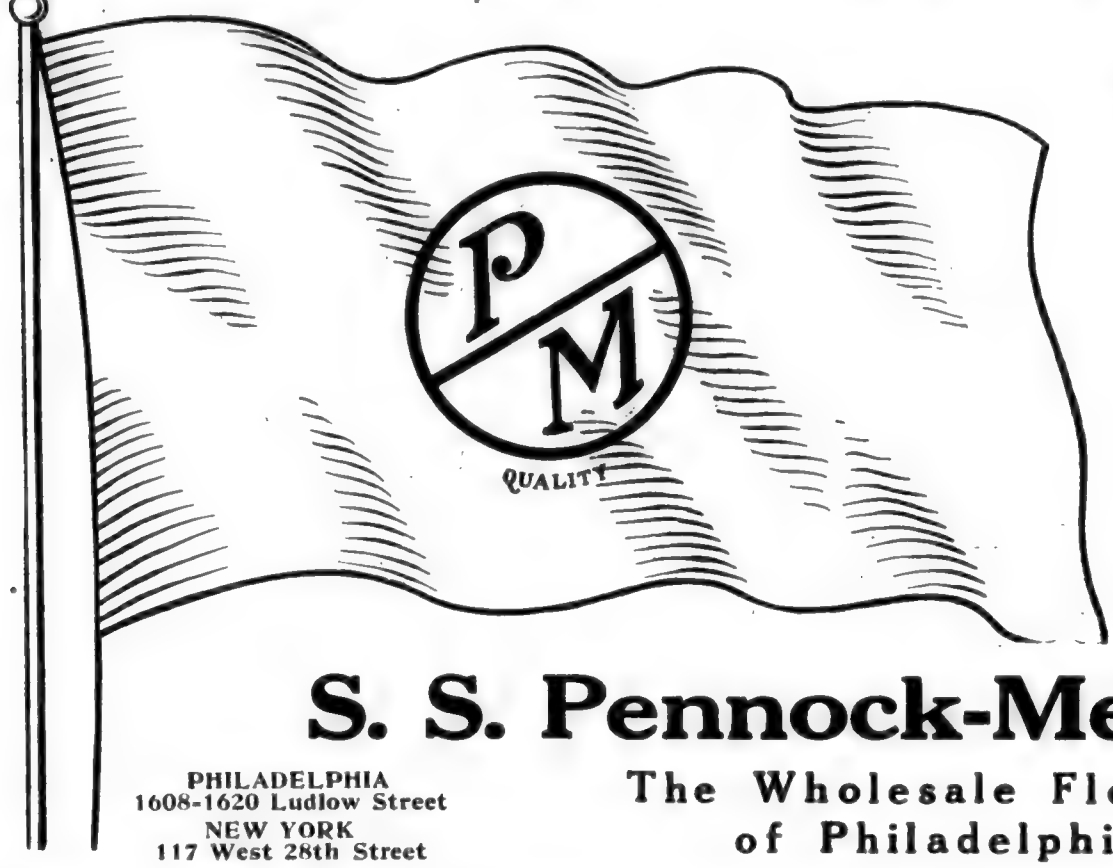
ings in the block occupied by him, to make room for a modern store building. This will be completed in the early fall, when Mr. Cooke will lease the store that is to be located on the site of the one that adjoins his present quarters on Connecticut avenue. In the meantime he will endeavor to secure a temporary location in the vicinity.

Henry Pfister is giving up his store at 1120 Connecticut avenue, northwest, and is about to leave for a European trip. He expects to return to this country early in the fall and will probably reopen a store in this city. His equipment was sold at public auction recently. C. L. L.

PHILADELPHIA.



The Eastern Market.

There has been little improvement in business during the last week. The supply of flowers continues far in excess of the demand. While there is activity at times, it is not sufficient to make much impression on the market. The commencements and weddings have given some of the retailers a good deal of work, consuming choice material, but with so heavy a stock of flowers to draw from the wholesalers have not been able to make much headway in marketing the receipts. Valley has been the most buoyant flower on the list; for it an active demand has been well maintained. Beauties, at times, have shared with valley in popular favor. Outside of these two varieties of flowers there has been little life in the buying, with the possible exception of good white roses. Sweet peas, while fine and selling well, have been in such heavy supply that there were more than enough. It was an error to say that indoor sweet peas and gardenias are over for the season; they are not. Carnations have suffered most from the heat, which has returned. There are some nice iris coming in from outdoors. Peonies are about over locally. There are enough in cold storage to satisfy all demands for some time to come.

orated. J. J. Habermehl's Sons are the official decorators, which means that besides handsome plant and electrical decorations in the meeting hall they have adorned some 600 booths, where exhibits are displayed, with window boxes and decorative plants, and lights. John P. Habermehl and Edward Habermehl had a corps of fifteen skilled assistants and five carloads of material at their command. Great numbers of combination boxes of plants were made up for the booths, similar to those that are arranged for Christmas or Easter. The effect is said by those who have seen it to be extremely fine. This is the fourth year the firm has arranged the decorations for this meeting.

The Club Outing.

The committee in charge of the Florists' Club's outing, to be held at Schuetzen park, Monday, June 22, went out to the grounds June 8 to perfect the arrangements. There will be a baseball game between the Wholesalers and Growers on one side and the Seedsmen and Retailers on the other. There will be a variety of sports, with handsome prizes, including a tug-of-war between the same sides as in the ball game. There will be music, dancing and a dinner. Tickets are $1.50 each. It is hoped everybody will come and bring his wife, or the lady who is to be, to help make the affair a glorious success. Trains leave Reading terminal for Tabor Junction, at which point be sure to get off, at 1:14 p. m. and at frequent intervals thereafter.

A Distinguished Visitor.

It had been noised around town some ten days before the June meeting of the club that George Watson had received a telephone message from Burpee's to hold himself in readiness to meet a distinguished visitor and show him the horticultural points of interest in our city. Although Barkis was willin', there was nothing doing and few knew that the distinguished visitor had come to town and was quietly seeing the sights. Antoine Wintzer knew; J. Otto Thilow knew; the Burpees of course knew, and somehow Edward Reid knew. This is shown by the announcement on the club notices for the meeting June 2. These same notices held the visitor one day longer than he had intended to stay before going to New York, for when he dropped in at Dreer's to say good-bye he was confronted with the notice and, being a kindly man, stayed over to keep his totally unexpected engagement with the club.

The members were dropping in by ones and twos when a stranger appeared with the inquiry for the club's meeting place. It was P. D. Barnhart, of Los Angeles, Cal., who is almost as well known in the east as in the west. Mr. Barnhart came east to visit Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York and Rochester, spending a few days in each city. He will return home June 18. The visitor received as cordial a welcome in the chief city of his native state as his best friends could have wished. The members were presented as they dropped in—Emil H. Gerschick, who has come from Germany to the scene of his success in Germantown; George C. Watson, who always has something bright to say in a sprightly sort of way; Robert Kift, who was known by fame to the visitor; David Rust, who was as David to Jonathan in thirty seconds or so; Adolph Farenwald, diverted for the moment from affiliation, and George Burton, recognized today as our most progressive grower. Mr. Barnhart chatted pleasantly with each and all.

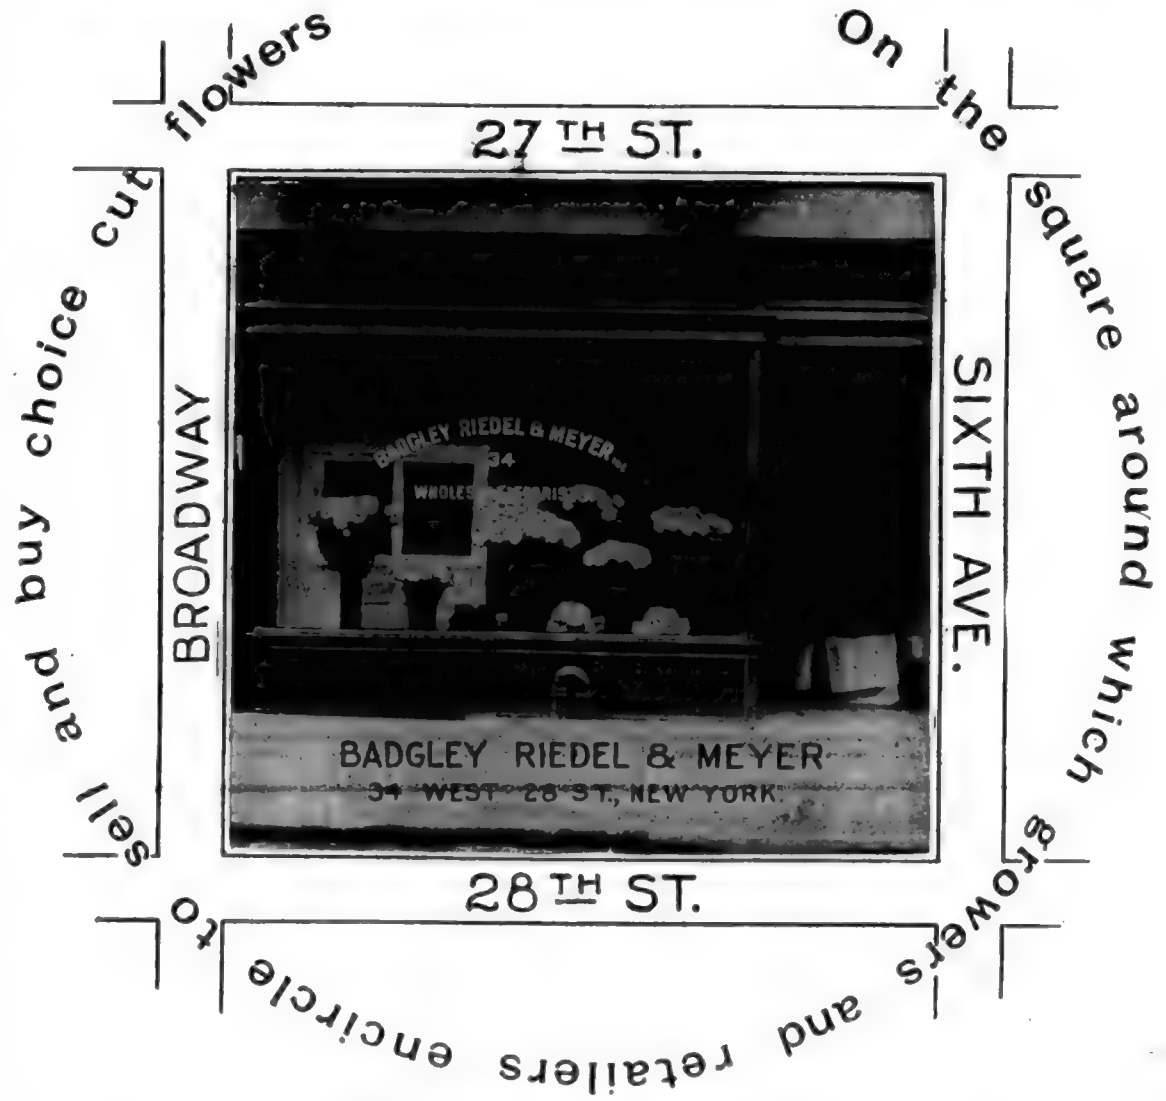
Then President Thilow called the meeting to order. After routine business he introduced Mr. Barnhart as a man who was well worth hearing, whatever he may choose to say, and spoke of the pleasant days he had spent with the visitor at his home in Los Angeles. Mr. Barnhart gave a delightful account of California, its size, its climate, its products and its people. He seemed to know just what his hearers would like, and he told it to them in charming fashion. Facts and truths were illuminated by anecdote and enlivened by witticisms. There is a sort of unwritten rule in the Florists' Club fixing the time a speaker may consume. Most speakers find difficulty in reaching this limit; Mr. Barnhart exceeded it, so delightfully that no one noticed (except those at home), and after the round of applause that marked the conclusion he was surrounded by those who, like Oliver Twist, wanted more and said so. Mr. Barnhart talked of Edwin Lonsdale, whom he had visited with much pleasure at Lompoc; of Albert Knapper, who is flourishing in Los Angeles; of callas and freesias and Burbank and all the topics of mutual interest. His visit will be long and pleasantly remembered by all his friends in the City of Brotherly Love.



Various Notes.

Anthony Waterer, son of Hosea Waterer, the well-known seedsman of this city, was married to Miss Merriman June 10. Mr. Waterer, who is associated with his father, is popular among his business friends. Many good wishes are heard on all sides for the happiness of the young couple.

Charles Henry Fox has sailed for Europe.

The rose and peony show of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, held in Horticultural hall June 4, brought out some excellent exhibits in both classes.

Charles P. Poryzees sailed June 1 for his home in Greece.

The June meeting of the Germantown Horticultural Society was a banner affair. There were exhibits for the regular and the Jane E. Haines rose prizes, much interest, and an illustrated rose lecture by Robert Pyle.

The Market.

Local florists are busy stocking up for the next season. It has been an extra busy week for the majority of them, considering the small amount of stock left over after Memorial day. Cut flowers, which were scarce, are now plentiful and are retailing at low prices. Roses are retailing as low as a cent apiece, with carnations selling at 35 to 50 cents per dozen. Aster plants are selling readily at 15 cents per dozen.

Various Notes.

The Rustic Flower Store, of Woonsocket, reports that the business of the last two weeks exceeded that of the same two weeks of last year.

Fire destroyed the Vose homestead, at Cumberland Hill, recently. Alonzo Vose, the Woonsocket florist, who is a near relative, had ornamented the grounds and house with numerous expensive plants and shrubs, all of which were destroyed.

Last week M. J. Leach & Sons put out a large number of corsage bouquets made of pansies.

The Lonsdale Co. has a gang of men spraying trees in town, in an effort to rid them of pests. B.

Princeton, Ill.—George H. Jennings, foreman for the Trimble Greenhouse Co., reports that Beauties are planted and that the force is busy benching mums and carnations. Miss Bertha Godfrey, bookkeeper, is in Chicago on her vacation and to visit the wholesale florists.

PAGES OF RETAILERS' CARDS

THIS department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists—those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists—has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share—well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand.

To be represented costs only 70 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

Why not send your order today—now—before you forget it?

Gentlemen:

During the past year I paid you $18.20 for a half inch advertisement in the Retail Florists Department of The Review. I received through this small advertisement, from January 1, 1913, to December 31, 1913, orders to the amount of $566.00. They came by mail and telegraph from New York to San Francisco and from New Orleans to Minneapolis. Since I allowed the senders 20%, the record is as follows:

Total value of orders	$566.00
Less 20% allowed senders.. .. .	113.20
Net value of orders..... .:.	452.80

Here is an addition of $452.80 in business which could not otherwise have been obtained and at an expense of only $18.20.

Since my advertisement appeared only in The Review it goes to show what the retail florists through the country lose if they do not use this medium of advertising It also goes to show that The Review is not only there with a big "R" but that it has three more big "R's" - Readers - Reliability - Results!

Yours respectfully,

J. J. Beneke

The Market.

Business has not yet recovered from the stagnation which immediately followed Memorial day. The number of June weddings seems to be larger than ever, but purchases of flowers for them have been disappointing. The hope of growers now is that the graduation exercises, soon to come, will create at least a temporary activity. American Beauties have been hard to move; $10 to $15 per hundred are low prices for the best long-stemmed flowers even in June. Other roses are selling proportionately low; $5 per thousand buys many, with the select up to that price per hundred. The tendency on every hand, however, seems to be for medium and short grades. Some nice Kaiserin roses are now arriving. Carnations are druggy, the price being from 25 cents to $2 per hundred. The quality is deteriorating. Spencer sweet peas have sold well, but grandifloras are slow to move.

Callas and lilies both are selling low. Good yellow marguerites are in demand. Cattleyas have been moving somewhat better during the last week, and valley has had a good sale for weddings. Such miscellaneous flowers as candytuft, feverfew, stocks, snapdragons, etc., many of which bloomed too late for Memorial day, are hard to sell at any price; so is spiræa. For gladioli there is a fair sale; also for good peonies, which are now coming in locally. The call for asparagus and ferns has been better. Bedding plant trade continues good.

Various Notes.

Miss Ethel Violet Fisher, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Fisher, of Ellis, was married June 3 to Charles Elmer Clapp, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Clapp, of Dedham, at the bride's home. The officiating ministers were Rev. M. R. Foshay, of Manchester, N. H., and Rev. W. H. Parker, of the Dedham Unitarian church. The house was beautifully decorated with handsome vases of Gorgeous, Benora and other carnations grown by the father of the bride, and valley, roses, cattleyas and other flowers were used in profusion. Hundreds of friends attended the reception following the wedding, including many in the trade. One room was entirely devoted to a magnificent collection of presents, attesting the esteem in which the young people are held.

Another wedding which attracted a large number of florists was that of Miss Josephine Newell Millett and Harold Joseph Patten, second son of Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Patten, of Tewksbury. The wedding ceremony was performed June 10 at the home of the bridegroom by the Rev. Sarah A. Dixon. A reception of a military character was later held at Pickering hall, Tewksbury. There were twelve ushers in military attire from the militia company of which the bridegroom is captain. At the wedding Major C. A. Stevens was best man, Miss Mildred Millett maid of honor, Helen Lee Patten, the little daughter of W. A. Patten, flower girl, and Wesley Millett page. Decorations at both house and hall were beautiful and the young couple were well remembered by their hosts of friends.

The first asters of the season were shown by W. B. Goodenow, of Stoughton, at the wholesale markets June 6.

Careful attention to packing for deliveries to all Southern and Middle States.

Mass., who has used the same wreath now for three years, bringing it home the evening of Memorial day, boxing it up carefully, then unpacking and dusting it over as another festival came round and carrying it to her husband's grave in Wilmington. If generally adopted, how would this custom benefit the cut flower trade, Mr. Berkowitz?

Mrs. W. H. Ward, of Montvale, at present has a fine cut of both Mrs. Sander and yellow marguerites. Carnations did particularly well last season.

Penn is being kept busy with wedding orders this month. June 6 he had elaborate decorations both at the house and church in Concord, Mass., for the wedding of Miss Helen Warren and Samuel Hoar, son of Ex-senator Hoar. He is trying to popularize the use of cattleyas for weddings and is using them with telling effect in his window decorations.

David Lumsden, of Durham, N. H., leaves June 11 to take up his new position as assistant professor of floriculture at Cornell, N. Y. A successor to Mr. Lumsden has not yet been appointed.

A. Daniels, of Penn's staff, is able to resume his duties after a serious illness of six weeks. His many friends are glad to see him around again.

The Boston Cut Flower Co. had the decorations for the Olmstead-Grey wedding June 4 at the church of Our Savior, Brookline, having both the house and church decorations. The company reports good June business.

J. W. Simpson, of Woburn, can grow yellow marguerites of a quality rarely equaled even in the Boston market. He still is cutting 10,000 a week, which sell at $1.50 to $2 per hundred, when many go at 35 to 50 cents.

P. J. Donahoe, of the Boston Rose Co., is receiving large shipments of high-grade American Beauties. He says it is hard to get over $10 and $15 per hundred for the best, which should ordinarily bring $25 easily. He finds the demand increases for medium and short-stemmed stock, at the expense of fancy grades.

The store operated for many years by W. E. Doyle and the W. E. Doyle Co., on Boylston street, now is closed.

There would seem to be a good opening in this section for another wide-awake and progressive florist.

H. M. Robinson & Co. report good June business. Their Memorial day trade in artificial flowers exceeded all expectations.

The ladies' night at the Gardeners' and Florists' Club June 16 will be the event of the coming week and a splendid entertainment has been prepared. An attendance of over 300 is assured.

A. M. Davenport has so many orders for his new begonia, Florence Davenport, that he will be taxed to fill them. He has had a record season in sales of bedding plants.

Galvin's force, both at the Back Bay and Tremont street stores, are being kept on the jump with wedding orders. I noticed a fine display of nymphæas at the Tremont street store June 6.

The estate of Prof. C. S. Sargent, Holm Lea, Brookline, was opened to the public June 6 and 7. Thousands of visitors availed themselves of the opportunity to view the displays of rhododendrons, azaleas, standard wistarias and numerous other plants on this beautiful estate, presided over by Charles Sander.

Referring to the late Memorial day trade, not a single local florist advertised anything but artificial wreaths; several thousand dollars were spent in this way. While it is true that this trade can be viewed from more than one point, I fail to see how it can benefit the cut flower industry. The artificial business was manifestly overdone this year. In 1915 the dry-goods stores will specialize more in them and get thousands of dollars which the florists should have.

William Jurgens, of Newport, is sending in some fine Kaiserin roses and lilies of the valley.

sprayers can be seen at work spraying trees to save them from the ravages of the gypsy and brown-tail moths, glow beetle and other pests. As if Massachusetts had not already more than her share of caterpillars, a new variety has appeared this season in innumerable hordes, in the form of a green tent-caterpillar, and is defoliating oaks with a speed unattainable by even the gypsies. Some day in the near future, by encouraging insectivorous birds, planting disease cultures and multiplying the natural parasites of our present foes, we may be able to reduce their ravages to a minimum without spraying. W. N. Craig.

The Market.

The market has been completely demoralized for the last week, owing to the great number of carnations that were brought on by the extreme heat. The supply was so large and the stock as a rule so poor that they sold for almost any price. This stock is now improving, however, and the quantity, while still large, is shortening up to some extent. While some growers' stocks are coming in heavily, others are going off crop, and it is expected that there will be a return to normal conditions within a few days, although there will be plenty of stock to take care of all orders. Roses are not as plentiful as they have been and the supply is about equal to the demand. The quality of the stock is excellent and there are some exceptionally fine Tafts, Sunbursts and Russells on the market at this time.

Sweet peas have also shortened up and there has been a shortage of this stock in the last few days. Southern gladioli are beginning to come in and the stock looks fine. Iris is past and gone, and bulbous stock in general is entirely out of the market. Home-grown peonies are appearing in the market and are looking good.

Spring plants are still selling well and sales for this year have increased to a marked degree.

Damage by Storm.

Milwaukee and vicinity were treated to a combination cloudburst and hail storm Sunday, May 31. The wind attained a fearful velocity and did great damage to everything in its path. The course of the storm was about one-half mile wide and ran southeast from Wauwatosa, through the Menominee valley, into the lake. Large trees were torn up by the roots and fences were laid low. After it was all over, there were about two feet of hailstones in the gutters and the landscape was considerably altered.

The Wauwatosa Floral Co. sustained a loss of about $1,000 in glass and outdoor stock. Some of the sash was blown clear across the river and it is indeed surprising that any of it is still intact. Tomato plants were nothing but stumps, where beautiful plants had been.

Mrs. Freytag lost a lot of young carnation plants set out and also other bedding stock. A large number of panes of glass were broken.

F. Schmeling's place was also damaged to some extent and the end of one of the houses was blown in.

Currie Bros. Co. had a fine lot of peonies just coming on, which were almost all spoiled. The damage to the peony crop in this locality was enormous and it will cause a shortage in this stock for a time.

F. P. Diiger, at 418 Pryor avenue, lost about 7,000 lights and the outside stock was demoralized. Taken all in all, this storm was one which we would not like to see repeated for some time to come. H. J. S.

ST. LOUIS.

The Southwestern Market.

The daily receipts at the wholesale houses since Memorial day have almost taxed their capacity. The crowded conditions and the extremely low prices prevailing did not seem to influence the retailers to buy heavily. They report their end of the business as being exceptionally dull, aside from a few small weddings and funeral work. These conditions were brought about mainly by the extremely hot and dry weather. Rain is needed badly and the country florists fear their water supply will run short. The stock coming in shows the effects of the weather, as really first-class stock from home growers is out of the question.

In looking over the large consignments at the markets, we find sweet peas and candidum lilies in great abundance; also cape jasmines, which have little call at present. Gladiolus spikes are fine. America, Mrs. Francis King, Augusta, Bride and Chicago White have dropped in price to $4 per hundred. Roses that are shipped in arrive in poor condition; local stock is much better at present. There are plenty of roses, but only the best have any demand. Easter lilies are fine, as is valley. Field daisies are in heavy supply, as are all other outdoor flowers. Ferns are scarce, but other greens are plentiful. This is graduation week and should wake us up a little with some extra business.

Various Notes.

The St. Louis County Growers' Association held its monthly meeting Wednesday, June 3, in the rooms at the Eleven Mile house. President Vennemann presided. The meeting was fairly well attended and a lot of business which had accumulated since the last meeting was cleaned up.

The Lady Florists' Home Circle did not meet as usual June 10. The next meeting of the ladies will take place at the home of Mrs. A. Meyer, Jr., 3218 South Jefferson avenue, Wednesday, June 17.

A. S. Halstead, of the St. Clair Floral Co., and E. W. Guy, both of Belleville, were callers last week. They say that the Belleville florists enjoyed a nice Memorial day business. Plants sold much better than cut flowers.

Alex. Siegel is reported as having been confined to his home with sickness since before Memorial day. He says that just as soon as he gets over this spell it's up north for him for his usual summer fishing at the lakes.

John Dougherty, an employee of the city forester, while trimming trees in one of the parks, fell twenty-five feet from a limb and was impaled on an iron fence. He was taken to the City hospital, where his condition is considered serious.

William C. Young, head of the greenhouse plant of the C. Young & Sons Co., contemplates a northern trip. Mr. Young's health has not been of the best this year and he thinks a few months away from business cares will do him a world of good.

The W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. last week handled a large quantity of extra fine candidum lilies and gladioli. However, they say the demand was so slow all the week that cleaning up was out of the question.

Thomas Carr and F. Wilkerson, Union Market florists, report a good season in plants, seeds and bulbs. Demand is about over, though business was still good in many lines last week.

William Bouche, consulting landscape architect, says that he has had a busy season and that he had great trouble in finding men to carry out his plans.

The wholesalers are about to circulate a paper for the signatures of the retailers to close up shop on Tuesdays, at least for the summer months. I am inclined to think they have undertaken a big job, as some of the retailers will not be able to find their keys to lock up.

The planting season this year has been a busy one, but this week will about finish it up. The long dry spell has caused the plants to suffer greatly all over the city, and many have had to be replaced.

St. Louis county, and especially Kirkwood, which is known for its many greenhouses, is alive with workmen building new houses and remodeling the old cnes. Work of this kind has been going on for some time and will continue all summer. Many thousand feet of glass will be added by fall.

Werner Bros., at Clayton, have completed two new houses and have three more, each 28x150, in course of erection. The two completed houses are

THE GENUS IRIS

By WILLIAM RICKATSON DYKES

With 48 colored plates and 30 line drawings in the text

This magnificent work brings together the available information on all known species of Iris. The most striking feature of the book is the life-size colored plates, reproduced from originals drawn from living plants—making it a volume of remarkable beauty as well as of great scientific importance.

254 pages, demi folio, half morocco, $37.50. Postage extra (weight 11 lbs. 7 oz.)

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

A NEW firm has entered the nursery business at Painesville, O. The members are R. E. Jackson and H. C. Bickle.

THIS year the Hannay Nursery Co., of San Jose, Cal., passes the half-century mark in age. It is one of the oldest concerns in the state, having been established in 1864.

THE wide trade acquaintance of Charles Willis Ward will cause special interest to be taken in the article, "Ward Starts Pacific Nursery," on page 72 of this issue.

J. E. BARTON, a citrus nurseryman of Tulare county, Cal., has associated himself with James Hanson, of Milpitas, Cal., and will engage in growing citrus nursery stock at Milpitas.

THE landscape garden department in the western Washington fair, at Puyallup, one of this year's innovations, will be in the charge of Joseph Mitchell, of the Larchmont nurseries.

IN his two fields at La Salle, Ill., George Winter, proprietor of the La Salle County Nursery, has approximately 40,000 peonies, which have been one of the sights of the town of late.

THE planting of a 35-acre orchard at Freedom, Wis., was recently completed, under the supervision of George Weinke, and required 3,000 trees, from the Great Northern Nursery Co., at Baraboo, Wis.

THE park department of Columbus, O., is to have a nursery in which to grow stock for its parks and boulevards. Thirteen acres are to be utilized by Superintendent Charles Sargent next fall for this purpose.

FRANK W. ROYDEN, the lessee of the Scotch Grove Nursery, formerly operated by Hoyt Bros., at Scotch Grove, Ia., reports this spring's business twenty per cent in advance of that done in the corresponding period last year.

MINNESOTA nurserymen report this spring's business to have been, in nearly every case, the best on record. Shade and fruit trees, particularly apple, make up the larger part of the sales, while shrubs and berry plants run strong.

THE publication of the annual lists of stockholders in Chicago banks shows William A. Peterson, proprietor of Peterson Nursery, as the owner of 265 shares in the State Bank of Chicago, of which he is a director. The stock has a book value of $292 and has sold as high as $405 in the last year.

MAIL SHIPMENTS REGULATED.

The Postoffice Department has issued an order prescribing conditions governing the transmission of nursery stock in the mails. Complaint has been made to the department that some postmasters accept for mailing parcels of nursery stock which are not accompanied with certificates of inspection and not marked to show the nature of the contents, as required by the postal laws. Complaint has also been made that some postmasters, on receipt of a written request from an officer of a state having a law regarding the inspection of nursery stock coming into the state, fail to furnish such officer the names of persons to whom are addressed parcels of nursery stock received from a point without the state, as also required by the regulations. The careful attention of postmasters is directed by the department to the law and they are instructed to comply strictly with the requirements thereof. P.

CONVENTION PROGRAM.

Association Meeting at Cleveland.

A program of great interest and value to nurserymen from all parts of the country has been prepared for the thirty-ninth annual convention of the American Association of Nurserymen, to be held at the Hollenden hotel, Cleveland, June 24 to 26. The problem of uniform legislation will have an important place on the program and the discussion of this subject will undoubtedly be productive of results, after a year's thought and work by the men who have been assigned to deal with this question. Many of the papers are on practical, every-day subjects and will be of decided profit to the hearers.

The program in detail is as follows:

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 24, 9:30 A. M.

Invocation, by Rev. C. S. Harrison, York, Neb.

Address of welcome, by Hon. Newton D. Baker, mayor of Cleveland.

Response, by J. W. Hill, Des Moines, Ia.

President's address, by J. B. Pilkington, Portland, Ore.

Report of secretary, by John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.

Report of treasurer, by Peter Youngers, Geneva, Neb.

Reports of committees: Entertainment, by W. B. Cole, Painesville, O.; legislative, east of Mississippi river, by Wm. Pitkin, Rochester, N. Y.; legislative, west of Mississippi river, by Peter Youngers, Geneva, Neb.; tariff, by J. McHutchison, New York; transportation, by C. M. Sizemore, Louisiana, Mo.; coöperation with entomologists, by L. A. Berckmans, Augusta, Ga.; root gall, by E. A. Smith, Lake City, Minn.

"The Mission of Beauty," by C. S. Harrison, of Harrison's Select Nursery, York, Neb.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 24, 1:30 P. M.

Meeting of the state vice-presidents. Members from each state are urged to consult together and name their choice for their vice-president.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 24, 2 P. M.

"Some Reminiscences," by Ethan Allen Chase, Riverside, Cal.

"Pecans for Profit," by W. C. Reed, Vincennes, Ind.

Report of committee on uniform legislation, by William Pitkin, secretary to committee. Discussion, by Prof. J. G. Sanders, state entomologist, Madison, Wis., and Prof. E. L. Worsham, state entomologist, Atlanta, Ga.

"Roses," illustrated with lantern slides, by Robert Pyle, president of the Conard & Jones Co., West Grove, Pa.

"Ohio Nurseries," illustrated with lantern slides, by N. E. Shaw, Ohio state inspector, Columbus.

Resolutions.

Adjournment.

Entertainment.

The pleasure features of the convention are also to be attractive. W. B. Cole is the chairman of the committee having this in charge and will undoubtedly give the full particulars of this part of the program at the opening session. Various items have been given from time to time in these columns and the efforts of Mr. Cole and the Ohio Nurserymen's Association should bring out something more than ordinary in the line of recreation.

The arrangements include an automobile ride Thursday afternoon, June 25, through the parks and boulevards of the city, after which light refreshments will be served at Shaker lake. The city forester and his department are doing their part to make this a success. Thursday evening, from 8:30 to 10:30, there will be a boat ride on Lake Erie on the steamer State of Ohio. Afternoon entertainments are being prepared for the ladies.

Exhibits.

In regard to exhibits, Chairman T. B. West writes: "The committee on exhibits will endeavor, as far as possible, to find a place for all exhibits that will be of interest to the nurserymen or visitors. As the space for exhibits will be free to the exhibitor, he is expected to install his exhibit and take charge of it. We have four large rooms assigned us by the hotel management, which the committee thinks will be ample space; if not, more space will be available. Implements and machinery will have to be crated or taken apart so they will pass through an ordinary door, there being no large doors. Application for this space should be made by exhibitor to any member of the committee, namely: T. B. West, Perry, O.; Thomas B. Meehan, Dresher, Pa.; W. N. Scarff, New Carlisle, O., or Edward George, Painesville, O."

Badges.

Badges will be distributed at the meeting and members are reminded not to leave their badge books at home.

The secretary, John Hall, expects to be in Cleveland, at the Hollenden hotel, Tuesday morning, June 23.

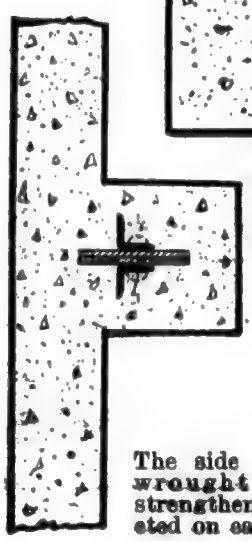
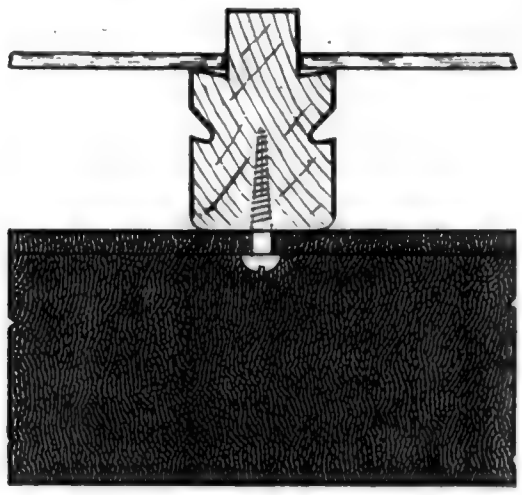
SHRUBS FOR NORTH EXPOSURE.

Please tell me what to plant on the north side of my home. I want to plant close to the basement, in order to hide it. I should like a shrub which will not grow over two and one-half feet high, and which will be hardy and have many flowers. H. E. M.

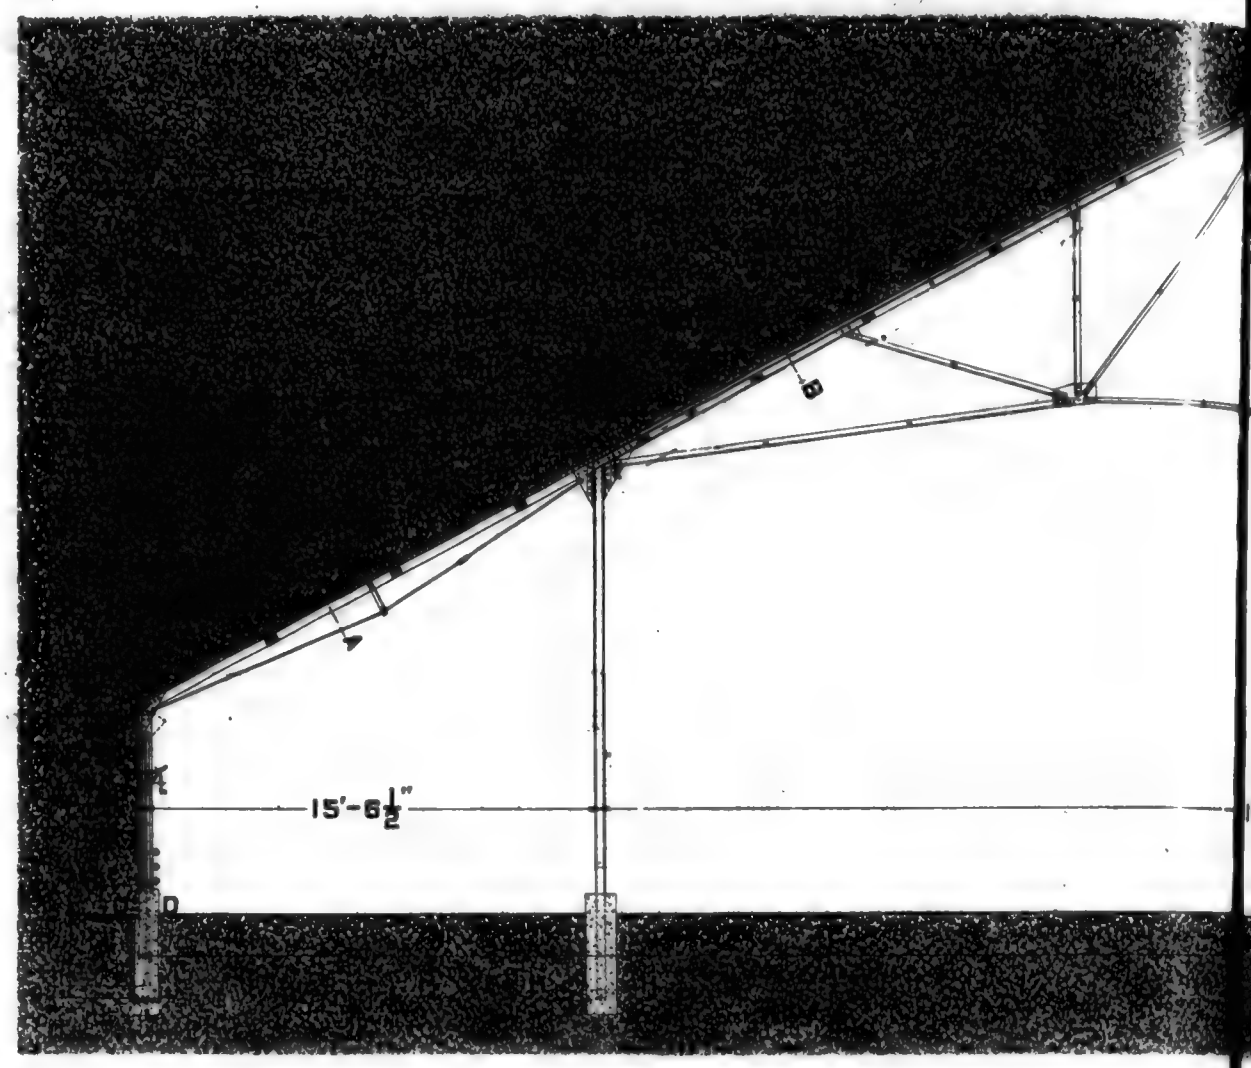


You cannot get any shrub as low as you mention which will give you many flowers. Dwarf rhododendrons, like Boule de Neige, would be all right for some years; so would Andromeda floribunda and speciosa. These latter flower in spring and are evergreen. Euonymus radicans vegetus would make a splendid evergreen for such a situation. Its flowers, however, are not conspicuous, but its berries are attractive. I do not know of any better plant for you to use than this. If you manure the plants well they will grow rapidly. In deciduous shrubs, Berberis Thunbergii would, in time, become a little taller than you desire, but could easily be kept down to the desired height.

C. W.



David City, Neb.—Mrs. A. L. Mehuron, proprietor of the Sunnyside Greenhouse, reports a complete cleanup of everything in plants and cut flowers for Memorial day.



The columns are I-shaped like this and set in concrete footings.

The side posts are guaranteed wrought iron, stiffened and strengthened by angle irons riveted on each side.

Each roof bar is screwed to each purlin, which are spaced 5 feet apart, or nine on each side of the roof.

Two Column Ho

STOP and think of the shaking of heads there was when L. & B. blazed the wide house trail by erecting the first iron framer, 40 feet wide and having only two columns. Mr. Alexander Montgomery, when he first had the bravery to buy from us such a house for the Waban Rose Conservatory, put the hand of greenhouse building progress ahead many more years than even his most sanguine imagination could have pictured.

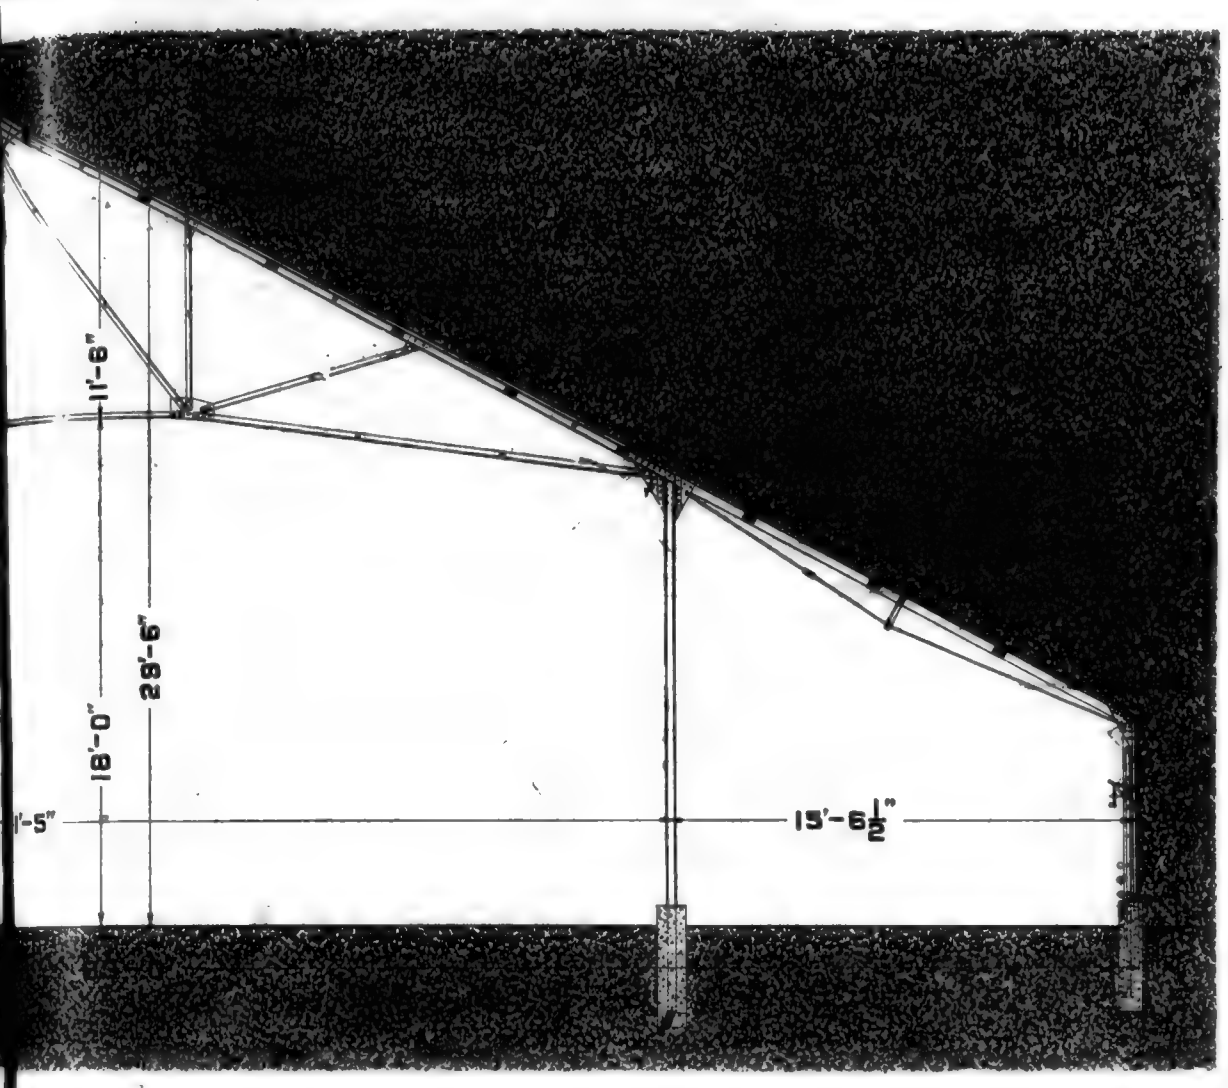
Ever since then we have been making our houses wider and wider—but always making them safe and sure.

This Spring we completed a house over Boston way that is 80 feet wide and 600 feet long (we will show you photos of it in our next ad). Between the two columns you could place the 40-foot Waban house and still have room to do a tango dance on either side.

But not satisfied with an 80-footer, we have now designed this one 83 feet wide. All the engineers in our engineering department say it's the finest piece of commercial construction that L. & B. have ever laid out.

Let's go over, together, the main features and see if you don't agree with them. First, however, just take a glance at the distance between the two I-shaped columns. It is 51 feet 5 inches. Think what a fine, big, broad open space that gives! Even though the ridge is only a little over 29 feet high, still the roof pitch is ample.

First let's start at the sides in looking over the construction itself. The posts are made of flat guaranteed wrought iron, on each side of which is riveted a steel angle, making it much stronger and stiffer than a solid post would be of twice the thickness. Those posts will do their part all right and have a good margin left over for meeting extraordinary conditions of snows and blows.



The flat iron rafter which extends from the eave to the

The rafter from the eave to the column is flat steel, to which the three purlins are bolted and the cypress glazing cap screwed.

From the column to the ridge the rafters are double channel iron, between which the flat rafter is bolted at the point where it is secured to the column. The rafter glazing cap is held firmly by two screws placed at intervals up the roof.

e 83 Feet Wide

column is secured to the eave by a double steel gusset plate. It is stiffened by a truss running from the gusset plate at the eave to the one at the column. From the column to the ridge the rafter is made of two channel irons, between which the flat iron rafter is joined at the I-shaped column by gusset plates. The trussing between the columns and ridge is made of double angle irons. Notice that the truss ties running from the columns to the struts do not go straight across, but slant upward, practically forming an arch. Everybody knows that an arch is one of the oldest and strongest forms of construction.

So strongly framed is this house, that if the rafters and side posts on each side of the columns were taken away altogether, that part of the house left would be entirely self-sustaining.

As apparently simple as the construction is (now that it is all worked out and before your eyes), nevertheless it took our engineers considerably over two weeks hard plugging to figure out the stress and strains on all the various parts of the frame, and to know to almost an ounce, exactly what weight of wind or snow pressure would be exerted on the roof at any and all points.

There is not a bit of guess work in that entire construction. It is all based on facts and figures. Not the figures of some mechanical construction book, compiled by a sky scraper engineer or bridge builder—but the facts and figures accumulated and proven in our business of more than half a century of greenhouse building.

This 83 footer is a great house. A safe and sure house.

Now where is the progressive grower who wants to talk it over with us?

Say when and where and we'll be there.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

President, C. C. Massie, Minneapolis; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O. Thirty-second annual convention, Washington, D. C., June 23 to 25, 1914.

THE cantaloupe that was cut by hail at Rocky Ford has been replanted.

THE Albert Dickinson Co., Chicago, maintains a team of employees in the local Industrial League of baseball clubs.

OUR friends the pea packers, who were beginning to despair of a crop, were greatly encouraged by last week's general rains.

AMERICAN grown radish is gaining in reputation and the acreage for 1914 probably will turn out to be the largest ever planted outside of France.

WHEN the seed trade visits Washington this month there will be two places of special interest—the government seed laboratory and the laboratory of the canners' association.

OF peas the acreage is reported as somewhat larger than last year, with present conditions satisfactory, although it is well known that the critical stage has not yet been reached.

EXTREME heat seems to be the portion of Iowa, Kansas and Nebraska. Nothing approaching last season's conditions have developed thus early, of course, but last week the three states were the hottest in the country, warmer even than the gulf states.

APHIS now in the clover is likely to destroy the entire seed crop in the Oregon district if the clover is not cut immediately, according to Cecil W. Creel, United States government expert on clover, who has his headquarters at Forest Grove, Ore. Already some damage has been done and the greater the delay the larger the loss.

PUBLICATION of the annual lists of holders of Chicago bank stocks shows Joseph J. Budlong, who once upon a time had onion sets as his chief interest, as the largest stockholder in the Lake View Trust and Savings Bank, of which he is president. The lists show he holds 398 shares, quoted at 178 bid. The bank has increased its capital items nearly $100,000 in the last year.

ACCOUNTS coming to hand as the trade casts up its season's totals indicate that the mail order business for 1914 has set a new record. Practically all the newer, pushing middle western and southern catalogue houses are reporting larger increases than in any previous year and several of the older eastern concerns with established, stable business, say they have had unusually good business this year. Most of them credit climatic conditions as largely responsible. It was a long season.

TANGO

Hesitation, Turkey Trot, Maxixe, One Step—the up-to-date dances—to the old school of Waltzes, Lanciers, York, Schottische, Quadrilles and Two Steps, may be a little too fast, but to be modernized the new steps have got to be mastered, or you're a back number. Just so in lily bulbs—formerly you bought over double the amount of bulbs that you counted on for a crop, calculated on a 50% loss. Then Horseshoe Brand Lily Bulbs entered the field—presto! came the change. Today the modern grower buys Horseshoe Brand Lily Bulbs knowing they are the best to be obtained to produce a crop as planned for. Be modernized—buy Horseshoe Brand Lily Bulbs—they average the highest percentage of crop of any lily bulbs in the world. But we make no claim that every bulb will flower—that is beyond human control, bulbs being a product of nature; however, Horseshoe Brand Lily Bulbs, getting every attention, from the time the selected seed bulblets are planted right up to the time they are delivered to you, are as near Simon-pure as human genius can bring them. WHY NOT, INDEED?

Why is it that the United States Department of Agriculture limits its distribution of good things to seeds and plants? Why not experiment, as it must do, with various agricultural implements and distribute free those that give the best results?—New York Sun.

KEEPING RATES RIGHT.

The Interstate Commerce Commission has directed the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railroad to refund $42 to C. C. Morse & Co., a mail order seed house, on account of overcharges on garden seed shipped from San Francisco to Texas points. P.

HAIL AT ROCKY FORD.

According to A. W. Creager, president of the Ebbert Seed Co., Rocky Ford, Colo., following the disastrous hail storm of May 28, cantaloupe, cucumber and other crops are being replanted and with ordinary conditions will yet produce a good crop. One grower who has a field of 240 acres has plowed under his cantaloupe crop and is replanting. This storm extended through the valley from Pueblo to Las Animas, being more severe in the fruit belt at Manzanola than any other point.

RATE APPLICATIONS GRANTED.

The Interstate Commerce Commission has granted the following applications of railroads to establish rates on seeds: To continue the rates from Minneapolis, Minnesota Transfer and St. Paul on traffic originating beyond, to Chicago, via the Minnesota and St. Louis railroad, Albert Lea and Illinois Central railroad; to continue proportional rates from Minneapolis, Minnesota Transfer and St. Paul on traffic originating beyond, to Chicago, Peoria, St. Louis and East St. Louis; to continue proportional rates from St. Louis, East St. Louis, Chicago and Peoria, on traffic originating beyond, to Minneapolis, Minnesota Transfer and St. Paul; to continue local, joint and proportional rates between Minneapolis, Minnesota Transfer and St. Paul and Chicago on the Illinois Central railroad. HOLLANDERS AS RETAILERS.

The editor of The Review, at his home address, has received a circular letter which begins:

"As wholesale growers of Dutch bulbs, such as hyacinths, tulips, narcissi, crocus, etc., which are imported yearly from Holland, we suggest that you deal directly with us, the growers, instead of placing your order with the dealers in America. We have a large trade with the private people in Germany and Great Britain and are able to save them and would SAVE YOU THE PROFITS OF THE DEALERS."

The letter makes it appear that the Royal Eiland Nursery Co., of Hillegom, has established a "temporary American office" at 3 Gramercy Park, New

BODDINGTON'S QUALITY FLOWER SEEDS

SELECTED SEEDS SUCCESSFULLY SOWN SECURE
SURE, SAFE AND SERVICEABLE SATISFACTION

IT has been, is, and always will be our policy and intention to disseminate only the very choicest strains of flowering seeds (or any other varieties of seeds), giving special attention to the class known as Florists' Seeds, and intending customers need have no hesitation in buying or fear of disappointment when they bloom. No expense has been spared to secure the finest types as to habit of plant, form of flower, color and breeding of our Quality strains of Primula, Cineraria, Cyclamen, Calceolaria, etc.

ASPARAGUS

PLUMOSUS NANUS. True greenhouse grown. 50 cts. per 100 seeds, $1.00 for 250 seeds, $3.50 per 1000 seeds.

PLUMOSUS NANUS. California grown. 50 cts. per 100 seeds, 75 cts. for 250 seeds, $2.50 per 1000 seeds.

SPRENGERI. 25 cts. for 250 seeds, 75 cts. per 1000 seeds, $3.00 for 5000 seeds.

CALCEOLARIA HYBRIDA

BODDINGTON'S PERFECTION. The herbaceous Calceolaria is an easily cultivated plant. So long as frost is excluded from the plants in Winter they are perfectly safe, and to attempt to hasten growth at any time is a failure. July is the best month for sowing the seed. The great advance made in the habit of the strains offered is remarkable, whilst in the colors there is a marked improvement. Saved by England's most famous specialists. Monster flowers of rich and varied colors, including spotted, laced, blotched and self-colored varieties. ½ pkt. 60 cts., pkt. $1.00.

Boddington's Matchless CINERARIAS

BODDINGTON'S MATCHLESS CINERARIA. A combination of the three most famous English strains, which we can recommend to those wishing to grow the best. Tall, ½ trade pkt. 60 cts., trade pkt. $1.00; Dwarf, ½ trade pkt. 60 cts., trade pkt. $1.00.

CINERARIA STELLATA (Star-flowering Cineraria). Tall growing, 4 to 5 feet; excellent as a single specimen for table decoration, or for grouping with splendid effect in corridors and conservatories. ½ trade pkt. 60 cts., trade pkt. $1.00.

CANDYTUFT (Iberis) H. A.

BODDINGTON'S GIANT HYACINTH-FLOWERED. Large, pure white, spiral spikes. The finest variety for growing under glass. Trade pkt. 65 cts., oz. $2.00.

MIGNONETTE H. A.

BODDINGTON'S MAJESTY. The finest of all the fancy varieties of Mignonette; an improvement on Allen's Defiance. Seed saved from select spikes under glass. Trade pkt. 60 cts., ⅛ oz. $1.00, oz. $7.50.

BODDINGTON'S POT MYOSOTIS

Forget-Me-Nots are delightful subjects for flowering indoors at Christmas time, and as they are everywhere welcome the practice of growing plants in pots is rapidly increasing. Sown in July and potted on, the strain we offer produces fine, free-growing specimen plants. Trade pkt. 50 cts., 3 pkts. for $1.25.

SCHIZANTHUS (Butterfly Flower) H. A. 1½ ft.

Elegant, free-flowering, hardy annuals for the garden in Summer or for pot culture in the greenhouse during Winter.

GRANDIFLORUS BODDINGTONII. Boddington's Select Hybrids. This strain is superior to any of the Schizanthus in cultivation, the flowers are better shaped and the colors are more varied. In habit the plants are very bushy, and the flowers are invaluable for cutting; as a pot plant for conservatory decoration they are unequaled. Trade pkt. 75 cts.

WISETONENSIS. The colors are varied, ranging from white with yellow center to pink with brown center. Most useful as a Winter plant, and should be given a place in every greenhouse. Trade pkt. 50 cts.

Boddington's Matchless GIANT PRIMULAS

PRIMULA SINENSIS

Boddington's Matchless Giant Primulas, Mixed. This selection includes all the finest Giant Single Primulas of the plain-leaved class. ½ trade pkt. 60 cts., trade pkt. $1.00.

Boddington's Matchless Giant Pure White.

Boddington's Matchless Giant Blush White.

Boddington's Matchless Giant Orange King. A delightful novelty; almost orange.

Boddington's Matchless Giant Rose.

Boddington's Matchless Giant Scarlet.

Boddington's Matchless Giant Royal Blue.

Each, ½ trade pkt. 60 cts., trade pkt. $1.00. Collection of the above 6 varieties, ½ trade pkt. each, for $3.50.

The Duchess. The large, pure white flower, with its unique zone of bright, rosy carmine, surrounding a clear yellow eye, is simply unapproachable in its beauty. ½ trade pkt. 60 cts., trade pkt. $1.00.

Sutton's Coral Pink. The name describes it; habit dwarf and compact; flowers thrown well above foliage. Pkt. $1.00.

PRIMULA OBCONICA GIGANTEA

Primula obconica gigantea Kermesina. Beautiful, deep crimson.

Primula obconica gigantea alba. The pure white flowers greatly enhance the beauty of the existing lilac, rose and crimson shades.

Primula obconica gigantea lilacina. Beautiful lilac.

Primula obconica gigantea rosea. Lovely rose.

Primula obconica gigantea grandiflora. Mixed varieties, containing pure white to deep crimson.

Each of above, ½ pkt. 30 cts., pkt. 50 cts.

PRIMULA floribunda grandiflora (Buttercup). Small yellow flowers, borne in great profusion: fine for pots. Pkt. 50 cts. Forbesii (Baby Primrose). Pkt. 25 cts.

PRIMULA KEWENSIS (Giant Buttercup). This plant is a strong grower, with bright green leaves and numerous erect flower-scapes, 10 to 18 inches in height, producing flowers in whorls at intervals along their whole length. The flowers are fragrant, bright yellow in color, with a slender tube and spreading limb nearly an inch in diameter. As a Winter-flowering decorative plant it is an acquisition; very floriferous when in a small state. ½ trade pkt. 60 cts., pkt. $1.00.

PRIMULA FIMBRIATA, GIANT QUEEN ALEXANDRA. G. P. The largest white Primula Sinensis, blooms measuring 2½ inches across. Petals very solid and erect. Robust foliage with red stems. ½ pkt. 60 cts., trade pkt. $1.00.

PRIMULA, NEW HYBRID QUEEN OF ROSES. A lovely new hybrid of P. obconica and P. stellata, producing shapely heads of large and beautiful, bright rose-colored flowers, remaining decorative for a long time. 1 foot. Trade pkt. $1.00, ½ pkt. 60 cts.

PRIMULA MALACOIDES. H. H. P. (The Giant Baby Primrose.) The plants branch very freely. The flowers, which are ¾ inch wide, are of a pretty light lilac, and are borne in whorls on long stems. If grown in a greenhouse, can be had in bloom in four months after sowing. Trade pkt. 50 cts., 3 pkts. for $1.25.

PRIMULA MALACOIDES ALBA. The white prototype of the foregoing variety, and a great acquisition; very chaste and beautiful as a plant or cut flower. Trade pkt. 50 cts., 3 pkts. for $1.25.

of the country reports are the same, showing that my Seedling Silver Pink Snapdragon stands alone for beauty and productiveness. A steady flow of repeat orders furnishes complete proof.

G. S. Ramsburg, Somersworth. Tacoma, Wash., May 23, 1914.
Dear Sir: Enclosed find $1.00, for which please send a packet of seed of your Silver Pink Snapdragon. They are certainly good.
Yours respectfully, HENRY BENTHIEN.

G. S. Ramsburg. Johnstown, N. Y., May 6, 1914.
Dear Sir: Will you please ship to me at once 200 plants of your S. P. Snapdragon? The plants that I got from you last fall have done fine.
Yours very truly, THOS. BARSON.

Mr. G. S. Ramsburg, Somersworth, N. H. Springfield, Mo., May 8, 1914.
Dear Sir: We inclose our check for $5.00 for seven pkts. of seed of Silver Pink. We are doing fine with it and have grown some splendid blossoms, which are a grand color and great seller with us. This is our first trial, and we are pleased.
Very truly, RAUGH BROS.

Order seeds at once for fall blossoms. Too early to sow for winter. Price of new crop seed, $1.00 per pkt.; 3 for $2.50; 7 for $5.00. Cash. We have a few plants out of small pots at $3.00; out of 3½-inch pots, $8.00.

York city, for the purpose of going the average Holland house one better—the average Holland exporter being thus far content to sell florists and the larger private estates, the Eiland concern proposes also to cut the seed stores and florists out of the business of even the smallest buyers. There doubtless is no reason why these or other bulb growers should not sell direct to the planter in this country if they conceive it to be profitable, but there seems an extremely good reason why they should not receive the orders either of seedsmen or florists.

CATALOGUES RECEIVED.

Henry W. Turner, Montebello, Cal.—"Superior-grown Roses for Immediate Planting," a trade list of "the best of the old roses and a few newer varieties that are crowding for place."

Wagner Park Nursery Co., Sidney, O.—Illustrated catalogue of Dutch bulbs, iris, peonies, boltonias and other hardy plants, flowering shrubs, roses, vines, bay trees and other ornamentals, plant boxes, lawn seats, sundials, pergolas, etc. Twenty-two of the entire forty pages are devoted to bulbs.

Buchbinder Bros., Chicago, Ill.—"Refrigerators for Florists," an illustrated catalogue, showing several sample styles, with descriptions and with "a few reasons why you should buy a Buchbinder refrigerator."

Peter Henderson & Co., New York, N. Y.—"Henderson's Midsummer Catalogue," containing lists of strawberry and vegetable plants, seeds for summer sowing, tools, insecticides, etc.; illustrated; thirty-two pages and cover.

Knight & Struck Co., New York, N. Y.—An attractive 96-page catalogue of "Heatherhome" bulbs, seeds and plants, including hardy perennials. Erica or heather is one of the specialties; hence the name "Heatherhome." The book is not illustrated, but is tastefully and carefully arranged.

Samuel McGredy & Son, Portadown, Ireland—A 12-page list of new roses raised by this firm and by other growers, with both wholesale and retail prices.

The Market.

June has started well and brisk business is reported by all. The weather has been ideal and has favored trade wonderfully. There have been numerous weddings, and orders are being placed ahead for large affairs. Social functions have kept about everybody busy and smaller parties have made calls for lots of cut flowers and bouquets. Commencements and graduations are in full swing here and have added greatly to the total of business. This should be the busy month. The cut flower stock has been good, on the average. The majority of flowers are well up in quality, but some are poor and would be best left out of the mar-

Pearson's Improved Begonia Prima Donna

(My own raising)

A grand winter-blooming variety of easy cultivation, bright, glossy foliage, with a profusion of bright pink flowers, at their best in winter; flowers the size and color of a Lorraine type. Sow seeds now for Xmas blooms. Liberal trade pkt., 25c; 5 for $1.00; 1/64-oz., $1.50.

THERE IS GOOD MONEY IN FORCING CYCAS STEMS

A good stem weighing 6 pounds costs 42c, and should produce a plant with twelve to fifteen leaves, selling wholesale at 10c per leaf, and retail at 15c per leaf. In two sizes, 2 to 5 lb. stems, and 4 to 8 lb. stems. I have found the larger ones more profitable.

Price, per lb., 10c; per 100 lbs., $8.00
Per case of about 300 lbs., 7c per lb.

THE GLAD HAND

GLADIOLI -- GLADIOLUS -- GLADIOLUSES

Which is right?—the only way to find out is to plant some of our stock. And if planted now, or even later, they will BLOOM when the earlier planted stock is past, which means higher prices for the flowers and is GOOD BUSINESS. We offer the following varieties, less 5% if cash accompanies the order:

BODDINGTON'S QUALITY GLADIOLI

AMERICA (Our Specialty). This beautiful new Gladiolus has produced as great a sensation as the now famous Princeps. The flowers, which are of immense size, are of the most beautiful flesh-pink color and, as a florist who saw it said, it is "fine enough for a bride's bouquet."

Selected Bulbs, 2 to 2½ inches: 25c per doz., $1.75 per 100, $15.00 per 1000. 1st size, 1½ to 2 inches: 20c per doz , $1.50 per 100, $12.00 per 1000; 1 to 1½ inches: $1.25 per 100, $10.00 per 1000.

PEACE. The flowers are large, of good form and correctly placed on a heavy, straight spike. They are a beautiful white, with a pale lilac feathering on the inferior petals.

"Peace" is not an early bloomer, but rather medium to late, and planted at the same time with other stock, it is in its best condition when most other varieties have passed blooming. Per doz. $1.25, per 100 $9.00, per 1000 $85.00.

Grand Novelty Orchid-flowered Gladiolus

MRS. FRANK PENDLETON, JR. Order early to procure Mrs. Frank Pendleton, Jr. Awarded First-Class Certificate of Merit by the Massachusetts Horticultural Society of Boston and by the American Gladiolus Society at Baltimore, 1911. Its color is the most exquisite salmon-pink with a very conspicuous blood-red blotch in the throat on the lower petals. Per doz. $5.00, per 100 $40.00.

PINK AUGUSTA. Color a lovely soft pink. This variety is especially suitable for forcing under glass, for which purpose it is especially recommended. Per doz. 35c., per 100 $2.50, per 1000 $20.00.

EUROPA. One of the finest white Gladioli, and the individual flowers are the purest in snowy whiteness. $1.75 per doz., $14.00 per 100.

DAWN. (Tracy's.) The most beautiful shell-pink Gladiolus ever offered. A long, graceful spike of magnificently formed flowers, all open at one time. $1.00 per doz., $7.50 per 100.

INDEPENDENCE. A brilliant rose-pink, with richly marked throat. A long spike of wax-like flowers. One of the best for cut-flowers and for massing because of its color and the lasting quality of the bloom. $2.75 per 100, $25.00 per 1000.

ket. Roses of all varieties have been unusually good, but the prices have been low. The demand for red roses has been large; Milady and Cardinal have filled the bill nicely. and small. Easter lilies are not coming fast, but there is little demand for them. Sweet peas are not overplentiful and they are much shorter-stemmed this week; this hinders their sale considerably. Bachelor's buttons, peonies, lupines, and blue and yellow iris are coming in heavy consignments, but do not clear well. Carnations, on the whole, are not at all satisfactory, as many of them are sleepy as soon as they arrive. Daisies are scarce. Outdoor bedding work is not at an end yet; the sales are heavy. The supply of green goods is about normal.

Various Notes.

Milton Selinka, of Schloss Bros., New York city, was in town and picked up several good orders. He says business is highly satisfactory.

Miss Dudley, of Crosman Bros.' East Main street store, had the misfortune May 30 to prick her eye with a dracæna spike, causing her intense pain. She was obliged to spend most of Memorial day in St. Mary's hospital, taking treatments. The sight of the eye is impaired, but quick recovery is hoped for.

H. E. Wilson has had a busy week with graduation bouquets and funeral work. The counter trade has been good and they have orders for a number of weddings.

Good counter trade, demanding a lot of extra help, is noticed at the seed store of James Vick's Sons, on Stone street. They are kept busy right along and the extra rush means later hours for the regular help.

Richard Roe went on an automobile trip to Hamilton, Canada, for Memorial day and Sunday.

J. B. Keller Sons had an attractive window decoration last week; it was simple, yet unusually artistic. A huge basket, containing probably 100 Easter lilies, was the center of attraction, surrounded by large palms and ferns.

George T. Boucher reports good business and says he has several good orders booked ahead. His Memorial day trade was especially good.

Paul Campas is doing a good, steady trade at his stand at the corner of East Main and State streets.

The Briggs Bros. Seed Co. is clearing a lot of vegetable and flower plants, as well as a big stock of seeds, at the North Water street store. H. J. H.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

During the week just passed business has improved slightly and May has totaled better than was at one time expected. Funeral work has been the standby and there are many good wedding orders scheduled for June. The stores are full of flowers of all kinds and the street stands are also showing good stock. There are not quite so many indoor roses in the market, as some of the growers have commenced to throw out their stock. Killarney is poor in color, but Mrs. Geo. Shawyer is taking its place, the flowers lasting much longer in good condition than the old favorite. Dahlias are making a good show already, the cactus and decorative types being most in evidence. The weather has been dull for the season and this has helped the sweet peas, which are excellent. Nothing but the Spencers are now grown to any extent for cutting and these are by far the most profitable when the price is considered. There is a big demand for the annual gypsophila and seldom does the supply exceed the demand. In plants there is not much offered, a few begonias, gloxinias and lilies of the valley in flowering stock and ferns, coleuses and rubber plants in foliage. Greens are plentiful and cheap.

Various Notes.

Everyone was sorry to hear that Eleanor Turner, daughter of H. W. Turner, of Montebello, had been knocked down and seriously injured by an automobile recklessly driven along the Whittier road late in the evening of May 30. She was one of a party returning from the graduation exercises at her school when the accident occurred. She was dragged along the road a considerable distance, suffering concussion of the brain and a broken collar-bone. The driver and occupants of the car drove on without ascertaining whether their victim was killed or not. Miss Turner was taken at once to the Montebello hospital and cared for, and at last reports was making speedy recovery.

At the monthly meeting of the Los Angeles County Horticultural Society, held June 2, there was a fine audience present to hear W. W. Felgate, of Sierra Madre, discourse on soils and their treatment. Mr. Felgate brought along some splendid samples of lettuce, potatoes and other vegetables and flowers to show that he practices what he preaches and practices it successfully. Mr. Felgate is much in favor of drying out the soil thoroughly between crops and allowing the sun to burn up the nematodes, injurious insects and germs of fungi, which are always present. He showed himself to be thoroughly familiar with his subject and a most hearty vote of thanks was given him at the end of the lecture. Some elegant spikes of gladioli were sent by Ernest Braunton; these were the result of his own hybridization and cross fertilizing. He has one immense pink in the way of Panama, while his crosses of G. primulinus, a yellow species from South Africa, are beautiful in the extreme, though perhaps hardly large enough for commercial purposes as yet. Mr. Braunton has been working on the gladiolus for a number of years and is to be congratulated on the good results already obtained.

Sidney Hockridge, of the City Nurseries, of Redlands, was a visitor last week.

For the graduation exercises at the Los Angeles high school Wolfskills' & Morris Goldenson supplied the flowers, consisting of nearly 300 corsage bouquets.

H. W. Turner is building a new office, and painting generally. Everything on the place is being painted a warm cream color, from his big Stoddard-Dayton down to the smallest building, or anything else that can be painted. All office stationery, business cards and labels, everything in short, is to be of the same tint. In anticipation of the big demand next season, a large quantity of the new rose, September Morn, is being worked up and Mr. Turner is showing his own faith in it by planting many benches to it.

T. F. M. Williamson is said to have gone out of business at Washington and Figueroa streets. Mr. Nelson, his late manager, has taken over the lease.

J. McGilvray is making the most of his chances in the new conservatories at Eastlake park. The one house that is completed is filled with fine flowering stock and the corridor walls are lined with moss, with ferns and orchids planted on it. Gus. Peterson is also making good progress with the landscape work. A good deal still remains to be done if the alterations are to be all finished by 1915.

H. R. Richards.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

Memorial day business fell considerably short of that of former years, largely on account of the advanced season, as there were plenty of outside flowers. The shipping trade was brisk up to the last. There is plenty of stock to care for all business. Carnations are almost a glut; yet the standard of prices is maintained in the better class of stores. Roses are producing the heaviest cut of the season, in all varieties, but the demand is sluggish, as roses are plentiful in the gardens. Sweet peas are of fine quality and move fairly well. Gaillardias, coreopsis, campanulas and snapdragons help to make up the general variety of garden flowers. Japanese iris is coming in nicely in a variety of colors.

Various Notes.

Julius Broetje, of Oak Grove, is cutting a fine lot of water lilies, which are readily disposed of.

The Swiss Floral Co. has several new strains of petunias of the firm's own hybridizing. Pride of Portland is a dainty shade of pink and has proved a fine seller.

conditions generally have been slow and times hard, yet on the big flower days the demand for flowers has been, in nearly every instance, fully as great as in previous years during good times, and in some cases even greater. Some lines of stock were short, such as carnations and peonies, both of which sold readily at $2 and $2.50 per dozen, although the quality was nothing extra. There were plenty of roses for all demands and the quality was good. An abundance of Easter lilies left over from Memorial day may still be seen in several of the stores, but funeral work is moving them well, so that they will not be a loss.

Various Notes.

Several of the florists' windows were especially well decorated in keeping with Memorial day, while a few were even below their own average.

The Spokane Florist Co. has sublet one side of the store, including a small window space, to a jewelry firm. The space in this store is much larger than is needed except at holiday times, and with the high rents that prevail in the locality, such an arrangement will effect a considerable saving.

The growers are all apparently well pleased with the season's business. Olsson & Benson planted one house of carnations last week. They plan to string out their benching all through the summer, the last house to be filled in August. The Spokane Greenhouses, Inc., also began planting last week.

A visit to the greenhouses of P. Garginlo revealed a prosperous appearing little establishment. Yellow roses seem to be his specialty, although other varieties are grown. A newly completed range of four narrow houses was planted to roses last week. L. B. H.

WARD STARTS PACIFIC NURSERY.

A nursery and propagating plant for ornamental and fruit trees and shrubbery, in connection with one of the most important nursery plants in the east, is to be established at once at Carlotta, Cal.

Charles Willis Ward, founder and principal owner of the Cottage Gardens, Queens, L. I., is the moving spirit in the enterprise, in which he will have several local associates. Mr. Ward of late has made his headquarters at Eureka, Cal., where his father's estate has large land and timber interests. Carlotta is twenty-eight miles southeast of Eureka.

The company now in process of organization will have $75,000 capital. Mr. Ward purchased, some three or four weeks ago, a tract of 220 acres of land at Carlotta, known as the Ready ranch; 100 acres of this already is cleared and ready for preliminary operations; about eighty acres is covered with heavy redwood stumpage, and the balance is creek bottom. About 180 acres is adapted to nursery purposes.

"After a thorough examination with the aid of experts, we concluded the tract we have purchased at Carlotta was the ideal location for nursery purposes," said Mr. Ward. "It is located centrally as regards the fruit growing sections of the county. When the railroad is completed it will give us excellent transportation facilities, but the most important factors of soil and protected location are nearly ideal. I do not believe there is anything better anywhere."

ploying as high as 150 men. It is proposed that the Carlotta plant shall take the same place on the Pacific coast. The nursery will devote much attention to ornamental trees, plants, shrubbery and flowers, including evergreens, roses, azaleas and the rhododendron family, as well as all classes of fruit trees for which there is a demand. In other words, a general line of nursery stock adapted to Pacific coast needs will be grown and handled.

Work on the detailed plans for the new nursery are to begin soon, all the preliminary matters connected with the organization being well in hand.

"Mr. Ward owns a tract of 800 acres in Crawford county, Michigan, about 100 acres of which is in orchard and the rest under preparation. He is also largely interested in enterprises in various states of the union and especially in lumber, mining and railroading. Coming to Humboldt some time since to look after large redwood holdings in this section," says the Humboldt Times, "he found climatic conditions here so agreeable that he determined on making this city his home. Gradually he has been investigating investment and business opportunities, and in view of the fact that the nursery field has been his especial hobby for many years and his pet investment the wonderfully successful Cottage Gardens on Long Island, the fact that he and his associates have decided to invest in the nursery line on so large a scale here is a practical boost for the coming development of Humboldt county's fruit interests that is notable in every way. Mr. Ward is also making large deals in the county in other lines, and generally demonstrating his faith in the future of this section."

THREE PLANTS IDENTIFIED.

Under separate cover I am sending samples of three plants for identification. One is a yellow, double-flowered perennial, the second a pink flower and the third a yellow flower with white foliage. J. J. U.

The first specimen is Ranunculus acris flore pleno, the tall, double buttercup, also called bachelor's button or gold button. There is a single form of the same plant coming into this region from the east.

The second is Mesembryanthemum spectabile, the showy ice-plant, usually grown only as a house plant.

The third is a sedum, perhaps Sedum carneum variegatum, one of the 110 varieties of stone-crop.

Among the sphagnum used to pack these specimens I found some fragments of Linnæa borealis. J. H.

Arlington, Mass. — Damage amounting to $200 was caused by a fire started by chemicals in the greenhouse of John Lyons, on Brooks avenue, May 27.

Sterling, Colo. — B. C. Johnson is erecting a greenhouse at his place south of Sterling and much of the stock at the city establishment will be transferred when the house is completed.

Fitchburg, Mass.—Miss Harriet M. Silsby, for the last six years a teacher in the commercial department of the Fitchburg high school, will take possession July 1 of a florists' establishment she recently purchased in Rockland, Me.

It Pays

To Pacific Coast Florists:

What stock have you for sale to the trade? Is it moving as it should? No?

Then tell the trade about it by using the Pacific Coast Pages of The Review.

Pacific Coast advertisers almost invariably report good results. Like this:

Say! That ad's a humdinger for getting the business.—Everett Floral Co., Everett, Wash.

I sold all the Mum cuttings advertised, and you will not hear from me again until I can get some more stock ready. Shall root 100,000 Carnation cuttings for next season, as I know The Review will sell them for me.—Frank Wilhelm, Los Angeles, Cal.

Please cut out of our advertisement in The Review the cyclamen seedlings. We sold all our surplus cyclamen seedlings as a direct result of our advertisement in your paper.—Spokane Greenhouses (Inc.), Spokane, Wash.

We want to say that our last advertisement in The Review brought us orders from both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts. We had, strangely enough, on following days, orders from Salem, Ore., and from Salem, Mass.—State Floral Co., North Yakima, Wash.

We are well pleased with the results obtained by advertising in the Pacific Coast Department of The Review. We sold out clean and refused many orders. The Review surely gives results. —Van Slyke & Seamons, Tacoma, Wash.

Wadley & Smythe have renovated and improved their Bellevue avenue store.

The June exhibition of the Newport Horticultural Society will be held June 24 to 26.

Carl O. Schultz has recorded a quit claim deed to Louise A. Schultz for land and improvements on Coggeshall avenue.

Gibson Bros., who have maintained open store the entire winter, report that business has been highly satisfactory.

Joseph Ott has awarded the contract for a garage, greenhouse and workshop on Walcott street. The garage will be 27x66, of brick; the greenhouse will be 18x55, with brick walls.

A. T. Bunyard has completed the rearrangement of his store on Bellevue avenue, incidental to reopening for the season.

Ralph Armstrong, of New York, was here last week arranging for the opening of his branch store on Bellevue avenue.

Extensive alterations, involving the expenditure of $20,000, are being made at the estate of Edward J. Berwind, on Bellevue avenue. The landscape work is being carried out under the direction of the head gardener, Bruce Butterton.

William Allan, who recently resigned as head gardener for Dr. Jacob, is now head gardener for Mrs. George D. Widener, whose estate is undergoing extensive alterations. The Widener estate formerly belonged to the late Dr. C. M. Bell, for whom David McIntosh was for many years head gardener. W. H. M.

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

Pittsburgh had most delightful weather following Memorial day, but this week has started boiling hot. The extreme weather the last of May had a disastrous effect on cut flowers, burning everything up. Roses are good, but scarce. Carnations are showing the effects of the heat and are nearly bloomed out. Outdoor stock never was finer or more plentiful. However, there is not much sale for it, as the home-grown garden flowers are supplying nearly everyone.

The commission men have had their troubles—more of everything than they could handle, let alone dispose of.

The retailers are all complaining of the dull trade, especially along the cut flower line. There is still some plant trade, but it is about over.

Various Notes.

G. P. Weaklen & Co. were the victims of a plant thief last week. A negro got around about 2 o'clock one morning and loaded his wagon so heavily that it broke down and one of the night policemen helped him get fixed up so that he could haul the load. The same policeman was able to make the arrest after it was found the plants were stolen. The judge said, "Sixty days."

The McCallum family has moved to the bungalow at West Hoffman Station, on the Butler Short Line.

Fred Burki, president of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., has the sympathy of his friends in the loss of his eldest son, Frederick Burki, Jr., who died Sunday afternoon, June 7. He had been ill for some time, having spent a part of the winter in Tucson, Ariz. He came to the city June 6 for treatment, but became worse on his return home. The funeral was from the family home at Crystal Farm, Bakerstown, Pa., Wednesday, June 10. Clarke.

CHARLES H. TOTTY

MADISON, N. J.

NASHVILLE, TENN.

The Market.

With the thermometers registering in the nineties and no rain, the supply of roses has been cut short. Though there was plenty of good stock ten days ago, there is a real shortage at present. However, the demand is likely to be correspondingly light in the next few weeks, so it is not so serious a matter. Carnations are still plentiful, but small and poor. It is reported that they have been retailed as low as three dozen for $1. Most of the dealers are keeping the price up pretty well, however. Snapdragons are more plentiful than they have been for a long time. They are of fairly good quality, but are not moving so well as they have at times. Lilies are plentiful and good. Peas are scarce, except with one or two growers. The wheat harvest is beginning and, as there is a bumper crop, it should loosen up the circulation of money a little soon, but it will have no direct effect on the florists' trade.

Various Notes.

Last week Mr. Johnston, rose grower for the Joy Floral Co., and Mr. Smith, the carnation grower, were held up at about 11 o'clock at night and robbed. They put up a game fight and were both more or less injured, and they all but succeeded in capturing their assailants.

Geny Bros. planted a lot of sweet peas where they could irrigate them this season and they are getting a cut that rivals those grown under irrigation in the west.

McIntyre Bros. are propagating their new geranium, Nashville, heavily at present. About 5,000 or 6,000 were sold this spring, the first time it was on the market. The writer is much pleased with the way this geranium is behaving itself.

In the country one day last week I saw a wistaria vine that gave me a new idea of the value of this plant in landscape work. It had evidently been planted years ago, when there was a house near-by, but at present it is having things its own way and has completely covered a large tree, as the Virginia creeper often does in the Mississippi river bottoms. It was in full bloom and it is seldom that I have seen so striking an object. F. B.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

There has not been much life in the flower business since Memorial day and that occasion, on which many built high hopes, did not bring the satisfactory results that were so confidently expected. Flowers of all kinds were plentiful; in fact, cut stock was a glut and potted plants were in great profusion, but as a whole the day was somewhat of a disappointment. Magnolia and galax wreaths with artificial flowers, at moderate prices, ranging from $1 to $5, found ready demand, while made-up bouquets of fresh flowers, which in previous years found a strong call, proved slow sellers. In several of the surrounding towns and villages, however, florists dependent on the Providence market for their supply found a ready call for fresh bouquets and the dealers worked off everything they had or could get. This was equally so with potted and bedding stock.

Various Notes.

Miss Ruby Aitken has taken a position in the office of S. J. Reuter & Son, at Westerly.

William H. Tarbox, of West Greenwich, the "dahlia king," is about again after being laid up several months with rheumatism.

H. W. Taylor, of the Boston Fertilizer Co., Boston, was a caller on the trade here last week.

The Rhode Island State College, at Kingston, has received notice that it will shortly receive an appropriation of $10,000 from the United States government with which to carry on coöperative agricultural work.

Andrew J. Olson, who disposed of the Brookside Greenhouses, at East Providence, to Joseph E. Koppelman last week, has purchased a tract of land containing two and one-half acres, less than a mile from his old site, where he intends to build several greenhouses before fall. Mr. Koppelman took possession of Mr. Olson's property at East Providence June 1, and mortgaged it back for $15,000.

The Lexington-Howard Co., of Indiana, filed a suit in the Superior court in this city last week against several defendants, including Edgar L. Nock, in connection with the indorsement of certain promissory notes. Damages against Mr. Nock are laid at $1,000.

NEW CHRYSANTHEMUMS.

Here are three you ought to grow.

ALICE SALOMON—Pure white, larger than Chadwick, easy to grow, ready to cut Oct. 10 to 25. R. C., $7.00 per 100; 2½-inch, $9.00 per 100.

GOLDEN SALOMON—A sport of Alice Salomon, the same in every respect except its color, which is as its name implies—a golden yellow. R. C., $20.00 per 100; 2½-inch, $22.00 per 100.

CHIEFTAIN—A pink, described by E. G. Hill Co. as a Pink Bonnaffon, ready to cut about 10 days earlier than Enguehard. R. C., $12.00 per 100; 2½-inch, $14.00 per 100.

We believe the above mums are valuable additions to the list of commercial varieties, and recommend them as such.

CYCLAMEN.

200,000 GIANT FLOWERING CYCLAMEN SEEDLINGS AND BLOOMING PLANTS.

For the last 16 years we have selected three-fourths of our seed-bearing cyclamen stock before Xmas, to assure early blooming plants, and claim the finest commercial strain in this country; no fizzle of many so-called English varieties. Our aim is strong growers that don't have to be petted to be grown into a choice salable plant—a well built, five-petaled flower (many of them at one time), with well marked foliage; every plant an ideal, a prize winner. Received first prize at the Cleveland show and first and second at Toledo, early November, when blooming cyclamen were scarce.

STRONG AUGUST SOWN SEEDLINGS, once transplanted, $3.50 per 100; $30.00 per 1000.

Cash with order. Cultural directions with all orders.
C. Winterich, Cyclamen Specialist, Defiance, O.

CYCLAMEN GIGANTEUM is one of the best paying winter plants in the florist trade. We only send out a plant when it is ready for a move up. The stock we are now sending out is well rooted, has fine bright foliage and will prove to be a moneymaker. We are now selling only the stock in 4-in. pots that is ready for 5 and 6-in., $20.00 hundred for any amount. Have a trial shipment come now, so you can get what you need. Can ship in clay or waterproof pots. Cash with order.
C. L. HUMPHREY, ZANESVILLE, O.

Cyclamen giganteum, August seedlings, transplanted, finest strain obtainable and new varieties equally divided, 10 vars., $3.00 per 100; $25.00 per 1000. Have grown commercially only for 4 years and my output is now the largest in the west, because I grow only the best. Cash, please. Ernest Rober, Wilmette, Ill.

PROSPECTS IN THE COAL TRADE.

When a market is continuously, almost unchangeably dull, when there are no improvements and no new catastrophes to herald to the world, what can the unhappy market reporter do in order to prevent his reports from being even duller than the market? When he has repeated over and over, with as many variations of phraseology as possible, the one outstanding fact that "there is nothing doing," he must fill the rest of his allotted space with arguments and predictions, as wise and as thrilling as possible. If his stock of facts is exhausted, he must offer the wares of the philosopher and prophet. He can vary his theorizing a little by reasoning backwards, from the future to the present, like the reporter in the Black Diamond, who says: "When any line of trade concentrates its attention most upon future prospects it may be concluded that current business is at least unsatisfactory if not decidedly dull. The coal trade this week is looking forward to the first of August or the first of September, when it expects to have a good run of business. As this signifies clearly, current business is away below normal."

The paper just quoted also philosophizes as follows: "Up to now we have had a business condition comparable only to the situation in 1897. At that time the depression was dissipated by an extraordinarily good crop through the country. The present business depression likewise promises to be dissipated by a good crop this year. Business men are much interested in the situation, because this year will be the crucial test of the influence of the tariff upon general business conditions. If a good crop can lift the country out of its present business lethargy, business men believe that the ghost of low tariff and high tariff can be laid for all time."

After describing the general quietude in the coal market throughout the country, the Black Diamond thus describes the situation in smokeless coals at Chicago: "The smokeless market has been in a rather peculiar position. One or two of the demoralizing influences have been removed, but others of less importance have come in to take their place. One disappointed buyer of a smokeless mine is offering coal at extremely low prices. The mine was purchased in the first place to supply the buyer with his own requirements. Certain qualities of the coal, however, prevented his using it in his own plant, so he is peddling the coal to the retail trade and then buying on the open market to satisfy his own wants. It is pertinently suggested that he is naming a price on his own product with an idea of influencing the price at which he will have to buy his own supply and thus is dictating some rather low figures. Mine-run coal, in fact, has sold in Chicago at 85 cents per ton. In addition, two or three small operating companies have continued to sell on the open market at $1 per ton. The major producers of better coal, however, are holding firmly at $1.25 for mine run and, what is more to the point, shipments on contract have been increasing within the last week. The outlook for smokeless is better today, regardless of the low prices, than it has been for the last month.''

WEIGHING FUEL IN CARLOADS.

A Proposed New Set of Rules.

One of the most important of recent developments in the coal trade is the movement toward the adoption of a new system of rules for the weighing of coal and coke in carloads. Representatives of the American Railway Association and the Industrial Traffic League, acting at the suggestion of the Interstate Commerce Commission, have been engaged for some months in an attempt to prepare a new set of rules. It appears, however, that the coal shippers themselves had no direct voice in the deliberations until the time arrived for what was supposed to be the final meeting, held in the Hotel La Salle, Chicago. Then a few coal men were invited to be present for the purpose of ''suggesting some minor changes in the proposed rules.'' As might have been expected, it was soon discovered that ''minor changes'' would not suffice. The coal men declared that ''the rules did not cover coal conditions and were not satisfactory in any large way either to the receivers or shippers of coal.''

Perceiving the need of instant action, the Chicago Coal Merchants' Association, composed of both producers and retailers, undertook the task of preparing some rules that would really work. This organization seems to have handled the matter in a painstaking and impartial way, realizing that coal operators, carriers and consignees must all be satisfied, and that nothing would have the slightest chance of satisfying them but absolute and guaranteed accuracy in methods of weighing.

The first step in the proceedings was to appoint a committee of twenty-two operators and twenty-two retailers. This committee, after some preliminary discussion, appointed a sub-committee of eleven to do the work of actually drafting the rules. When completed, the rules were adopted by the Chicago Coal Merchants' Association, which then resolved that ''the draft of these rules as adopted should be presented to the various associations of retail dealers and operators throughout the United States for their amendment or approval.

It was further decided that the rules as finally amended and approved by the various coal associations should be presented first to the American Railway Association for its adoption and then to the Interstate Commerce Commission for its tentative approval."

To Insure Accuracy.

As a guarantee of absolute accuracy in weights, two important departures from present methods are proposed in the new rules: First, that railroad scales be more frequently tested than is at present demanded, and, second, that the work of weighing be taken out of the hands of both the operator and the railway, and placed in the hands of sworn and bonded deputy weighmasters of the Bureau of Standards of the Department of Commerce of the United States. These two provisions are embodied in Rule 1, which reads, in part, as follows:

"Each carrier, upon adopting these rules, shall as a means of assuring the accuracy of all scales used in weighing coal and coke establish a master scale and provide the requisite test car equipment to test each scale as hereinafter provided. Any small or belt railway not equipped with a master scale shall arrange with another carrier so equipped to test all scales located on its rails used for weighing coal and coke.

"The master scale and test cars shall be manned by sworn and bonded deputies of the Bureau of Standards of the Federal Government, if and when available; otherwise by sworn and bonded deputies of the Department of Weights and Measures of the state government.

"All scales used for determining carload weights on coal and coke shall be tested by said test car equipment at least once in two months and the custodian shall not be notified beforehand of intention to make such test."

The sub-committee which drafted the proposed new set of rules was composed of W. H. D. Gibson, of the J. K. Dering Coal Co.; L. M. Breeden, of the Pocahontas Fuel Co.; W. R. Kernohan, of the Pocahontas Coal Sales Co.; L. O. Stanton, of the Clinton Coal Co., and George W. Reed, of the Lincoln-Springfield Coal Co., representing the operators, and W. J. Folk, of W. J. Folk & Co.; H. D. Judd, of the Consumers' Co.; A. J. Bunge, of Bunge Bros. Coal Co.; George Koehler, of T. N. Koehler & Co., and L. R. Rutter, of David Rutter & Co., representing the retailers. By a resolution of the "big committee," George H. Cushing, editor of the Black Diamond, was chosen as chairman of the sub-committee.

RETURNS REQUIRED.

Kindly tell me how many 2-inch returns will be needed in a greenhouse 15x70 and nine feet high to the ridge. The side walls are four and one-half feet high and contain no glass. I expect to use two 2½-inch feed pipes and I want a temperature of 55 degrees in zero weather. A hot water system will be used and the boiler is rated for 1,500 square feet. H. O.

To heat a greenhouse to 55 degrees with hot water, in zero weather, one square foot of radiation to three and one-half square feet of glass should be used, and at that rate seven lines of 2-inch return pipes will be required. If the house is well built and is in a location where it is somewhat sheltered

Better Than All Others

I have fired boilers both here and in Europe for the last forty years. The Kroeschell is the best type of boiler I have ever used. I have two cast iron boilers, also a locomotive boiler coupled with yours, but did not need to use the cast iron boilers this winter. Your No. 7 Boiler is rated at 15,000 sq. ft. of glass and carries 25,000 sq. ft. of glass until the outside temperature goes down to 10° of frost. We have no trouble to keep temperatures in our houses with easy firing since we installed your boiler. The main flows and returns are heating our potting shed and packing room, which are not included in the amount of square feet of glass. From the boiler to the farthest end of our violet houses and return is 800 ft. and circulates very quickly.

I am in receipt of your favor of the 24th ult. In reply shall say that I shall always recommend your boiler, and have already done so to several parties. Your boiler is satisfactory in every respect.

If florists here east were better acquainted with your boiler, I am sure you would have a great sale for it. It has one great advantage over cast iron boilers, and that is, it burns less coal.

about thirty feet from the heater. The floor of the greenhouse will be about on a level with the top of the heater. Do you think that we can heat the house in this way? If so, what size of pipes will be needed, and how many? Where should they be placed? We will use a hot water heater. The outdoor temperature in this part of the country seldom goes lower than 16 degrees above zero. We need a temperature of about 50 degrees at night. The greenhouse will be modern in every respect. W. & J.

There should be no difficulty in heating the greenhouse from the heater in the basement of the dwelling. Run 2½-inch flow and return pipes to the greenhouse and extend the flow to the farther end, carrying it at a slight slope about two feet below the ridge. For returns use three 2-inch pipes on each wall. In case the end of the house is much exposed, it might be well to start the coils under the end of the flow pipe and carry them along the end as well as down the sides of the house. F. R.

THE BOTTLE BRUSH.

I am sending the flower, stem and leaf of a plant unknown here. Will you kindly inform me as to name, culture and nativity? The shape of the flower resembles a lamp chimney cleaner, the thread-like spines being at right angles with the stem.

A. E. C.

It is Metrosideros floribunda, also called robusta, commonly called the bottle brush plant. Quite a considerable number of these are annually imported from Belgium and flowered for the Easter trade. This particular variety is a native of New Zealand. Newly imported plants should be forced in gentle heat at first, raising the temperature when necessary as the flower buds show. Keep them freely syringed. Left-over plants should be pruned back, kept warm and moist, and they soon will break. Plant or plunge outdoors in June and keep well watered. House before frost. They can also be planted out in good loam or peat and lifted. The plants are of quite easy culture.

HARTFORD, CONN.

The Market.

The general report of Memorial day business is that it was the biggest ever. The supply of flowers was heavy, with the quality of stock better than usual at that season, owing to the late spring, which retarded stock. Memorial day was preceded by two weeks of warm, sunny days, just what the growers needed to bring on the cut flowers. Everything in the line of a flower sold. The plantsmen did a big business also.

Various Notes.

The Bon Ton Flower Shop reports a good Memorial day business. The engagement of Page F. Potter, of this firm, to Miss Anna Mohr has been announced.

A. A. Schweitfeger has moved to 1413 Main street.

A. Welch, of Asylum street, had a large stock on hand for Memorial day and did a big business.

At the establishment of A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, 40,000 carnations were cut during the week before Memorial day. O. P. Anderson, engineer of this firm, was in Chicago last week, inspecting the heating system of Poehlmann Bros. Co.

John Ahlquist, of the Blatchley Co., of Meriden, has rented Mrs. C. M. Woodford's greenhouses, at Plainville. His friends wish him well in his new venture.

R. C. S.

Aberdeen, S. D.—R. Strohmeier has retired and turned over his store to Miss Elizabeth Youreman, who has been in his employ for a long time, and Mrs. M. Kronenberger. These two will continue the business under the name of Strohmeier's Flower Store.

Minot, N. D.—George Valker is building a bungalow on his land east of town and will add two or three greenhouses this summer. He is going into the nursery business on an extensive scale and has already planted about 10,000 small ornamental trees.

All our fertilizers are as carefully prepared as a chemist compounds a prescription.

They are made so every atom does business.

You can't get away from the fact that quality "brings home the bacon." If you are raising flowers for profit you must feed them a properly balanced fertilizer. Our Magic Brand of fertilizer is properly balanced to meet the requirements of all soils and conditions, containing in its composition all the basic salts that constitute mud or soil.

Let us show you what it will do for you in the way of increasing your profits by cutting down the cost of growing.

What all flower growers desire is value for their money. Our Magic Brand is composed of organic and vegetable matter, and does not contain one ounce of make-weight or filler.

BALTIMORE.

The Market.

The reaction from Memorial day trade left everything flat and only a little business in cut flowers is being done. The extremely hot weather of the last few weeks has had a deteriorating effect on all indoor cut flowers and on outdoor stock as well. Their keeping qualities are greatly impaired. Peonies are about over; only a few late stragglers find their way to the markets. Outdoor roses are arriving in quantity; the bulk of them are Cochets. The commencement season has not started, and wedding decorations and funeral work are the only business being done. The retailers are preparing for their season of rest, while the growers are getting ready to plant for the coming winter's indoor crop.

Club Meeting.

The regular meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club was called to order by President Johnston, Monday, June 8. Owing to the extremely warm weather, the attendance was rather small. Richard Vincent, Jr., spoke on the Baltimore to Boston trip via boat. A letter was read from the Pittsburgh Florists' Club, in which it endorsed the proposed trip and reported about twenty members from that city will go by this route. As members from many other cities will join this party, an enjoyable time is promised. No business of importance came before the meeting and it adjourned at an early hour.

Various Notes.

Wm. E. McKissick, manager of the local branch of the Leo Niessen Co., paid a visit to Washington last week, renewing old acquaintances among the trade. He was formerly located there as manager of the branch of the Pennock-Meehan Co.

Work will shortly be commenced on the new building to be erected at Charles and Hamilton streets for Pierce & Co., now in business a few doors from that location. The lot is 25x104 feet and on it a 2½-story building will be erected, with a greenhouse in the rear. Architects are now at work on the plans for this building and the intention is to make it the most beautiful structure devoted to the florists' business in this city. It is to be both ornamental and up-to-the-minute.

The name will soon be changed to the Twin City Floral Co. and the officers elected recently are: President, W. H. Smith; vice-president, E. R. Vanestran; business manager, C. E. TOLEDO, O.

The Market.

There has been an abundance of stock since Memorial day. Not only is local supply large, but quantities are arriving from all the sources ordinarily drawn upon by local stores. Trade in cut flower lines has been affected by the warm weather, but there is about the usual June quantity of wedding work and funeral work goes on steadily. Bedding plants have had a big run and many greenhouses show empty benches.

A Neglected Opportunity.

Despite the unprecedented success of the Mothers' day advertising campaign, which, at small individual cost, revolutionized the business of this day and directed the business into more reasonable and profitable channels, those progressive florists who believe in this manner of sales creation could not convince some of the others that the same plan could be advantageously worked for Memorial day. The reason advanced was that everyone was busy, but some found that business was not so good as they had expected. A large space in the newspapers, properly worded and displayed, calling attention to the real significance of the day and reminding the public of the duty we owe the departed would have awakened the latent spark of mindful appreciation in the heart of many who neglected the opportunity. The result would have been a much greater demand for flowers and wreaths, with a resultant benefit to the retailer and grower. The sooner florists come to realize that advertising is an asset and an investment that bears sound returns and not an expense merely, the better it will be for all concerned.

Various Notes.

Schramm Bros. believe that all advertising is good but that some advertising is better than others. They consider every idea with a view to seeing how they can adapt it to their business rather than to seeing how they can get along without it. They have just purchased a quite neat and attrac-

This device increases the sales efficiency of the windows in the evening. Even their shipping tags reflect this spirit, being of an attractive design and the best that money can buy. Everything that is used in their business is purchased, not with an eye to expense, but with the idea of giving people a real notion of the progressive character of the concern. They are finding that this is a policy that is paying big dividends.

The Art Floral & Decorating Co., under the expert direction of H. E. Klunder, is rapidly coming to the front, due to his progressive ideas and hustling ability. The other day the writer saw him make up three highly artistic baskets in the short space of half an hour. It was a rush order, but was out on time and the art did not suffer thereby.

John Barrow has turned in his old Overland delivery car and has purchased a new one.

Harry Heinl's 5-cent sale of bedding plants, which he holds annually, was a great success. The quality of the plants is out of the ordinary for this money and therein lies the success. Mr. Heinl is one of the most expert and largest growers of this vicinity and can put on a sale such as this where the retailer could not begin to compete with him in quality and price.

The Market.

On the whole, the Memorial day record was among the best ever known here. There was an enormous trade in bedding plants. Some firms that fill vases and boxes had about double the business of last year. The cut flower trade was good; stock was plentiful and brought good prices. There has been an extra good bedding plant trade since Memorial day, and florists find it hard to get the orders out on time.

Hundreds of florists who attended the annual meeting of the joint Associations of Indiana and Illinois at Danville, went over in a body and saw for themselves and were convinced of the above statement—many of them said they did not know it was possible to build such structures.

NIFTY NOVELTIES MADE TO ORDER

How a brainy Retailer meets the continual short-notice demands of his customers for new and artistic ideas in flower arrangement

THE scorching sun was softening the asphalt, and New York's reputation as a summer resort was going "where the woodbine twineth," on the June day the interviewer made his way up the shady side of Fifth avenue to West Fifty-ninth street, across to where the towering pile of the Plaza shone like the snow-clad cliffs of an Alpine mountain, and turned in at the handsome store of Max Schling, society florist. Inside stood the head of the house, mopping the moisture from his brow. To the greeting of the reporter, "Fine weather, Max," he replied, with a vehemence that made the perspiration flow even faster than before:

"Fine weather? For icemen fine weather, not for florists!"

"But business is keeping up well with you, isn't it?" was the query.

"Yes, business is good, but do you think because business is good already we don't have to work?"

"Well, if business is coming along in good shape, you don't have to plug like you would if you had to hustle 'round after it."

"Some people which find business that way there might be, but not me. I have troubles which make me sweat all the time."

"Why is that, if business is good?"

Why Retailers Worry.

"People must have too much. Everybody in New York and all the strangers which come they all want what someone else didn't have. The last three or four years they got so used to me bringing out once in a while a little novelty that now they simply come in and tell me plain out, 'I want something new, what others have not got. Can you get me up something?' I am a Austrian, a Viennese, but just the same I have to say at times, 'That beats the Dutch,' and I would have to say it even if I would be Irish. At times I feel just so hot as I did when a little boy I had hay fever and they gave me some hot tea and covered me up. Because really I don't know anything new any more, but if I tell them that, they don't want to believe it.

"The day before yesterday I was just in such a pinch. A customer she comes in and tells me, 'I got to have twelve different pieces for one steamer and I want something new.' She says, 'I want something that you did not make for anybody and I want something that the people can use on board the steamer; I want flowers in and out, I want it to look handsome and I want it to keep.'

Special Prices for Florists.

"After I listened to all she wanted I felt so warm I just took my hat and skidooed, and I walked and walked, until I came to Bloomingdale's, where Trepel hangs out. I stopped and watched Trepel sell geraniums at 10 cents apiece, and nice plants at that, and jokingly I went up and asked one of the salesmen:

"'Can you sell me one?'

"'Yes,' he says, 'for 10 cents.'

"'Can't you make me a special price? I want it for another florist.'

"'Well, you better go upstairs to the greenhouse; they sell them up there in the wholesale department by the dozen and hundred.'

"When I came upstairs, I asked them, 'How much do you sell geraniums to florists?'

Max Schling Picked up the Idea of this Novel Steamer Basket in a New York Millinery Department.

"They said, 'Twelve cents apiece; $1.25 a dozen.'

"I know florists don't fall in love with department stores, but I didn't think they might soak one just for that.

In Search of an Inspiration.

"I think the humor of it that they sold them in the 'wholesale' department dearer than in the retail department got me on my feet, and I started and wandered around, and came to the millinery department. There they had a big sale on, and I stood and watched the people buying big Florentine straw hats worth $2, for 79 cents apiece, and two women which had a call trying some on. One of these ladies forgot her call and asked the other lady:

"'Bridget, does that hat fit?'

"And the other said, 'Yes, when you put the flowers inside and put it on your head upside down, just like this.'

"And she said it and did it, and it looked so artistic that I bought a lot of the hats, because I thought why couldn't I put flowers inside, too?

Florentine Straw Steamer Baskets.

"When I got done with them you can see what they looked like by these three pictures. One I put in it pansies and roses, and the other, which you see there from both sides, one at a time, had orchids and sweet peas in it. First I trimmed the hats with ribbon and then I decorated them with those flowers, which are all in water in a jardiniere, which is concealed by the crown of the hat where you can't see it. Some one when they get one on the steamer takes out the flowers and the jardiniere and they make a fine centerpiece for steamer tables, and the hat makes for some one a fine steamer hat.

"So we went into the millinery business with hats, and you ought to see that lady this morning when she came and told me how much her friends liked those presents, and we are selling them like hot cakes. I ordered through my friend Schloss 110 dozen, of the wholesaler which supplies Bloomingdale's, and we are going to boom them for the summer resorts so the sun should not hurt the bare heads of our patrons.

"Here, don't leave those pictures behind after you, and show 'em how Max Schling cracks the hard nuts which gets him warm so he sweats when trade is coming good."

And the reporter was more than pleased to do it.

BRASS BANDS FOR BUSINESS.

Not many months ago a big parade was held in Chicago. It was in behalf of a good cause, the newspapers had given it much space, and the popular interest was aroused. A great crowd gathered along the line of march. But as the parade advanced, all that the spectators saw was a long line of men in everyday dress plodding along, block after block. There were no banners, floats, or spectacles of any kind, nothing novel or striking to arouse their interest. Aside from the small body of musicians at the head of the procession, there was not a single brass band to stir the throng with its music. The long, monotonous line of men in ordinary costume did not interest the crowd, and it melted away before half the procession had passed.

The procession of business in the florist's store is too much the same, day after day, throughout the year. The brass bands that herald with a flourish Easter, Mothers' day, Memorial day and Christmas are few and far between. The sounds of one die on the ear long before the strains of the next begin to be heard, and it is not to be wondered at if the public's interest in flowers grows dull in between times. It is, therefore, up to the florist to put some life in the daily parade and make a noise like a brass band once in a while, to keep the public's attention. We must avoid the monotony of the plodding procession, and stir up the buyers every so often to keep them on the alert.

THE GARDENER'S WAGES.

[The following is an extract from an address on "The Gardeners' Coöperative Movement," by M. C. Ebel, secretary of the National Association of Gardeners, before the Westchester and Fairfield Society, at Greenwich, Conn., June 12, 1914.]

Most gardeners, especially the younger men who are not yet firmly established, are as much interested in the probable compensation they will derive from their profession as they are in any other phase which enters into it, and this is but human nature; for experience has taught that it costs to live, although now and then the sentimentally inclined suggest that the gardener must find his real compensation in the joy he derives from his vocation.

Opportunity is presenting itself for a campaign of education in a coöperative

The Artistic Creation from the Retailer is the Result of Someone's Untiring Brainwork.

The Skillful Hand of the Decorator is Supplemented by an Inventive Brain in the High-class Retail Store.

way for improving what is now an unsatisfactory situation; for it is only too true that the gardeners themselves are as much to blame as are the employers for the poor remuneration that comes to so many of them and which often is out of all proportion to the responsibilities they are expected to assume.

To substantiate this contention it is only necessary to allude to the practice of many gardeners, when seeking a position, who, on learning of a vacancy, file their applications specifying salary expected, without considering as to whether the position applied for warrants a better salary than asked, or whether they are even qualified to apply for it. They have simply made up their minds to secure the position if they can and have just one object in mind—to get employment at so much a month. Through this practice many good opportunities have been spoiled and as a consequence thereof estate owners engaging unfit men have become disgusted with their experience in attempting to maintain country estates; and they frequently blame the profession as a whole for their experience with a few individuals in it.

To educate the estate owner that a gardener thoroughly efficient in his profession is entitled to more than the most of them are disposed to pay will make it necessary to strike at the root of the evil. The fact must be made known to these owners that the men who proffer their services for small pay almost invariably are small men in the profession; that a capable gardener is entitled to, and expects, proper compensation for his services, just as do the capable men in other professions.

It should not be amiss to suggest here that salaries within the gardening profession can never be regulated, or fixed, as some choose to call it, either through coöperation or by means of any other method. Professional gardening will always be looked upon as a luxury by those who employ it, and not as a fixed necessity. This will prohibit the enforcement of any regulations such as govern trades and labor in general; and those who are possessed of the knowledge and skill required of the thorough gardener must rejoice over the fact that they are above the domination of such regulations. What is necessary is to establish a closer relationship between employer and gardener; and to instill a greater confidence in the gardener's ability; and to arouse a greater interest on the part of the owner in what his gardener is producing for him.

When this confidence and interest are once properly created, the relationship of employer and gardener will become such that compensation will be a matter of individual adjustment and not to be fixed as is from time to time advocated that it should be.

That the profession has not gained the recognition to which it is justly entitled is due to the almost total ignorance of people as a whole regarding the essentials to properly fit a man for the calling of gardener; for it is commonly accepted that any man who can hoe, dig or sow is qualified to pass as a gardener. Only few people know of the years that must be spent in hard work and study before one can even gain a fair knowledge of the fundamentals of this profession; and what learning a gardener must acquire before he can declare, "I am a master of my vocation!" It remains with the gardener to disabuse the minds of people that gardening is but little more than ordinary labor and to teach them that it is based on scientific principles, obtained only through long practical training.

DO IT NOW.

In case you have a surplus, don't let it become waste. Offer it at once in The Review and you are almost certain to find someone who needs just that identical stock. But don't wait; do it now. Use an advertisement in keeping with the value of the stock you wish to sell; a full page if it will be worth $30 to you to clear the stock, or a classified ad if the quantity is small. And make your offer plain. Tell what the size of your plants is, their condition and value, also what you will take for them. Remember that The Review is the great buyers' guide for this trade.

"They said, 'Twelve cents apiece; $1.25 a dozen.'

"I know florists don't fall in love with department stores, but I didn't think they might soak one just for that.

In Search of an Inspiration.

They have simply made up their minds to secure the position if they can get have just one object in mind to get employment at so much a month. Through this practice many good opportunities have been spoiled and as a consequence thereof estate owners engaging unfit men have become disgusted with their experience in attempting to maintain country estates; and they frequently blame the profession as a whole on their experience with a few individuals in it.

To educate the estate owner that a gardener thoroughly efficient in his profession is entitled to more than the most of them are disposed to pay will make it necessary to strike at the root of the evil. The fact must be made known to these owners that the men who proffer their services for small pay almost invariably are small men in the profession; that a capable gardener is entitled to, and expects, proper compensation for his services, just as do the capable men in other professions.

It should not be amiss to suggest here that salaries within the gardening profession can never be regulated, or fixed, as some choose to call it, either through coöperation or by means of any other method. Professional gardening will always be looked upon as a luxury by those who employ it, and not as a fixed necessity. This will prohibit the enforcement of any regulations such as govern trades and labor in general; and those who are possessed of the knowledge and skill required of the thorough gardener must rejoice over the fact that they are above the domination of such regulations. What is necessary is to establish a closer relationship between employer and gardener; and to instill a greater confidence in the gardener's ability; and to arouse a greater interest on the part of the owner in what his gardener is producing for him.

When this confidence and interest are once properly created, the relationship of employer and gardener will become such that compensation will be a matter of individual adjustment and not to be fixed as is from time to time advocated that it should be.

That the profession has not gained the recognition to which it is justly entitled is due to the almost total ignorance of people as a whole regarding the essentials to properly fit a man for the calling of gardener; for it is commonly accepted that any man who can hoe, dig or sow is qualified to pass as a gardener. Only few people know of the years that must be spent in hard work and study before one can even gain a fair knowledge of the fundamentals of this profession; and what learning a gardener must acquire before he can declare, "I am a master of my vocation!" It remains with the gardener to disabuse the minds of people that gardening is but little more than ordinary labor and to teach them that it is based on scientific principles, obtained only through long practical training.

DO IT NOW.

In case you have a surplus, don't let it become waste. Offer it at once in The Review and you are almost certain to find someone who needs just that identical stock. But don't wait; do it now. Use an advertisement in keeping with the value of the stock you wish to sell; a full page if it will be worth $30 to you to clear the stock, or a classified ad if the quantity is small. And make your offer plain. Tell what the size of your plants is, their condition and value, also what you will take for them. Remember that The Review is the great buyers' guide for this trade.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Marguerites.

If nicely flowered white marguerites are wanted in December, the plants should be in 3-inch or 4-inch pots. They will continue to throw flowering wood all summer and look rather unpromising. Never mind that; keep them pinched and potted along. Discontinue the pinching in the early part of October and two months later they will prove useful. I have found the old, small-flowered varieties far the best for pot culture. Mrs. Sander does not make a shapely plant, and Queen Alexandra is not a midwinter bloomer.

Coming to the yellow marguerites, these are not so easily handled as the white ones. They, however, have greater value as cut flowers. Some growers carry over the old plants year after year, until they are old, gnarled specimens like some of the so-called century-old Japanese conifers. These are kept on the dry side in summer, in coldframes with a light shelter above them to reduce the strength of the sun's rays. In September they are stood in a house where they have a chance to root through into the benches or beds. All are agreed that for midwinter flowering restricted root run is an advantage. Where grown in benches the plants can be carried over if desired, pruned back after flowering, run dry for some time and started up again in August.

If an early spring crop is wanted, bench the plants in September. They will give some winter flowers, but not a really heavy crop until spring. Young plants to be grown along should not be allowed to get pot bound. As usual, a certain percentage of plants may be expected to come blind, especially among late propagations. There is a great and growing demand for yellow marguerites in winter. There are a few points to remember: The most suitable night temperature is 48 to 50 degrees; roots must only have a limited range; pots or benches, once well filled with roots, can be top-dressed and fed quite freely after February. Plants can be carried over for a number of years, but it is being proved that young stock gives just as good results.

Cyclamens.

Cyclamens are making capital growth and will require spacing apart occasionally. If a nice, light house is at disposal, splendid cyclamens can be grown in it, provided some shade is afforded and the house is kept well ventilated all the time. Thrips are apt to prove troublesome in summer and the house should be given a nicotine fumigation once a week. The plants enjoy a spraying each afternoon and on hot days they will appreciate it several times, but only enough should be given to moisten the leaves and create a nice atmospheric moisture. Heavy syringings are liable to create a slimy surface on the pots, which we do not want. In potting the plants be sure to use leaf-mold which is flaky rather than much decomposed. Rather more old decayed manure should be added at the final potting.

When a suitable greenhouse cannot at this season be afforded the cyclamens, probably a good coldframe can be used. Plunge the pots about half their depth in clean coal ashes, elevate the shades well, back and front, and leave the air on continuously. Do not shade the glass; that will only draw the plants up and it is stockiness which counts. Use lath shadings, and only when the sun shines. Spray at least once a day. On cool, cloudy days and nights which are likely to be clear the sashes are better removed altogether. Spray the plants with a nicotine extract or some other good insecticide to keep them clean.

STOCKS DOING POORLY.

Enclosed you will find two plants of stocks taken from a 4-inch flat. The compost contains about one-fourth manure, a good proportion of sand and the balance clay soil, which is all we have in this part of the country. They are planted two inches apart each way. Will you kindly tell me the trouble and the remedy? The whole flat is spoiled. We have the same trouble with our lettuce, which is the main crop in winter. Do you think it is the result of the larvæ of the black fly? We have millions of them and have used carbon bisulphide without success. Can you suggest any remedy? G. F. F. C.

I think your trouble may be due more to allowing the plants to become too crowded before transplanting than to unsuitable soil or other causes. Your plants would do better if you would pot them singly in 2½-inch pots. Be sure the seedlings are not leggy or crowded before potting. If you have any leaf-mold or even half rotted leaves which you could add to your soil, it would be an advantage. If you could sterilize or bake the soil you use for seedlings, all weed seeds, fungi and insects, with the eggs, would be destroyed. If you do not want to go to this trouble, water the soil with Bermine, one part to 300 parts of water. Sterilization of the soil would make a wonderful difference to your lettuce crop. C. W.

PLANTS FOR LARGE BED.

The steel company in our town has a piece of ground 75x500, in the center of which they would like to put a bed twenty feet across. What would be the best hardy plants for this, high in the center and lower at the outer edges? As a railroad runs near the west side of this, there will be lots of smoke and dust to contend with. Would like plants that will look well all summer in a western Pennsylvania climate.

J. W. G.

I would use a plant of ricinus, or castor oil plant, in the center, and make the balance of the bed cannas. They are perpetual bloomers and the foliage is always handsome. You could get a batch of the tall flowering sorts for the central part of the bed and run a band of a dwarfer variety near the edge. If desired you could plant a border of coleus, or, if you prefer some more tropical looking subject, use Caladium esculentum. A block of tall scarlet or yellow cannas, with a band of the reverse color in front, would make a good contrast, although the tendency now is to have beds of one solid color. I would not advise you to have a mixed bed; it will not look well. C. W.

DOUBLE PROFIT CROPS.

If The Review has the Country Gentleman on its exchange list I should like to have the editor turn back to the issue of May 16, in which Maurice Fuld has an article on "Double Profit Crops." It tells the farmer how he can secure $10,000 an acre from gladioli, $1,000 an acre from dahlias, etc. To those of us in the vicinity of Coraopolis, who have not had Mr. Fuld's wide experience, this sounds almost as alluring as the erstwhile tales of profits in ginseng.

Theo. F. Beckert.

UNIQUE IN HABIT OF BLOOM.

The article entitled "A Showy Border Plant," in The Review of June 4, with the picture of a border of liatris, prompts me to write to you in regard to two varieties of liatris that are growing on my place. On a gravelly knoll in my field are some plants of Liatris spicata, the variety shown in The Review; the other sort on my place is L. pycnostachya. There is no striking difference between the two kinds, though spicata forms its buds in knob-like masses on the stalk, while pycnostachya has them more nearly uniformly distributed. The flowers of the two are identical in color, which is purple. Both have the habit, unique among spike flowers, of beginning to bloom at the top, the bloom advancing downward along the stalk and dying in the same order, so that what is at first a tuft of flowers at the top becomes a slowly descending ring. B. C. Auten.

FERTILIZERS FOR MUMS.

Kindly tell us what manure or fertilizers to use in growing chrysanthemums. We cannot obtain a supply of barnyard manure near here, but can get pulverized cattle or sheep manure, as well as the artificial fertilizers. Are these as good? Which ones should be used, and in what quantities?

W. M. R. S.

If the mums have been planted in a good sod loam the question of barnyard manure is not of such paramount importance, though it is understood that the plants are always better for a reasonable proportion of it; still, pulverized cattle fertilizer will serve the same purpose. We have always believed that sheep manure steeped in water gives us better results than when used as a top-dressing. The expert mum grower uses considerable chemical fertilizer in addition to nature's product and sulphate of ammonia is possibly more largely used than any other one chemical. In previous years we have used considerable nitrate of soda, but prefer today to get our nitrate in other forms. Nitrate of potash, combining as it does both nitrogen and potash, is a valuable fertilizer. A safe proportion to use of any of these chemicals is one pound to a 50-gallon barrel of water, dissolving the chemical thoroughly before applying it to the plants. There are various chemicals which are valuable in mum growing on account of their large percentage of nitrogen, but which cannot be used extensively owing to their cost.

Chemical fertilizers should not be used until the plants are well established in the pots or benches and then once a week is enough to start with, until the buds are set and we are getting into September. The subject of feeding mums is a comprehensive one and cannot be dealt with fully in a reply of this character. Neither can a grower, however skillful he may be, tell another grower exactly how his plants should be fed, as local conditions, soils, climate and other considerations have more or less bearing on the case.

MOTH BALLS FOR WHITE ANTS.

Do you know whether moth balls will be safe to use around the roots of chrysanthemum plants to get rid of white ants? M. F. C.

I know of no reason why moth balls should be injurious, nor do I know that they will be helpful. Still, it will do no harm for you to try them. Many valuable discoveries have been made through accident and perhaps this is a new way of eliminating ants on mum plants. I understand they are quite destructive in some sections. We have not been bothered with them much in this vicinity.

While on this subject of preventives, why not try the housewives' remedy for ants—spreading leaves of mint on all the shelves? This puts an end to all ants, both white and black, and they never seem to bother afterwards.

C. H. Totty.

NEMATODES ON MUM CUTTINGS.

Under separate cover we are sending you some decayed chrysanthemum cuttings. We have lost seventy-five per cent of our carnation and chrysanthemum cuttings, due to animalcules, which in some cases attack the bottom of the cuttings and eat out the inside and in others eat between the fibers on the outside. In either case the cutting eventually rots.

We have noted three kinds of animalcules. The first is a translucent worm, which when full grown measures three-quarters of an inch in length and is of the thickness of a fine thread. When exposed to the air it dries up in about five minutes. The second is also translucent and is about as large as a small thrips and quite active. The legs are attached to the front half of the body. The third looks like the second with the rear half of its body cut off. It is less active than the second, has three pairs of legs and one pair of antennæ and looks as though it might be the male form of the second. This form seems to be tougher than the first, standing longer exposure to air.

The sand we use comes from a gully which drains the soil we use in our greenhouses, and if these animalcules destroy cuttings, why will they not destroy the roots of plants? We have seen many of our rose plants, especially carried-over plants, lose their leaves, then put forth a crop of small, sickly looking leaves, which, in turn, would dry up, and the plants die.

Can you tell us what these animalcules are and suggest a remedy?

M. F. C.

The tiny insects referred to are evidently nematodes. Members of this family cause eelworm in roses and many other plants. It is no wonder that they are present in the propagating bench when the same sand has been used continuously the whole season. The proper way to keep propagating sand perfectly good is to sterilize it after every crop of cuttings. This we accomplish by dumping the sand into a box nine feet long and two feet high, and then turning on live steam until the sand is cooked through. After one batch of plants has been grown in this sand, repeat the same method of cooking the sand before the next lot of cuttings is planted. You evidently had eelworm in your roses, by the description of the plants. Some growers recommend lime being applied to the soil to get rid of eelworms; others are just as emphatic that eelworms cannot flourish if the soil is flooded. One thing is sure; if the soil is treated properly by sterilization eelworms cannot exist, or any other of the numerous pests or diseases that infest the plants.

STEM-ROT ON FIELD PLANTS.

Kindly advise me what to do. My carnation plants out in the field have a bad attack of wet stem-rot. I read F. P. Adams' article on "Carnations in the South," in The Review of May 21, and notice that he advises the use of a carbonate of copper solution. Do you think that by spraying my plants with this solution I could stop the rot? My location is southeastern Wisconsin.

B. F. C.

A bad case of stem-rot in the carnation field is a serious proposition and I can give you no positive cure for it. The greatest difficulty you will probably encounter will be the uncertainty of the weather conditions. Just about the time you think you are getting things under control there may come a spell of rainy weather that will upset all your calculations and undo all your work. It does not do to dwell upon this phase of the question, however. The only way is to go ahead with your preventive measures and trust to luck as regards the weather. A field of carnations is well worth the effort to save them.

The carbonate of copper solution is a splendid article and so is the Bordeaux mixture. Instead of just spraying it over the plants as you would in the greenhouses, I would suggest that you stick the nozzle right into the heart of the plant, in order to get the material onto the stem and the soil immediately around the plant. That is where the attack is made and unless you can reach that portion with the solution, there will be little use in applying it.

Go over the field every day, pulling up the affected plants and dusting the soil heavily with hydrated lime wherever you have pulled up a plant. Carry the dead plants off the field and burn them.

I would further suggest that you prepare to house your plants early. After you get the stem-rot checked, with every day's delay you will be taking a chance with the weather. As already stated, a heavy rain followed by a hot spell might undo all the work you have done. A. F. J. B.

THRIPS ON CARNATIONS.

A number of our carnations turn out wilted at the edges, and we should like to know the cause. They seem to turn dry in the buds as soon as the color shows and are slow in opening, some not opening at all. We should like to know what causes this and how to remedy it. C. B.

Your carnations are no doubt troubled with that most common greenhouse pest called thrips. It affects the buds in just the manner you describe. In our latitude the carnation season is beginning to draw to a close and we would not think of doing anything else with a badly infested bed of carnations but throw it out. In your northern climate the carnations ought to be good for a month or two yet, and it might pay you to try to get the pests under control. Get some of one of the nicotine preparations and spray every other day for about two weeks. Then keep it up twice each week until the end of the season. You might find it advisable to reduce the number of applications somewhat, in case you find the pests less tenacious than I suspect. Next season start in spraying once each week right from the start. You will find it a good policy to prevent their getting a start. A. F. J. Baur.

BENCHING CUTTINGS.

How would it be to bench good, strong carnation cuttings directly from sand and pots and not plant them outdoors at all? D. G.

Many growers plant part of their carnations into the benches from pots, and with good success. I would not advise planting from the cutting bench, because the cuttings would need to be shaded a few days and that would be a big task. To insure success, however, proper preparations must be made. The plants are either planted into the benches from the small pots before planting in the field is commenced or they are shifted into larger pots and benched according to the size of the pots in which they are growing. Perhaps a better way to put it would be to say that they are shifted into different sizes of pots according to when they are to be benched. If they are to be benched about the middle of May, right after the field planting is done, 3-inch pots are large enough, but if the benching will not be done until June or later, 4-inch or even 5-inch pots are the proper size. Do not make the mistake we have seen made a time or two, of thinking that late propagated stock will do for inside growing and that it will catch up with the earlier outside planted stock. It invariably results in a scant, or tardy winter crop. A. F. J. Baur.

GERMINATING CARNATION SEED.

Please advise me how to handle carnation seed to get the best results. I have tried to grow carnations from seed, but they do not come up. Please tell me how to gather the seed and how to plant it in order to get the best seedling carnations. C. P.

There is no great trick about germinating carnation seed; in fact, we consider it one of the easiest seeds to handle. Judging from your letter, I take it that you have succeeded in maturing the seed, and I will not go into the process of hybridizing, etc. Most hybridizers do their crossing early enough to get the seed ripe in time to sow it by March or early in April. That gives them time enough to get the young plants nicely established by planting out time. They are then planted in the field under labels indicating the cross, etc., so that when they bloom the parentage will be known. Late in August or in September the plants will throw their first bloom, at which time the promising ones are marked and the inferior ones pulled up and thrown away. When a good proportion have bloomed, or before hard frosts have checked the plants, the good ones are transferred to the greenhouse benches, where they are allowed to bloom again and the unworthy ones culled out. Those which are considered worthy of further trial are perpetuated by propagating in the same way as the standard varieties.

Seed that is matured too late to handle as suggested above is sometimes handled in the following way; some growers handle all their seedlings this way: Pot off the young seedlings and when they are established in the small pots, shift them into 4-inch or 5-inch pots instead of planting in the field. Keep them either in the greenhouse or out in the frames. They will probably bloom a little later than those planted in the field, but you will be able to tell more about them from the first bloom. For that reason we prefer the latter method. When a promising one blooms, it can be either planted in the bench or allowed to remain in the pot, providing the pot is large enough to properly nourish the plant.

When sowing the seed, use a sandy loam. Sow the seeds thinly and cover with finely sifted soil or sand a scant eighth of an inch. Water just enough to keep the soil fairly damp. Excessive watering will cause damping off.

NEW METHODS IN GERMANY.

Cyclamen and Begonia Culture.

In growing cyclamen from the time they are potted, the German commercial establishments have hitherto depended on hotbeds well packed with horse manure to furnish bottom heat. The introduction of the automobile in place of horses in most of the large establishments has, however, made it exceedingly difficult of late to obtain manure in the large quantities needed. The necessity of obtaining the moist bottom heat in some other manner has led to experiments by the growers, and as a result of his trials in this line, Ferdinand Fischer, of Wiesbaden-Aukamm, found a most successful method in the following:

On each of the two side benches in several new, well ventilated houses, built for the purpose, were placed a 2-inch layer of coarse peat and immediately over this five 1-inch heating pipes, ten inches apart. These were covered to a depth of two inches with fine peat. To secure the infection of this peat with manure bacteria, a light layer of not too fresh cow manure was spread between the two layers of peat. To supply carbonic acid gas, which plays an important part in the development of plants, some carbonate of lime was mixed in the top layer of peat. This developed a moderate but steady supply of gas for the plants.

Cyclamen Grown by Ferdinand Fischer Under New Method.

Cyclamens in Pots on Benches Warmed by Pipes Packed in Peat.

Growth Rapid and Robust.

The atmosphere in these houses is, even at a high day temperature, of a peculiar freshness, and the growth of the cyclamen is remarkably more rapid and robust than that of plants in Mr. Fischer's other houses, which are not equipped in this manner and are simply heated. The photograph, reproduced herewith, showing the house of potted cyclamen was taken May 20 and gives a view of plants that were potted at the end of April and the beginning of May as seedlings with from three to six leaflets. Five pots of cyclamen in bloom at this establishment show, in another illustration, the quality of plants and size of flowers obtained by this method.

Propagation of Begonias.

These same benches have been used for the propagation of Begonia Gloire de Lorraine and its relatives, also with exceedingly good results. Leaves and cuttings, when placed in the peat bed, grow as well as any other softwood cutting. The peat, when properly watered, holds the moisture for a week. This is an important point, because Gloire de Lorraine will not bear to have water on its leaves. Under other methods of propagation it frequently happens that leaves root, but fail to develop leaflets. Begonia cuttings are quite sensitive to external influence; a drying or parching atmosphere is as detrimental to them as a chilly, moist one. One of the illustrations shows the mode of propagation in Ferdinand Fischer's houses, the benches on which are the peat-packed pipes and one of the flats with bottoms of wire-netting, used by Mr. Fischer with the best results.

Shelburne Falls, Mass.—John F. Ward, who has carried on the business of the late Lucius Fife for about a year, left June 6 for Farmington, Conn., where he will act as manager of a greenhouse establishment.

A BOOST FOR US.

[Editorial in Chicago Record-Herald.]

The country-in-the-city movement has reached our loop. An appeal for "Flower Boxes Downtown" is made by Chicago Commerce for June, and it is an appeal which should have an immediate and general response.

Already a considerable number of banks, department stores, hotels and other establishments have introduced that touch of nature and color that pleasantly reminds one of the green, lovely fields and meadows and reconciles one to the city even in the summer. Suspended flower pots and flower boxes are the principal means of ornamentation, and it is certain that three-fourths or more of the loop windows will accommodate flower boxes.

Why not make the loop "a hanging garden" this summer? Any owner or tenant of a loop building who needs expert advice on the subject can command it at will. The chamber of commerce employs an engineer for the purpose of making suggestions toward bringing the country into the busy, crowded, strenuous loop.

The notion that industry and commerce are sordid and ugly has long since been exploded. Business and commerce are the foundation of art and beauty, as Georg Brandes has told us. Men of affairs eagerly drink at the fountain of nature's inspiration. We work better, we think better, we rest better under the beneficent influence of beauty.

Decorate the loop. This is a good time to decorate, for thousands of women from every part of the Union are Chicago's honored guests. Decorate the loop with bay trees, potted ferns, flower boxes, flower pots.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

Last week was no exception to the rule that has prevailed since Memorial day. Midsummer values and even lower prices than obtain in the hottest days of the season have been everywhere manifest, until the wholesale cut flower market has been absolutely funereal. The latter days of the week were especially humid and depressing and the temperature the highest ever known in June. The effect was manifest in the lowered condition of the rose and carnation shipments especially, and the market was unable to digest them. There is no change in quotations as the week opens from those of last week. Lighter arrivals are anticipated and a hardening tendency is consequently possible.

Prices for tea roses range from 25 cents per hundred to $3, for the selects. Beauties hold at $10 to $12 per hundred for the best of them. Outdoor roses are abundant. There are plenty of carnations, but most of them are asleep. One lot of 11,000 sold for $11 on Saturday. The market continues to be flooded with peonies. Vast quantities are unsalable. There are few of them high grade. Prices are far below those of any other season. In fact, comparison with values of a year ago is exceedingly discouraging to growers. But the present week will see the end of large arrivals, and a good number are already in cold storage.

On orchids $10 to $25 per hundred are the quotations. Quality is superb, never better, and yet values are less than half what they should be. Even the June weddings and decorations seem to have lost their influence. Lilies are still overabundant and in quantity the best figure obtainable has been $15 per thousand. Valley sells at double these quotations, in small and selected quantities, and will while the brides' bouquets continue the demand.

Callas, iris and gladioli are abundant, and of sweet peas, daisies, coreopsis, feverfew and the other outdoor stock there is neither limit nor sale, and it is hard indeed to realize for them enough to pay the shipping charges.

Various Notes.

The early closing movement is starting now. Several houses will close next Sunday and continue the good work until September. Some of the leading wholesalers hope the plan may be made permanent.

The Tarrytown Horticultural Society holds its June show Tuesday, June 16, in the new building of the F. R. Pierson Co. This beautiful $40,000 store, just completed, is worth going far to see.

The outing of the New York Florists' Club July 1, at Glen Island, promises to be the banner event of the club for the summer, and everybody connected with the organization should attend. Chairman Marshall and his committee are working hard. The athletic contests will be numerous, the prizes worth while and the entertainment for all of the highest grade. Ex-president Vincent and his wife have promised to attend the outing.

C. C. Trepel has opened another store, at One Hundred and Seventh street and Broadway, and has more in prospect, it is said, when the season opens in the fall.

John J. Reynolds has retired from the wholesale house of Monroe & Reynolds, and Mr. Dorst, a brother-in-law of Mr. Monroe, is now his partner. This house has handled 10,000 ivy plants in pots this season.

Remember the Sweet Pea Society's convention at the Museum of Natural History, June 27 and 28. Secretary Bunyard has been lecturing at Staten Island on sweet peas, rhododendrons and hardy perennials, and will lecture before the Michigan Garden Club, of Detroit, June 24 with stereopticon views.

June 19 many New York florists will visit the Elizabeth park rose garden, at Hartford, Conn.

Ed. Asmus now has charge of the Closter and West Hoboken greenhouse establishments, the property of the late Ernest Asmus, and Percy Richter again represents these interests, with headquarters in the Coogan building.

PURELY PERSONAL.

M. Heller, of the South Park Floral Co., New Castle, Ind., was in Switzerland when last heard from.

H. Bayersdorfer and wife, of Philadelphia, are in Italy.

BUFFALO.

The Market.

The weather last week was quite warm and its effect on cut flowers was perceptible. Business was good, for with weddings, graduations, dances and funeral work, all hands have been kept busy. Killarney roses in both colors are getting smaller. Killarney Queen is good. Sunburst is excellent, but the supply is limited. Mrs. Taft is a little better in color than it has been, but the flowers are small. Mrs. Aaron Ward is poor and short of stem. Beauties are plentiful and can be had in all grades. Short-stemmed Beauties are cheap. Richmond and Milady are rather poor. All roses, in fact, show the effects of the warm weather, for they are fully opened in a few hours when out of the refrigerator. There are some excellent My Marylands in the market just now. Peonies are a drug on the market and are sold at astonishingly low prices. Festiva maxima continues to be a great favorite this summer. Gladioli are arriving from the south, but they are only fair and are cut in tight bud. There is not much demand for them as yet. Baby gladioli still are selling. Carnations are overabundant and cheap. They are getting smaller and poorer in quality. Easter lilies are good and the supply is strong, with the demand hardly equal. Valley is fair. Cattleyas are in demand and bringing excellent prices. Marguerites, foxgloves, swainsonas, yellow daisies, cornflowers, sweet peas, pyrethrum and irises swell the list of the summer flowers.

All florists are getting their share of work for commencements and weddings. Nearly all the outdoor work has been attended to and soon there will be only the regular summer trade to cope with and vacation days will be at hand.

Various Notes.

The Lenox Flower Shop had a timely window display last week, a figure to represent the sweet girl graduate carrying an immense arm bouquet of American Beauties.

W. J. Palmer & Son had a big wedding decoration at Trinity chapel June 6. At Palmer's branch store there is an unusual display of peonies and stunning baskets of digitalis.

The graduation bouquets of the Buffalo Seminary were made of lavender sweet peas and yellow daisies arranged in loose arm bunches and tied with ribbon to match the daisies. S. A. Anderson did the work. He also had the decoration for the Normal school June 12.

The two basket ball enthusiasts, Greever and Stroh, keep up their practice in spite of the warm weather.

Stephen Green, of Bayersdorfer & Co., last week passed through Buffalo homeward bound for a two months' vacation. He will make his next appearance at the Boston convention in August.

J. B. Keller Sons, of Rochester, had the decorations at the Buffalo club, June 11.

George Kramer is in Cleveland, doing some special work for the J. M. Gasser Co.

W. J. Palmer & Son filled four large wicker baskets with Boston ferns for the Wm. Eastwood Shoe Co., which make an excellent summer display.

The opening of the Sherer lunch rooms June 13 brought Felix Alberts an order for a good sized decoration.

ST. LOUIS.

The Southwestern Market.

The market last week was in pretty much the same condition as when last reported—plenty of stock, but of poor quality. The retailers had a fairly good week, with school commencements, weddings and funeral work. This about ends the season for wedding and school work, as society has closed its doors and left town for the summer vacation, so that the trade can from now on depend only on funeral work and a few late weddings. In looking over the stock at the different wholesale houses, I found that all first quality stock was scarce, especially in roses, carnations and sweet peas. Extra good quality gladioli, cape jasmines and Easter lilies are in demand and the market affords plenty of these. Outdoor stock is coming in, but shows poor quality from the need of good rains. The country is dry and for the last two months only light showers have fallen.

Now that the season is at an end, the wholesalers as well as the retailers will start cleaning up and making improvements for the Fall business.

Ferns, which have been scarce the last few weeks, are again easy, and all the markets had a good supply of fancy and dagger ferns all last week at $2.50 per thousand. Asparagus sells better than any other green, with smilax next in order. In this the market is well supplied.

Club Meeting.

The twenty-eighth anniversary meeting of the Florists' Club took place June 11. Owing to the extreme heat, the meeting was poorly attended. In the absence of President Pilcher and Vice-president Jaenicke, the members called upon Ex-president R. J. Windler to preside over the meeting. After cleaning up all the opening routine business, the chair called upon all committees to report. The banquet committee reported everything in readiness for the club's anniversary banquet, to be held next week at the Jefferson hotel. The trustees were given full power to act in regard to the club's picnic, to be held next month, in order to have all arrangements completed by the next meeting. State Vice-president Windler, of the S. A. F., made a report on the work he was doing for the national society and read a letter from the Chicago Florists' Club, asking him to try to arrange to have his party travel to Boston on the president's special with the Chicago Florists' Club. As the transportation is all in his hands, no doubt arrangements will be made to go with the Chicago party.

The matter of Sunday closing by the retail florists was brought up for discussion, in which Messrs. Ammann, Sanders, Fillmore, Windler, Geddis, Ogle and Wells took great interest, and after a lengthy discussion, it was decided on motion that the club was much in favor of this movement and that all members of the club be urged to sign their names to the petition when presented.

The rest of the afternoon was spent in discussing the effect which the long dry spell will have on outdoor stock.

The next meeting will be held July 9, when the new officers will be nominated.

Various Notes.

The County Growers' Association will hold its first picnic in Studt's grove at Creve Cœur, June 30. All members, with their families and friends, are expected to attend and spend a pleasant day.

Ernest Strehle was acting park commissioner last week in the absence of Park Commissioner Davis, who was in Kansas City, Mo., attending the golf matches.

The members of the club who have neglected to send in their acceptances to the twenty-eighth anniversary banquet should do so at once, as it takes place June 24 at 7:30 p. m. in the Floral room of the Jefferson hotel. Arrangements are all complete for this event.

Messrs. Windler, Ossick and Connon, trustees of the Florists' Club, say the picnic will again be held at Romona park, July 23. Anyone wishing to donate a special prize should notify one of these gentlemen at once. Suggestions for any new feature to make the day interesting are always welcome.

Ludwig Zimmer, the Biddle market florist, says that he will not make his ususal trip to Germany this year and that his vacation days will be spent on this side of the big pond.

Fred Ammann's talk on the Sunday closing question was interesting. He said that from the talk of some of the members on this question, the drawback was the possibility of the other fellow not closing. Why should each one worry about the other fellow? If each one closes his own place, the other fellow will soon follow. He urged all present to sign the petition to close their shops on Sundays.

Starting June 15, retailers will have to do their buying before 5 p. m. on week-days and before noon on Saturdays and Sundays, as all the five wholesale markets will be closed after these hours until September 15.

Henry Emunds, of Belleville, says he has had a great sale of his new Canna Queen Helen so far this season. Mr. Emunds kept close to home last week, with all his teeth drawn, and only made daily visits to the dentist.

Pierre Schnider, manager of the range of the Oakland Floral Co., at Kirkwood, had another successful season in carnations and sweet peas. This stock is always much looked for in this market. Some extensive improvements are contemplated for this establishment this summer.

Mr. Stork paid his first visit at the home of Oliver K. Sanders recently and left a fine baby girl. Grandpa Sanders and Oliver were all smiles when telling of the visit.

Our nurserymen will suffer a great deal this season. The long continued dry weather has killed off a great deal of young nursery stock and if we do not have a good soaking rain soon, the loss will run into several thousand dollars.

A big heading in the daily papers last week, "No flowers at school exercises," no doubt kept many prospective buyers of flowers for school graduates from sending them and proved an injustice to florists, who pay heavy school taxes.

W. E. Ogle, Gust. Grossart and Matthew Schoenenberger, of Belleville, Ill.; Geo. Madson, of Alton; J. F. Ammann, of Edwardsville; Edwin Denker, of St. Charles, and John Connon, of Webster, spent June 11 in this city and attended the club meeting in the afternoon.

The St. Louis Seed Co. gave its employees an outing June 14. A special car provided by the company took the entire force and the heads of the company to Waterloo, Ill. The weather was right for an event of this kind and a pleasant day was spent. Vice-president August Hummert had charge of the outing. Games of all kinds, with prizes, took place in the afternoon. The following were the prize-winners: Ladies' egg race, Miss Bremer; men's race, S. Pantler; time walking match, T. Ripple; young ladies' race, Ida Crain; married ladies' race, Mrs. Nixson; boys' race, F. Henselmeyer and F. Hummert; men's shot-put, H. Roth; ladies' ball throwing, Mrs. Blase; hop, step and jump, S. Pantler; boys' race, Jeff Pantler. The tug of war was won by a team composed of Messrs. Blase, Pantler, Meier, Nixen, Roth and Henselmeyer. A ball game between the salesmen and the shipping department followed, which was won by the salesmen by a score of 6 to 4. The outing was a grand success and will be made an annual affair. J. J. B.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.

The Market.

Stock in general is still in heavy supply, although it is expected that there will be a decrease shortly. In spite of the large supply, however, it is difficult to take care of all orders satisfactorily, as the quality of the stock has not been as good as it should be, owing to the extremely hot weather that has prevailed for some days. Carnations are still coming in heavily; their quality is steadily improving and the stock is being cleaned up fairly well, although wholesalers have a large supply on hand continually. Roses are not as plentiful as they have been for the last week or so, and as the demand is heavier and the quality excellent, they are cleaning up well.

Peonies, grown in this vicinity, are coming in more heavily all the time, despite the storm which swept this locality May 31 and did great damage to this crop. The peonies are extra fine and have a ready sale. Sweet peas are still in demand and the stock received is good. There are plenty of them to go around, but no great surplus, and prices are holding up pretty well for this time of year. There is an abundance of lilies of fine quality. The cut is being moved fairly well considering the large supply. Gladioli have not as yet come into the market to any great extent, but those that arrive are good. Beauties are received in limited quantities and are fine for this time of year.

Various Notes.

Walter Halliday, with the C. C. Pollworth Co., was presented with a bouncing nine-pound boy, June 8. Mr. Halliday is highly elated and says that the little chap will be one of the leaders in the future bowling team of the Milwaukee florists.

Miss Edith Webster, of J. M. Fox & Son, was taken seriously ill June 4. She had a hemorrhage while in the store and was removed to her home immediately. She is still confined to bed and is in an extremely weak condition, but it is reported that she is improving, although she will not be able to resume her duties for some time.

F. H. Holton celebrated his fourteenth wedding anniversary at Okauchee Lake, June 10. The celebration was a triple affair, as it is understood that two other guests and their wives were married on the same day of the year. An elaborate entertainment was provided and was thoroughly enjoyed by all. Mr. Holton was in Chicago June 11, where he visited relatives staying in that city at the time. He also attended the peony show.

Gust Rusch & Co. have purchased a new Ford car, which they will use for delivery purposes in place of the one which they now have.

J. M. Fox & Son had the decorations for several large funerals last week and they report that business in general has been excellent at their place.

H. J. S.

TOLEDO, O.

The Market.

There has been a terrific glut of all kinds of cut flowers during the last week, due to the great heat. Retailers have had no difficulty in buying all the flowers they could use on practically their own terms. With this advantage, they reaped a harvest, because last week was an exceedingly busy week. Several prominent men died, funeral work was abundant, social functions were numerous, commencements and graduations created a large call for cut flowers and bouquets, and June weddings have been frequent. June is responding nobly in a business way, and retailers here are quite cheerful these days. Friday a cool wave arrived, which helped considerably in checking the supply. The chances are that the rest of this month will see the demand just about keeping up with the supply. Carnations have not been good of late, and even the old, reliable sweet peas are shorter-stemmed than usual. Roses are plentiful and of fair quality. Peonies have not been as high-grade this season as is customary, but this has been laid to the hot weather. Sweet williams are now arriving in large quantities. Gladioli are fine.

Club Meeting.

The last meeting of the Florists' Club was held Tuesday evening, June 9, at the home of George Bayer, on Fulton street. It was one of the best meetings held recently, and Mr. Bayer sustained his reputation for hospitality, proving himself a royal entertainer. A large number of members were in attendance. The most important step taken was the launching of a movement to close all florists' shops at noon Sundays and eventually, when the public has been educated to this step, to close all day. Toledo has been in the throes of an early closing campaign for some time. Retail storekeepers are agitating early closing Saturday nights, and grocers and butchers are fighting to have their places closed all day Sundays. The employing florists decided by an overwhelming majority to jump into the band wagon of their own free will. The publicity man of the club was instructed to see all the florists and urge them to join in this beneficent movement to give employees and themselves a well-deserved rest on Sundays. Placards will be placed in all windows announcing this fact, a coöperative advertisement will be placed in all the daily papers, asking the public to support the cause by ordering their flowers earlier in the day, and every possible step will be taken to make a success of it. Several florists have been closing at noon; one has announced his intention of closing all day, while others stated that they would start the following Sunday. Some are opposing the movement on the ground of the peculiar nature of the florists' business, which, they claim, makes it impossible to close, as, for instance, in case there is a large funeral on Monday. However, it is not the intention of the Florists' Club to make an arbitrary rule that cannot be modified by the use of a little common sense. All orders that are taken in the morning are to be taken care of, no matter how numerous, but the store should not be open for trade after 12 o'clock. Once people are acquainted with this fact, there will not be so many last-minute flower buyers. At any rate, the irresistible trend of the times is for better conditions and saner methods of labor in all occupations. Whether one or another opposes the tide for a time or not, still the time will come when everybody will close. Once public opinion is aroused, those who remain open will lose more trade than they will gain.

Various Notes.

Florists here look for a good business this week, as the Modern Woodmen of America are having their convention here. Thousands of visitors are in the city, which is gaily decorated for the occasion. Many florists have decorated their shops and placed welcoming pennants in their stores. It pays to connect your business with affairs of this kind.

Max Spanner is wearing a happy smile these days. The reason is that he reaped a harvest last week during the annual national convention of the International Order of B'nai Brith. About a thousand members from all parts of this country were present. Mr. Spanner has been an active member of the local lodge and, having been placed on the entertainment and decoration committees for the convention, he naturally secured all the flower orders. These included 150 corsage bouquets for the visiting ladies, decorations at the Hotel Secor, Progress Club and Woman's building, all of which he took care of in his customary able manner, to the satisfaction of all concerned. When the convention finally adjourned, Mr. Spanner was so played out from constant work that he could hardly keep his head up. He put a beautiful decoration in his display windows for this week's convention of the Woodmen.

Louis Bessler, employed by Emil Kuhnke, died last week as the result of injuries received from an interurban car that passes back of Mr. Kuhnke's place. Mr. Bessler was one of Mr. Kuhnke's most valued employees.

Elmer Welling, the new bookkeeper for Schramm Bros., had a bad accident last week, cutting his wrist severely on a piece of glass. The sight of the blood flowing profusely unnerved him and he fainted away. However, he was game enough to be back on the job the next day with a bandaged wrist.

The annual picnic of the Toledo Florists' Club will be held in the early part of July, and judging from the enthusiasm already rampant, is going to be the banner get-together event of the year. It will probably be held at Ottawa park.

The writer had a short chat with Mr. Feniger to get his views on Sunday closing. He says he is in favor of it and will close if the rest do. Mr. Feniger has a beautiful flower shop on Adams street, magnificently furnished and decorated throughout. Mr. Feniger is one florist who believes in being independent and does not believe in too much organization. A. C. K.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Market.

The condition of the market is about the same as previously reported, with respect to quantity and price, but the quality of the roses and carnations is not so good, due to the intense heat of last week. Sweet peas are just as plentiful and as good, with prices about the same. Japanese iris made its appearance and is moving in small quantities at $4 and $5 per hundred. Gladioli are to be had in excellent shape. There was a little better demand for snapdragon last week, but even at that this flower is practically standing still as regards sales. Peonies are done, so far as this market is concerned, and orders either are filled from cold storage or turned over to florists in other cities.

The business of last week was mostly brought about by commencements and weddings. These affairs are using up the really good stock; seconds and lower quality stock hang fire and usually end up on the scrap pile. This condition of affairs is causing the growers to pay even more attention to their production, for it is the man who has really got the goods who is getting what little business there is.

Various Notes.

William Marche & Co., Fourteenth and H streets, northwest, utilized June 14 to lay a new cement flooring, green in color, which adds to the attractiveness of the store.

Those of the florists who accompanied the members of Kallipolis Grotto to Richmond to attend the convention of the Mystic Order of the Enchanted Realm, the playground of blue lodge Masonry, were shown the true southern hospitality. Among those who made the trip were Edward S. Schmid, who was elevated to the office of grand orator; George C. Shaffer, W. W. Kimmel, O. A. C. Oehmler and Fred H. Kramer. The latter was one of the captains of the Minute Men who headed the big procession. Following the close of the convention many of the prophets visited Washington and several hundred were taken to the White House by William F. Gude, by whom they were presented to President Wilson.

Washington last week was visited by a number of severe storms and during one of these lightning struck the fuel shed on the premises of J. R. Freeman, at Georgia avenue and Dahlia street, and started a fire which caused some damage.

Plans are being perfected for a large flower show during November. Fred H. Kramer is chairman. The project is being received with no little favor and it is believed that this show will exceed all previous efforts. In all probability it will be staged in the Old Masonic Temple hall, at the corner of Ninth and F streets, northwest.

C. L. L.

DAYTON, O.

The Market.

School commencements, June weddings and funeral orders have been the chief factors in business during the last two weeks. While we are not overrushed with business, there has been enough doing to keep the Dayton florists from getting discouraged. The heat has been intense throughout the month, and consequently stock is commencing to diminish in size and lose its color. Red carnations were in great demand last week, as they were used by the high school graduates. There is still some call for bedding plants, but as the demand previous to Memorial day was so brisk, the florist finds great difficulty in satisfying the requirements of his customers. The supply of Easter lilies is good and stock is fine, while the demand for them last week was exceptionally good, due to the fact that there were a number of large funerals in the city.

Various Notes.

A special meeting of the Dayton Florists' Club was called June 9, at the home of George Bartholomew, for the purpose of making arrangements for the funeral of Mrs. Elizabeth Young, whose death is recorded in this week's obituary column. June 10 the members of the club met at the store of the Heiss Co. and, assisted by Forrest Mittman, made a handsome blanket of lilies, orchids, roses and sweet peas for Mrs. Young's casket, after which they went to the Young home in a body.

Clifford Bittner, of the Miami Floral Co., was on the sick list all of last week, on account of being overcome by the intense heat in the greenhouses.

Frank Young, of Vicksburg, Miss., who was called here on account of the death of his mother, returned home June 13.

Henry Ehrhardt, of Sidney, O., called on some of his Dayton friends last week.

Miss Elsie Bartholomew returned June 13 from a two weeks' visit with friends in Terre Haute and Indianapolis, Ind.

D. Rusconi and son, of Cincinnati, O., and Mr. Kennedy, representative of J. M. McCullough's Sons Co., of Cincinnati, O., were Dayton visitors last week.

The Miami Floral Co. is replanting the entire rose section this season, and already has the work about completed. They have also started their carnation planting.

Mrs. Stafford, mother of Mrs. W. J. Engle, who was stricken with paralysis two weeks ago, is reported to be still in a serious condition. R. A. L.

KANSAS CITY.

The Market.

The market has been comparatively steady. All the good stock sells fast and at a fair price, while the lower grade is plentiful and some of it goes to waste. Carnations grown in this vicinity are small, on account of the hot, dry weather in May, and nearly every grower dumped them last week. Carnations have been exceptionally soft and the retailers will not use them for out-of-town orders. Roses are still holding up well; the blooms are larger than last year at this time and they are in fair condition. Gladioli are plentiful; it is estimated that there will be twice as many this year as last.

Damage by Storm.

A hail storm visited this city and vicinity June 11, doing a great deal of damage in the suburbs and agricultural districts. A 40-mile gale went through the northern part of Kansas City and Independence. The hailstones varied from the size of a pea to as large as an egg and did a great deal of damage in the business section of the town.

E. H. Frandsen & Co. suffered a heavy loss. The hail storm broke all the glass on his place and also destroyed practically all of his stock. The trade sympathizes with him, for he has had a great deal of misfortune since he has been at his present place.

R. S. Brown & Son's loss was about 1,500 square feet of glass. They were just on the edge of the storm, getting only a little of the large hail.

B. A. Bunyar's place was a total wreck; there were only a few lights of glass left, but, fortunately, he did not have any stock left for the falling glass to hurt.

The S. Bryson Ayres Co. was not troubled by any of the hail, but the damage in the field from the wind was heavy, including the loss of all of his gladioli and sweet peas.

Various Notes.

T. J. Noll & Co. report that many of the cut flowers coming to their place are soft and will not ship well.

Adolph D. Mohr has a fine lot of seedling ferns in flats, for dishes. He is making a specialty of this work.

Samuel Murray reports that business is good and that the orders for graduating exercises this year were about the same as last year, but business would have been better if the pupils had been allowed to carry more than one flower. This is the first year when the pupils were limited in the quantity of flowers.

The W. L. Rock Flower Co. has its bench mums going in good shape. The firm also has a fine lot of pot mums. Work has been begun in cleaning out the carnation houses and getting them ready for replanting.

The Geo. M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co. reports that there is a good market for this month in decorations. Funeral work has been heavy. W. J. B.

Norfolk, Neb.—The greenhouses of L. Buckendorf, the first ones erected here, will be razed soon and a Chicago greenhouse builder will put up two large houses to replace the old ones.

Berlin, Conn.—A. A. Weldon left June 6 for Bondsville, Mass., where he will erect a large greenhouse. Mr. Weldon has spent in Berlin seventeen of the fifty years he has been in this business. He will be home occasionally during the summer, but will spend most of his time at Bondsville.

Aberdeen, S. D.—Miss Beth Youreman and Mrs. Minnidelle Kronenberger have purchased the R. Strohmeier flower store on Main street and will continue the business in the same location. They will change the name to the Strohmeier Florist Shop. Miss Youreman has been in charge of the Strohmeier store for several years. Mr. Strohmeier has not determined on his future course.

OBITUARY

Charles H. Sieck.

Charles H. Sieck, proprietor of Charles E. Smith & Co., of Baltimore, Md., died June 10 at his residence, 216 Warren avenue, after a short illness. He was 49 years of age. He was formerly employed by Charles E. Smith, but afterward took over the business, continuing it under the old name. He was a member of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Baltimore. The interment was at Cedar Hill cemetery, June 13. The funeral was largely attended and many handsome floral emblems were in evidence. He is survived by his wife. W. F. E.

Mrs. Elizabeth Young.

The death of Mrs. Elizabeth Young, aged 70 years, a well known florist of Dayton, O., who assisted her husband in business at 37 East Fifth street, occurred June 8 at her residence, 105 Holt street. She was stricken with paralysis in November, 1912, and has been in poor health ever since.

Mrs. Young was born in Earls Barton, London, England, February 27, 1844, and came to this country with her parents when she was 6 years old. November 12, 1868, she was united in marriage to John F. Young. After their marriage they started in the florists' business in Dayton, at that time having only a small greenhouse. Ten years later they opened a store in town and have been at the present location, at 37 East Fifth street, for the last twenty years. Mrs. Young was prominent in lodge circles, being a member of the Pythian Sisters, the Ladies of Maccabees and the auxiliary of the Ancient Order of United Workmen. She served as state officer in the last named organization.

Besides her husband, she is survived by four sons, C. F. Young, George H., and Harry, of Dayton, and Frank, of Vicksburg, Miss., and two daughters, Mrs. David Pickerel, of Dayton, and Miss Katherine Young, who has taken her mother's place at the store. Sixteen grandchildren also survive her.

Funeral services were held Thursday afternoon, June 11, at the residence and burial was in Woodland cemetery. R. A. L.

Ogden, Utah.—The Ogden Wholesale Florists, of which John F. Dumke, Jr., is manager, have taken over the greenhouses of R. W. Altman and will do a wholesale business.

Louisville, Ky.—While excavating for a reservoir on the tract of land of F. Walker & Co. on the Preston street road, outside the city, H. G. Walker June 5 discovered a limestone cave, in which there was found to be an abundant supply of good water.

Troy, N. Y.—The range of John Pickering's Sons is being enlarged and a 150 horse-power return flue steam boiler is being installed to take care of the entire 40,000 feet of glass. The boiler room is being enlarged to accommodate another boiler of the same size. R. J. Pickering says the range will be devoted to roses, carnations, chrysanthemums and greens for wholesale. Some glass will be given to growing young stock of the above kinds for home use and for the trade.

Convention City Hotels

THE hotel committee for the Boston convention has sent out a circular letter containing the list of hotels which is here appended, with prices and other particulars. The committee has made comprehensive arrangements and in most cases can hold reservations until August 15. It will be best to write direct to the hotel for reservations, but the committee suggests that intending visitors send duplicate announcements to the office of the general secretary, 120 Boylston street, Boston, Room 702, as a record, as it is the desire to help members in every way. Besides the hotels below, there are a number of other excellent family hotels in the vicinity of the garden and hall and innumerable first-class furnished rooming houses and reasonably priced restaurants.

People intending to stay at Back Bay hotels, the Somerset, Nottingham, Thorndike, Westminster, Lenox, Victoria, Canterbury, Hemingway, Vendome or Carleton, or to look for furnished rooms, should leave trains via N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. and Boston & Albany R. R. at the Back Bay stations of the roads, all others at the South Station terminal. Patrick Welch, 226 Devonshire street, Boston, is chairman of the hotel committee.

The Copley Plaza hotel, in Copley Square, has been chosen as official headquarters of the convention. It is one block from the Back Bay and Huntington avenue railroad stations. To reach this hotel, leave the train at the Back Bay station. Check your baggage to the Back Bay and Huntington avenue stations, as it will be transferred to and from the hotel without charge.

STEM-ROT again is appearing among the asters. Has anyone found a reliable remedy?

NOT a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper.

THOSE who have surpluses of spring stock should not forget that this is a big country and that somewhere someone probably is short of just that stock. Don't let surpluses go to waste—offer them at once in the classified columns of The Review.

TRADE advertising is too much bare price list. A little description of the quality of the stock, or the uses that can be made of it, would help nine out of ten of the ads one florist prints for the perusal of another. But, after all, the most important thing is for the stock to turn out good value for the money.

ONE of the questions frequently asked of THE REVIEW concerns the equitable division of the profits of a greenhouse business where one partner supplies the capital and the other the experience. Tradition makes it appear that in such a case the positions of the partners reverse in the course of a little time, yet it is not always so and it appears that a constantly increasing number of places are being run successfully on shares.

SYSTEM, especially in the office part of the business, is something many greenhouse men know too little about. Correspondence frequently is neglected, orders sometimes are treated as something to be filled when convenient, bills lie where they fall and no books are kept. Those who are on their way to the front are as careful of all business detail as they are of cultural requirements. Permanent financial success usually calls for as close attention to the office as to the growing end.

STEM-ROT ON ASTERS.

I am sending some aster plants under separate cover, hoping that you can help me out with them. As you will see, they start to rot in the center of the stem at the ground. They have been doing this for three years in the field, being nearly ready to bloom when they wilt. The rot starts in the greenhouse when they are about half grown. They are in good, fresh soil, the same as we use for carnations and mums. I have only watered overhead enough to keep down red spider. The seed has been obtained from different firms. The soil is a clay loam sod, rotted, with some rotted cow manure added to it.

W. C. S.

If you have planted the asters on the same ground each year you are fairly certain to get stem-rot once you have had it, as the spores stay in the ground, ready to fasten on the next plant of similar character which is near them. Asters should have a change of soil each year and the ground should be liberally manured and broken up in the fall. Stem-rot usually has its inception in the seedling frames or flats in the greenhouses. If seedlings are left too crowded and, when pricked off, the stems are too deeply buried, as is often done, stem-rot is likely to develop.

You cannot do anything now which will stop the stem-rot, but another year change the location for the plants. Prepare it in the fall and, with care given the seedlings, you should have no trouble. There is little stem-rot on asters sown in coldframes, and usually none on such as are raised outdoors. I would give the land now occupied by the asters a liberal liming in the fall and sow with winter rye. Plow this in next spring and use for some other crop than asters.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

As early as June 12 there began to be signs of the hoped for change in market conditions and by Saturday night the situation had become in marked contrast to the conditions which had prevailed for the preceding three weeks. The midsummer heat was followed by weather colder than normal for the date. The high temperatures had run the crops off and the cold weather served to check the production to a point even less than it ordinarily would have been expected to be. The market was fairly clean on the night of June 13, for the first time since the last week in May.

The opening of the present week brought active business. Apparently conditions have changed over a wide stretch of country. Every buyer has had a local supply since the hot weather struck, but now the home supplies are cut down, just as the Chicago supplies have been reduced. The result is that buyers who have not been heard from for a fortnight are ordering again this week. This is school closing week, and its effect is being felt. There is much call for stock of special colors, as well as for decorating material.

The enormous waste the last two weeks is at an end. Also, the bargain sales are past. Such flowers as are coming in can all be cleared if of usable quality. There is considerable stock that is not good enough to be salable, but all stock of fair quality is moving well.

Perhaps the best demand is for American Beauties. During the recent hot weather these have shipped more reliably than other flowers and, the supply being large, the trade has got into the habit of ordering Beauties. The supply this week is much reduced and prices for the best are stiff. There continue to be quantities of Beauties that are not quite good enough to meet the needs of critical trade, but even these find buyers at much better prices than prevailed while the hot weather was on. The supply of roses this week is only a fraction of what it was seven days ago; and good roses are extremely scarce. Everything that possesses anything like fair quality is selling at reasonable prices. There is special call for red and yellow, with some difficulty in filling orders. Killarney Brilliant has been added to the list of varieties.

Carnations are more abundant than any other flower. Although many growers are busy throwing out the old stock and replanting the benches, there continue to be large receipts. The flowers mostly are small and many still are soft. The demand is good and the strictly first-class carnations sell quickly, but it is not yet possible to get anything like quoted prices for the majority of the stock. Average prices, however, will be much better than for last week.

The local peony cut came to an end last week and it has developed that the quantities of peonies in storage are not so large as was expected to be the case. For one reason or another many growers failed to cut as many as expected in condition for storage. There was a tremendous waste while the local cut was on, but with the opening of this week good peonies became excellent property. That the few firms that have considerable quantities in storage are more or less in doubt as to the keeping qualities is shown by the way some of them are pushing the stock onto the market this week.

Sweet peas were practically finished off by the high heat last week; only a few are coming in and these are not good. Gladioli increase in quantity daily; they are good and are selling well this week. Easter lilies, while they continue abundant, are selling better, because of the generally improved conditions. Rubrum lilies constitute one item in heavier supply this week than last. Shasta daisies have arrived to reinforce the yellow and field varieties. Coreopsis, gaillardias and other summer flowers now meet with fair sale. Snapdragon is dwindling. The price of cattleyas is advancing, with increasing demand and decreasing supply. Valley is abundant and large quantities are moved each day.

The scarcity of ferns is a thing of the past and prices are falling rapidly.

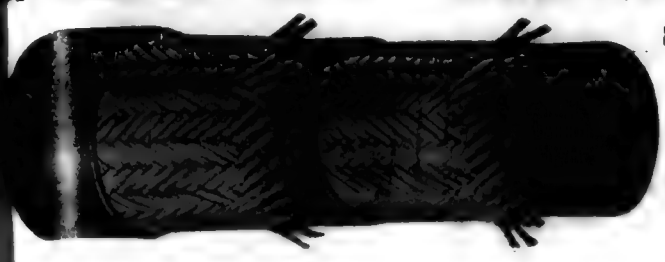
Atlas Block Changes.

Work shortly is to be started on changes in the Atlas block to conform to a recent ordinance compelling the clearing of sidewalks in the downtown district. At present the walk on the east side of the Atlas block is broken by the entrances to the stores of Weiland & Risch, the J. B. Deamud Co. and the cut flower and supplies department of the E. F. Winterson Co. The Weiland & Risch entrance will be closed by the removal of the stairs, but the firm has another entrance from Randolph street and will not be inconvenienced. The removal of the stairs also will close the entrance to the Deamud store, and it has not yet been decided what will be done in the matter. The Winterson stairs merely will be moved in a few feet.



A similar change having recently been made in the entrance of A. L. Vaughan & Co., the market section then will be cleared up except for the entrance to the store of Kennicott Bros.

The landlords have been hanging back on these changes, but the city authorities now are pressing for speedy action.

The News at Smyth's.

Returning to the store June 15, W. J. Smyth completed a six days' automobile tour which included a trip to Madison, Wis., to get Miss Smyth, who last week completed her first year at the University of Wisconsin; thence to Antioch, Ill., where Sunday was spent at the Smyth summer home at Lake Marie.

Business for the season shows up all right by comparison with other years, but it has been the holiday weeks that are responsible, as the good gains then offset quiet times between and especially since Memorial day. Last week, however, brought a good run of business, with some large funeral pieces for June 14 and a good wedding at Madison, Wis., June 15, for which a staff outfit was used.

William McCormick, dean of the Smyth staff, was called to his old home at Slingerlands, N. Y., last week by news of the serious illness of his mother, who is 90 years old.

The frequency with which one or the other of the big show windows is broken from without has become something of a joke, except to the insurance company. The big pane on the Michigan avenue side was replaced last week because of a bad crack that came in a gale.

Various Notes.

One of W. F. Schofield's hopes for a seat in the city council went glimmering June 13, with the decision of the Supreme court affirming the constitutionality of the woman's suffrage act. At the aldermanic election in April the North State street florist was beaten by the women's vote. He not only petitioned for a recount but filed a contest attacking the legality of the woman vote.

On its second sailing from New York, June 16, the world's largest steamship carried Albert F. Amling, Mrs. Amling and Clarence Amling, bound for a summer in Germany. Their address until September 1 will be care Rev. H. G. Amling, Tell street 61, Newkolin, Berlin, Germany. Mr. Amling intends to see most of the points of trade interest in the northern part of Europe before he returns.

lots on West Twenty-sixth street, near Fiftieth avenue, and built a store and residence there. His store at the new location is now open.

The cut of peonies in the field of the Batavia Greenhouse Co., at Batavia, Ill., proved much less than expected. O. Johnson said June 15 that he had less than 40,000 in cold storage, where he had expected to have at least 150,000.

Last week, while out in his auto, Frank Kral, 1907 South Halsted, was run into by a reckless motorcyclist. Fortunately both parties escaped without serious injury.

After having spent almost six weeks in the Presbyterian hospital, Miss Carrie Zech, daughter of John Zech, is considerably improved as the result of the treatment received there. Her trouble is called neuritis, the inflammation of nerves.

James Friedl, 3528 West Twenty-sixth street, reports he has had plenty of funeral work lately.

General Manager Emil Reichling is by no means satisfied with the results obtained with carnations at the Peter Reinberg establishment this season. He lays the trouble to bad weather while in the field and late planting last summer. Consequently the bulk of the carnations this season will be grown under glass all summer. June 15 he said he had benched over 100,000 plants direct from pots.

Increasing business has necessitated John Riemersma, of the Park Manor Greenhouses, to build two more houses, 27x55. An office has been built in the front of one house, to handle the retail trade.

At the store of the Chicago Carnation Co. it is reported that Pyfer & Olsem, at Wilmette, are this week finishing their new house, 32x240 feet.

C. N. Van Remortel has recently opened a store at 6704 Cottage Grove avenue.

The first Killarney Brilliant to reach this market were seen a few days ago at the store of Poehlmann Bros. Co. The color is much deeper than in the best Killarney and O. W. Frese says that buyers already are asking for them.

A new retail store has been opened by J. L. Meigs, at 1423 Michigan avenue, under the name the Handy Shop. A. Salmon is in charge.

A crowd has stood in front of A. Lange's window most of the time this week, held by the display of wedding flowers. Mr. Lange is featuring the old-fashioned wedding ideas, the yoke of flowers, lovers' knot, fans, umbrellas, etc., in flowers.

Cupid is having a busy season in the establishment of the A. L. Randall Co. Herman Getz, head shipping clerk in the supply department, returned from his honeymoon June 15; the approaching wedding of Edward Galavan and Miss Marie O'Neil is announced; Miss Tillie Noe, the oldest employee in the supply department, has given notice that she shortly will leave to be married, and friends of Cassimir Guza, of the cut flower force, are expecting the early arrival of the square white envelopes.

Work of replanting is rapidly going on at the Bassett & Washburn establishment; 25,000 carnations already are planted for early flowering.

Charles Klehm says that Klehm's Nurseries has twice as many peonies in storage as at this date last year, but he does not fail to remind one that last year was an off year.

Robert Northam, of George Reinberg's, was able to leave the hospital June 14, after his operation for appendicitis. He is convalescing at his home, 6608 Loomis street.

Because of failing health, W. L. Palinsky is contemplating retiring from business.

C. E. Pruner has returned from a trip in the southwest. He makes his headquarters with Erne & Klingel.

B. E. Gage, of Peterson Nursery, made a four days' motor trip to Elgin on business this week.

The E. C. Amling Co. reports this week that sales are again running ahead of last year, after a fortnight of bad business.

School closings still cut quite a figure in the market, according to A. L. Vaughan, who says a number of orders this week have specified that "nothing else will do, as these are the class colors."

Rose planting has been finished at the establishment of Wietor Bros., and the benching of carnations has been begun.

When A. L. Randall and Frank Johnson, who live in adjoining houses, made their recent experiments with automobiling it was with a jointly owned Overland. Mr. Randall liked motoring even better than he had expected, but did not like the car so well as he might, with the result that last week he bought an Apperson Jack Rabbit. Mr. Johnson has the Overland.

John Mangel's stand in the entrance to the Field office building probably will not be opened until autumn. The work of fitting it up has been at a standstill for weeks.

A large part of C. W. McKellar's time these days is being devoted to supervising the remodeling of his recently acquired country home.

Plant business has been exceptionally good this spring with F. H. Reifert, 18 West Sixty-fifth street.

The installation of an air brush is almost complete in the plant of the Raedlein Basket Co. and Curt Kindler expects to be turning out some unusual effects in baskets before long.

Arnold Ringier, secretary of the W. W. Barnard Co., reports that counter trade has been far in advance of a year ago. This concern has always something to attract the eye of the suburbanite and a favorite method seems to be live poultry, which fits in well with the department of poultry supplies.

The hot spell seems to be over, at least for a few days, and with its passing the glut that has been reigning in the market since Memorial day seems to have come to an end. The cuts of both indoor and outdoor stock have decreased considerably. Business seems to be somewhat better than it was. Shipping business is good.

The rose cut has let down considerably. June 15 every rose offered cleaned up readily. As far as keeping qualities are concerned, few of the offerings can boast of any real quality. They are tight buds when you get them and within a few hours are full blown. Lilies are plentiful and should other flowers continue to decrease in supply the lilies ought to prove good property. Carnations, too, continue plentiful, but the heat has affected them so that they are not in request. Sweet pea offerings have increased in size and find a fairly good sale. The receipts of valley and orchids are fully able to take care of all requirements. Gladioli are coming in much stronger and prices have fallen. Other offerings include pond lilies, cornflower, coreopsis and feverfew. Some fine peonies also are included in the offerings. The green goods supply is adequate.

IN SOME ITEMS, SUCH AS

BEAUTIES--LILIES--GLADIOLUS VALLEY--CATTLEYAS

We are particularly strong now, and in placing your order with us, you have every reasonable assurance of the order being filled with a satisfactory grade of stock.

Our growers are doing exceptionally well with their Beauties this season, producing better flowers. We feel sure our Beauties will stand comparison with any grown, and nowhere in this market will you find a larger supply than we offer you. $1.00 to $3.00 per dozen.

EASTER LILIES, the best, $8.00 per 100. We have plenty of them and they are very fine. Can ship them in bud, which insures their arrival in perfect condition.

GLADIOLUS, $6.00 to $8.00 per 100. There is a larger supply of them now. In assorted colors, we can furnish them in large quantity. When special colors are wanted, it is advisable to order in advance.

VALLEY, $3.00 to $4.00 per 100. A good supply of the usual satisfactory grade.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Eastern Market.

The cut flower market continues overloaded, mostly with flowers of poor quality. There are great quantities of low grade stock that nobody wants. Of course this can only be moved at low figures when it can be moved at all. There seems to be rather more business than a week ago, some local commencements and some excellent out-of-town orders consuming quite a fair quantity of the best stock. Beauties are decreasing in number, while the demand for them is active. Valley continues in brisk demand; the supply, owing to the hot weather, followed by cooler, has decreased. Cattleyas and white "dons" are in fair demand, but there are not enough of them to make much noise. Gladioli are ending indoors and beginning outdoors. Sweet peas are plentiful, but those not watered are short in the stem. As always after extremely hot weather, some eastern stock is being brought in to supply quality.

The tone of the market was improved June 17, with prospects of a change to much better conditions.

The Club Outing.

Be sure that you do not forget to go to the Reading terminal next Monday afternoon, June 22, in time for the 1:43 p. m. train for Taber. If you cannot make that train there are others at 2:17 and 3:02 p. m. The baseball game will be played on the Philadelphia & Reading railroad grounds adjoining Schuetzen park, commencing at 2:30 p. m. There will be games and prizes and dinner and dancing and everybody will be there.

One thing more: Take a few five-dollar bills in your pocket in case you talk business, for a rule of the afternoon is that anyone caught talking business will be fined $5. So say the committee, John C. Gracey, Adolph Farenwald, John Kuhn, Fred Cowperthwaite, F. J. Michell, Jr., C. E. Meehan and A. A. Niessen.

Lansdowne.

The Natural History Society of this progressive suburb held an outdoor flower show in the Twentieth Century hall on the afternoon and evening of Saturday, June 13. It was one of those spirited, free-for-all, amateur affairs that create interest and give pleasure to all concerned. J. Liddon Pennock prevailed on W. M. Thompson to add a touch of decorative art, to which his brother added some material that helped by giving a setting to the scene. There were over fifty competitors and several hundred visitors admired the flowers displayed. They were good flowers, as you will know when you hear that growers of the caliber of Dr. Robert G. Huey were among the contestants. So keen was the interest that the same hall has already been engaged for next year's flower show, to be held one week earlier, June 6, 1915, which, as it happens, falls on Sunday. Has the Great Sam noticed this?

Pottery Progress.

The Whilldin Pottery Co. is building a new 3-story brick stable and garage, adjacent to the plant at 716 Wharton street; also two new kilns of unusual size, rivaling the surrounding house tops in height. These kilns require skilled experts in their construction. When complete, this will double the output of the pottery. A large-sized grinding and mixing machine is being installed, to insure a uniform, smoothly finished red pot. These improvements show that the company will be in splendid shape for the coming season. A little bird says that the genial president, J. G. Whilldin, is being ably seconded in pushing business by P. M. Read. Further improvements are being made in the office, in the way of labor-saving devices.

Building in Delaware County.

Greenhouse building is actively progressing among the Delaware county growers. William J. Muth has been successful in raising the banner of the King Construction Co. all over Lansdowne and Garrettford. Mr. Muth's contracts include William A. Leonard's house, 40x300, and James Verner's house, 42x183, both previously mentioned in this column; also David Anderson's house, 45x250, material for E. F. Lieker for repairs, and William Didden's house, 28x175. Mr. Muth says, "It doesn't look like hard times here; looks pretty good to me. I didn't vote for Wilson, but will vote to have him reëlected if this keeps up."

Various Notes.

B. Eschner, president of the M. Rice Co., and Mrs. Eschner, arrived home well and hearty June 15. Mr. Eschner was received by Raymond Brunswick with a happy smile that plainly said, "All's well."

H. Bayersdorfer and Mrs. Bayersdorfer have sent greetings to their friends in this city from the Hotel De La Ville, Florence, under date of June 3.

The Joseph Heacock Co. has put a new Pierce-Arrow truck on the road.

Henry A. Dreer, Inc., had a beautiful rose exhibit in its Chestnut street window this week. There were several novelties, unknown here. The place of honor was given to the Daily Mail prize-winner of two years ago. These roses attracted much attention.

Eugene Bernheimer has moved his family out to North Wales, Pa.

A sporting event of unusual interest, planned for June 20, is a 25-mile race from Pottstown to West Chester between Edward Swayne, of Wawaset, who will be 61 years of age on that day, and a competitor who is 24 years his junior. The florists will all be for Mr. Swayne.

The Philadelphia Cut Flower Co. is receiving fine Double White Killarney from the Highland Rose Co.

Robert Crawford, Jr., the well known Eleventh street retailer, has decided to remain at the helm of the Philadelphia Carnation Co., at Secane.

Stephen D. Green has returned from the west plus six pounds.

Willis H. Baldwin, of Conshohocken, was in town June 15.

Martin Reukauf returned from the sunny south June 12, in fine feather. Mr. Reukauf says: "You may make a mistake once—everybody does—but if you do it again it's too bad, two bad."

Robert Scott & Son are replanting 30,000 roses at Sharon Hill. The solid beds are all being drained with ashes and tile run lengthwise under the beds. These drains are intersected by larger drains running crosswise, that carry the moisture outside the houses. This is done because the houses are built on low land. The new varieties just planted include Prince d'Arenberg, Ophelia, Hadley and the single pink sport from Irish Fire Flame.

The Andorra Nurseries, of Chestnut Hill, suffered the loss of their packing shed and barn by fire Sunday evening, June 14. All their horses were saved except one, which ran back into the flames. William Warner Harper has the sincere sympathy of his many friends.

Henry F. Michell thinks that business is excellent for the season.

Robert Craig is actively pushing the production of fine stock at Norwood.

The regular meeting of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society has been postponed until the sweet pea show later.

Berger Bros. have some extra fine pink and white carnations that evidence high culture.

William J. Baker considers carnations good for the season. He is getting some well grown stock. Phil.

EVANSVILLE, IND.

June 13 this city was hit by the hardest storm it has had for years. The wind blew in almost cyclonic force, tearing roofs off buildings, uprooting trees, breaking off telegraph poles, etc. It rained in torrents, accompanied by hail varying in size from marbles to hen's eggs. Every greenhouse suffered more or less.

The Wm. Blackman Floral Co., Julius Niednagel & Sons and C. L. Niednagel report only slight damage by hail. Miss Nellie Goodge suffered a loss of about $200. Louis Fritsch reports only a slight damage to his greenhouses, but several trees in his orchard were blown down. J. C. Elspermann lost about thirty panes of glass. Royston & Fenton lost only about a dozen panes of glass.

Henry Seymour suffered more damage, probably, than any other florist, the wind caving in about fifteen feet of the roof of one house and blowing in the windows of his shed. His 25-foot brick stack fell, narrowly missing him and his son as they were about to leave the greenhouses. Mr. Seymour said the hailstones were the size of hen's eggs and thinks about twenty-five boxes of glass will cover his loss.

Austin Wallace was hard hit. The roof of a shed nearby was lifted and crashed into the end of his wide house, caving in the roof for about twenty feet. He lost some glass by hail. Karl Zeidler suffered a loss of about $300 in a storm a week ago. He had just got things in shape again when the second storm hit him, undoing a great part of what he had repaired. E. L. F.

Detroit, Mich.—The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Detroit Florists' Club held its last meeting of the season June 3 at the club rooms in the establishment of the L. Bemb Floral Co.

Oklahoma City, Okla.—Furrow & Co., of Guthrie, have secured a lease on a store at 120 West Main street, in this city, and will open for business early in July.

Tarrytown, N. Y.—The annual June exhibition of roses, sweet peas, strawberries, hardy flowers, etc., by the Tarrytown Horticultural Society, was held June 16 in the new store building of the F. R. Pierson Co., George Wittlinger being manager, and admission free.

THE GENUS IRIS

By WILLIAM RICKATSON DYKES

With 48 colored plates and 30 line drawings in the text

This magnificent work brings together the available information on all known species of Iris. The most striking feature of the book is the life-size colored plates, reproduced from originals drawn from living plants—making it a volume of remarkable beauty as well as of great scientific importance.

254 pages, demi folio, half morocco, $37.50. Postage extra (weight 11 lbs. 7 oz.)

PAGES OF RETAILERS' CARDS

THIS department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists—those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists—has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share—well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand.

To be represented costs only 70 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

Why not send your order today—now—before you forget it?

Gentlemen:

During the past year I paid you $18.20 for a half inch advertisement in the Retail Florists Department of The Review. I received through this small advertisement, from January 1, 1913, to December 31, 1913, orders to the amount of $566.00. They came by mail and telegraph from New York to San Francisco and from New Orleans to Minneapolis. Since I allowed the senders 20%, the record is as follows:

Total value of orders	$566.00
Less 20% allowed senders.. .. .	113.20
Net value of orders..... .:.	452.80

Here is an addition of $452.80 in business which could not otherwise have been obtained and at an expense of only $18.20.

Since my advertisement appeared only in The Review it goes to show what the retail florists through the country lose if they do not use this medium of advertising It also goes to show that The Review is not only there with a big "R" but that it has three more big "R's" - Readers - Reliability - Results!

Yours respectfully,
J J Beneke

The Market.

The hot wave last week completely knocked the bottom out of business. The present week opens with more comfortable weather and an improvement in conditions. The numerous class days and graduations, added to weddings, are temporarily bracing up the market. Roses went slowly last week, but now are doing better. Some growers are now resting their plants and the receipts are falling off. Such varieties as Russell, Sunburst, Shawyer and Hadley sell particularly well. American Beauties are abundant and of fine quality, but prices are not commensurate with quality. The call is largely for short and medium grades. Carnations are getting small and are evidently nearing the end. Of good sweet peas there is a shortage; the hot weather is finishing the indoor crop, while outdoor plants are suffering from drought.

Valley has had a good call and lilies have done a little better than formerly. Yellow marguerites and double blue cornflowers have sold well. Snapdragons remain in disfavor; so do such flowers as candytuft, stocks, spiræas, etc. Peonies now are at their flood tide and the prices average low, except for good pink and white varieties. Owing to drought and heat, the flowers quickly drop to pieces. Large-flowered gladioli are more plentiful, and there is an overflow of the nanus varieties. The call for asparagus and ferns is somewhat improved this week.

Exhibition.

The setting back of the original dates of the several June exhibitions has proved a mistake. June 6, as originally selected, would have suited rhododendrons, while June 13 would have been just right for peony day. Vagaries of climate make it difficult to set any dates for these summer shows. Peonies, hardy herbaceous plants and orchids were features of the show which filled the main room at Horticultural hall June 13 and 14. In rhododendrons only a few late varieties were shown.

William Thatcher, gardener for Mrs. J. L. Gardner, took both first and second prizes for a group of orchids, with well flowered and well arranged collections. F. J. Dolansky showed an immense Cattleya Mossiæ, carrying 210 flowers and buds; also two plants of the pure white C. Mossiæ Wagneri. Alex. McKay had a well flowered Dendrobium thyrsiflorum. H. Stewart, gardener for Miss Cornelia Warren, of Waltham, had a table of grandly flowered specimens of Oncidium flexuosum, some of them carrying sixty to seventy-five spikes each, and worthy of a cultural certificate.

T. C. Thurlow's Sons Co. had the best six varieties of rhododendrons and the best twenty-four vases of German iris. E. M. Dumphe was second and J. L. Alexander third in the latter class. The Eastern Nurseries won for twenty-five varieties of hardy herbaceous flowers. There were large displays of German iris from G. W. Page and others. Peonies were shown in great numbers and of fine quality; the leading exhibitors of these were R. & J. Farquhar & Co., Wellesley Nurseries, Martin Sullivan, T. C. Thurlow's Sons Co., James McKissock, William Thatcher, Geo. W. Page, Dr. C. S. Minot and Walter Hunnewell. The two latter received honorable mention for a display of seedling peonies.

Walter Hunnewell had a display of Rhododendron delicatissimum. Mount Desert Nurseries had a fine collection of herbaceous flowers, among which eremuri were a feature. Jackson Dawson received a certificate of merit for a collection of seedling climbing roses and R. & J. Farquhar & Co. were awarded a silver medal for an extensive display of hardy herbaceous flowers, finely arranged. Mrs. E. M. Gill was again to the fore with a fine collection of peonies. G. W. Page had a collection of hemerocallis; Old Farm Nurseries, a fine bank of herbaceous flowers; Henry Stewart, hydrangeas, roses and poppies; Geo. Page, gardener for Mrs. F. Ayer, Canterbury bells, and Miss M. L. Waite the curious snow plant, Sarcodes sanguinea.

Various Notes.

Few spaces now are unoccupied in the S. A. F. convention garden and firms unrepresented must apply early for space or they will be too late. William Tricker finished planting his aquatics last week, and Carter's Tested Seeds, Inc., also completed its grass seed plots. Subscriptions to the local entertainment fund are coming in freely and everything has an optimistic outlook.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. W. Butterworth, of South Framingham, left June 16 on a vacation, to be spent with Mrs. Butterworth's friends in New Jersey.

Among the local growers of fine peonies coming much to the fore are the Wellesley Nurseries, owned by Geo. H. Smith. A fine selection of the choicest kinds are grown here.

The Fruit Hill Greenhouses, of Providence, R. I., are sending in quantities of the Mexican poppy, Hunnemannia fumariæfolia, which local growers seem to confound with the California poppy, Eschscholzia Californica.

Peirce Bros., of Waltham, are cutting some nice Cattleya Mossiæ; also Spencer sweet peas and yellow marguerites in quantity.

merly of the Arnold Arboretum, was married June 9 to Miss Nancy Butterfield. His many local friends wish him many years of happy married life.

Of late Galvin's has been kept exceedingly busy with weddings. At the McKee wedding, at Bristol, R. I., a wealth of choice material was used. They furnished all the material, including bay trees, palms, hydrangeas, etc., for the fine roof garden on the Hotel Westminster.

Charles Evans, of Watertown, is one of the largest local trade growers of peonies and his P. festiva maxima and Queen Victoria have been extra good this season.

The rhododendrons both in the park system and in Arnold Arboretum this season have been unusually fine. This week the display of Kalmia latifolia at the foot of Hemlock Hill, in the Arboretum, is splendid.

R. & J. Farquhar & Co. say this has been the most strenuous planting season they can remember. They have just completed a big planting contract of choice evergreens on the C. G. Weld estate, at Brookline.

P. Welch says everything is coming along swimmingly for the convention, which he feels sure will set a new high-water mark. His firm reports good June business.

Mann Bros., of Randolph, have a fine lot of both candidum and longiflorum lilies for June weddings and graduations.

Harry Quint is so far the only local retailer to take space in the convention garden. He certainly is progressive and bound to be in the front of the procession.

Penn is having a large number of decorations this week, apart from regular wedding orders. His decorations at the Harvard Club and University Club, at Harvard College June 16, were quite elaborate.

Edmund J. Welch, son of Patrick Welch, the genial vice-president of the S. A. F., was married June 10 to Miss Anna Adeline Welch at St. Patrick's church, Roxbury. The church was beautifully decorated and was filled to overflowing with friends of the young people, who are popular and to whom the sincere good wishes of a host of friends go out.

J. T. Butterworth has a splendid lot of Cattleya Mossiæ for June weddings. The fine variety, Mrs. J. T. Butterworth, is splendid now. Most of the gigas will not flower before August.

J. Leach & Son, of North Easton, still have a splendid lot of valley. Their carnation, Pink Supreme, proves a splendid hot weather variety.

McAlpine & McDonald receive fewer roses now; the crops at Exeter, N. H., are being gradually dried off.

New England is suffering from a severe drought and, unless relief comes soon, the crop outlook will be serious.

West Roxbury, June 8, and crashed into Oscar A. Knight's greenhouse, demolishing a large section of the house and destroying a large number of plants. It required several hours' work to extricate the machine, and the loss to Mr. Knight will probably reach $500. There was no one in the machine at the time of the accident, and it is supposed the brakes suddenly became loose while the motor was still running.

BALTIMORE.

The Market.

The extremely warm weather of the last week has completely taken the starch out of business. The demand for cut flowers is small. A few orders for weddings and funerals and a few graduation bouquets comprise all the business being done. Roses and carnations are of poor quality and are not selling at any price. A small quantity of good stock is being disposed of at fair prices. Beauties and valley were the leaders among the week's sales. Rambler rose sprays have arrived, but are selling slowly. Some cold storage peonies are being shown, but meet with little demand and their quality is not up to the standard. All outdoor stock is at a standstill, being almost destroyed by drought, as it is about five weeks since any rain fell. Large quantities of Lilium candidum are coming in, but are selling slowly at low prices. There is a prospect of good business during the coming week, owing to a large number of commencement exercises. Outdoor sweet peas are coming in and, despite

Various Notes.

The local branch of the Leo Niessen Co. handled a large crop of fine water lilies, in red, white, pink and yellow, from an out-of-town grower. These flowers are something of a novelty in the local market and found a ready sale.

Halliday Bros. are receiving some good cut asters from their greenhouses at Monkton. These are the first to be seen this year. This firm also had the decorations for the graduation exercises at the Johns Hopkins University, held in the Academy of Music, June 9.

F. C. Bauer, of Govanstown, has started work in razing one of his greenhouses, which will be replaced with one of more modern construction. A number of other houses are to be repaired and reglazed.

Edward Kress reports having sold during the last spring over 5,000 rose plants, of which about 1,700 were his new red rose, Defiance. Considering that these were all sold at retail, this speaks well for Defiance's first year on the market.

E. A. Seidewitz had on exhibition in his store window on Charles street recently a unique picture, showing a cliff and beach scene. The cliffs were formed of natural rocks glued to the canvas, and numbers of smaller rocks were scattered about on the beach, which was of natural sand, also glued to the canvas. The picture was banked on either side with potted ferns, but, instead of an advertisement of the florist, on one large rock was displayed the ad of a well known breakfast cereal.

Baltimore street, there were recently displayed, along with the usual show of plants and cut flowers, a large number of telephones from all parts of the window, which ended in one line. These were intended to emphasize the many parts of the city served by this firm.

Miss Minna H. Seidlich, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Seidlich, of Woodlawn, was married June 10 to John T. Boland, at the parsonage of Salem Lutheran church. The bride's parents are well known florists of Lexington market and the bride was employed by Pierce & Co. at the North Charles street store up to the time of her marriage. The couple are spending their honeymoon at Atlantic City, where they first met during the vacation season last year.

William Kalb, of Geo. S. Kalb & Sons, pot manufacturers of Catonsville, was injured June 8, while running a pot mold. The first finger of his left hand was badly crushed by being caught in the mold.

The Pennock-Meehan Co. is receiving some good spikes of America and Mrs. Francis King gladioli, which are finding a ready sale at good prices. Some good Beauties were also handled by the firm last week.

The subject of the annual outing of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of this city will come up for discussion at its next regular meeting, June 22. It is hoped to have a large turnout on this occasion and every member is urged to be present.

Chas. H. Sieck, proprietor of Chas. E. Smith & Co., 121 North Liberty street, died June 10, at the age of 49 years. Further particulars will be found in this week's obituary column.

houses later than usual this year, thus putting a larger quantity of cut flowers on the market than usual, but at present prices they hardly pay for the watering, not to count the time spent in cutting and sending them to market.

W. F. E.

LANCASTER, PA.

The Market.

The extremely hot weather of the last week has practically put an end to all indoor stock. Many benches are being cleared to make room for young mum stock. Many of the growers are cutting gladioli in quantity. Some Niagara are being cut. This charming new variety seems to have all the good qualities of America; its color is a delicate cream-yellow, lightly marked and splashed with rosy carmine. They were much admired by all who saw them. Outdoor sweet peas are at their best.

Various Notes.

Ira H. Landis, of Paradise, and Walter Denlinger, of Vintage, are cutting immense quantities of outdoor sweet peas. L. S. Landis also has fine stock.

E. Koplitz, of Madison, N. J., representative of the Sefton Mfg. Co., in the east, called on the trade here last week. He made the trip in his 90-horse-power Oldsmobile, and was accompanied by his wife and son and his sister-in-law, Miss Goldbach, of Baltimore.

At Long park, for the last ten days, the peony plantings have been a constant attraction to the flower lovers of Lancaster. The delphiniums, papavers and pyrethrums are also worthy of note. John C. Dinan is park commissioner here.

At the B. F. Barr & Co. store Chas. F. Edgar has arranged a window display that attracts many passers-by. A rural scene is presented, showing miniature lily ponds, with goldfish, and a Japanese sunken garden. A half-dozen fuzzy ducklings with their antics furnish plenty of amusement. The whole is cleverly arranged and reflects credit on Mr. Edgar's artistic ability.

In a local rose garden, all abloom, the following ramblers were noted: Veilchenblau, a beautiful thing with its violet-blue tint; Dorothy Perkins, that beautiful pink, with its wonderful freedom and blooming qualities; Lady Gay, with its exquisite deeper pink, and White Dorothy, with its clusters of pure white. All these should be planted more extensively.

The next meeting of the Lancaster County Florists' Club will be held June 18.

Seed Trade News.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, C. C. Massie, Minneapolis; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O. Thirty-second annual convention, Washington, D. C., June 23 to 25, 1914.

THERE is a surplus of tuberose bulbs this season.

CHARLES J. BOLGIANO and family are at the Hotel Dennis, Atlantic City.

THE California seed growers are becoming pessimistic in the matter of sweet peas.

THE attractions of Washington as a tourist center will result in an unusually large attendance of ladies at this year's seed trade convention.

THE New York Sun has a page of gardening matter every Sunday, and other metropolitan papers are catering to the increasing love for plants.

W. ATLEE BURPEE, JR., and his mother sailed on the George Washington, from New York, June 13, planning to meet Mr. Burpee and son, David Burpee, in Paris next week.

ALFRED E. WHEELER, of W. E. Marshall & Co., New York, took unto himself a bride June 17 and is in central New York on a honeymoon, which will include the seed trade convention next week.

ACCORDING to the report for 1913 on the trade of the Netherlands, issued by Count Charles Bentinck, second secretary to the British Legation at The Hague, the area under regular bulb cultivation in that country was 14,550 acres. The total export of bulbs last year was 24,961 tons.

THE San Francisco Chronicle of May 31 devoted one-half of a page in its feature supplement to an account of Mrs. Theodosia B. Shepherd's establishment of the seed business now carried on at Ventura, Cal., under the name of the Mrs. Theodosia B. Shepherd Co. The article was entitled the "Pioneer Seed Grower and Hybridizer of the West."

OPPOSE LOUISIANA BILL.

Seedsmen of New Orleans, Shreveport and Baton Rouge recently appeared before the Louisiana state senate committee on agriculture, commerce and levees, at Baton Rouge, to oppose the passage of the Schexnayder pure seed bill, which requires all seed sellers to furnish a guarantee of purity to the purchaser. The bill as it passed the house was, the seedsmen held, impractical in its provisions and by requiring a guarantee from local dealers would make them unable to compete with concerns outside the state which carry on a mail order business.

A sub-committee was finally appointed to redraft the bill, altering the sections objectionable to the seedsmen. Those who appeared before the senate committee and spoke against some of the pro-

PEDRICKTOWN, N. J.

Hot Shot

Was the answer of our fleet before Vera Cruz that bright April day, belched forth in fire and smoke, emphasized with shells. A finer piece of marksmanship than the San Francisco, Prairie and Chester made in picking off the snipers, hidden snake-like on the buildings, cannot be made. Our jackies aboard the floating fortresses humor and care for their babies, the 13 and 14-inch guns, and those of smaller caliber, as if those weapons of destruction were human. The breech-blocks are kept in perfect working order, the electric firing pin is kept practically hair-trigger fine, the bore and muzzle kept as clean as a whistle without scratch or mar, even the gun and mount kept painted to guard against erosion, not saying anything of the bright parts being kept polished and the recoil cylinders filled with the proper proportion of glycerine and water. Only with this care can the high and splendid record for marksmanship of our boys aboard our fighting ships be accomplished, unequaled by any navy in the world. Care and attention is the order aboard ship—so in the greenhouses should the order be, care and attention. Bulbs can't just be stuck in the soil and expect results; you've got to "turn to" and help nature to get all out of the bulbs that is contained in them, and this more particularly applies to lily bulbs. With being potted right, getting every care and attention as to water, drainage, heat, kept clean of insect pests and so on—with you having Horseshoe Brand Bulbs—a high percentage of returns will be the result. Horseshoe Brand Bulbs, particularly lily bulbs, average higher than any other, regardless of name or brand—why risk disappointment in getting others? A catalogue with prices on request.

IOWA SEEDSMEN MEET.

Officers Elected.

The Iowa Seed Dealers' Association held its annual meeting at Shenandoah, Ia., June 12, and elected the following officers:

President—Henry Field, of Shenandoah.

Vice-president—E. M. Cole, of Pella.

Secretary—J. F. Sinn, of Clarinda.

Treasurer—J. T. Hamilton, of Cedar Rapids.

Executive committee—G. H. Cummins, of Sioux City; M. Kirtzwell, of Des Moines; J. F. Sinn, of Clarinda; M. L. Webster, of Independence, and C. G. Owen, of Council Bluffs.

Legislative committee—C. M. Page, of Des Moines; H. A. John, of Sioux City, and J. T. Hamilton, of Cedar Rapids.

Membership committee—A. M. Eldridge, of Shenandoah; William Grote, of Council Bluffs, and J. E. Hoopes, of Muscatine.

Business Session.

The seedsmen gathered for business in the Elks' club house at 10:30 a. m., but found themselves a little handicapped by the absence of President Mel. L. Webster, who telegraphed his inability to come on account of the illness of his wife, and of the secretary, who missed his train and did not arrive until after dinner. Vice-president Field occupied the chair and did it so well that he was elected president for the ensuing year. Questions of transportation, parcel post, express rates, postage, weights and measures, and the laws came up for discussion. After a long discussion the association put itself on record as favoring the substitution of weights for dry measures, although there was a wide division on this point.

Prof. W. D. Hughes, of the state college at Ames, talked interestingly on alfalfa, and the other speakers were not behind him in interestingness.

When the meeting had adjourned, a dozen automobiles took the visitors on a tour of the town. At the test gardens of the H. Field Seed Co. a stop was made for inspection, and after another ride the party went through the packing houses of the Mt. Arbor Nurseries and D. S. Lake's Shenandoah Nurseries. Supper was served on the grounds of A. M. Eldridge's residence by employees of the Field Seed Co.

Those Present.

A good attendance from all parts of the state made the meeting a lively one.

PREPARE FOR WINTER

JULY AND AUGUST FOR

The progressive florist must now look ahead to winter and plan early for a full measure of success. If you have not grown my S. P. Seedling snaps you will want a big bed of them. If you have grown them you will grow more, for there is no plant in cultivation that will give the same returns, and there is no snapdragon in existence so beautiful or productive, nor so easy to handle. Sow seeds in July and August for best results. Allow three months to have fine, bushy plants, ready for the bench. Our free instructions are complete and make growing simple. There is no comparison between a seedling plant of Silver Pink and a cutting from any other variety. The seedling makes a business plant from the start and can be produced at one-eighth of the cost.

When buying my original Silver Pink you are getting the cream of all snapdragons. You won't have to make an apology for its color. It is that lovely, silv-ry, sea-shell pink that fits into any occasion without special toggery to match it. It is what the people buy and the people are the ones to whom we must cater. Unsolicited testimonials and repeat orders by the hundred. See recent ads.

For a long flowering season sow seed in JULY and AUGUST. Price of new crop, $1.00 per packet of about 1000 seeds; 3 for $2.50; 7 for $5.00. Cash. Plenty of plants later.

CANTALOUPES AT ROCKY FORD.

Later information from Rocky Ford, Colo., regarding the crops injured by hail on the evening of May 27, indicates that the damage was fully as great as first reported. Nearly all crops, however, have been replanted. J. C. Robinson says he feels that results will depend upon the character of the fall. Many heavy crops have been grown from acreage planted as late as these replant crops, and yet average results are not so good as from the earlier planting. Mr. Robinson adds that the Nebraska crops of his company are looking fine, with plenty of moisture and a good stand, and the prospect is as good as could be asked for.

ADULTERATED SEED REPORT.

The Department of Agriculture last week published its list of those from whom adulterated or misbranded seeds of Kentucky bluegrass and redtop had been procured in the open market in 1913, in accordance with the Act of Congress

In carrying out the provisions of this act, 1,021 samples of the seeds mentioned above were secured and analyses made under the direction of Edgar Brown, botanist in charge of the seed laboratory, bureau of plant industry, and publication is made of the analyses of the 127 samples found to be adulterated or misbranded, together with the names of the seedsmen by whom they were sold or offered for sale.

Of the 438 samples of Kentucky bluegrass seed obtained, fifteen, or less than four per cent, were found to be either adulterated or misbranded. Of these, nine samples contained less than two per cent of Kentucky bluegrass. One sample was a mixture of redtop, timothy, Canada bluegrass, and Kentucky bluegrass.

Of the 583 samples obtained as redtop seed, 112 were found to be adulterated or misbranded. Of these, 110 samples contained timothy.

From the report, which is contained in the weekly letter to crop correspondents, it appears that the Kentucky bluegrass has been greatly improved and that the seed offered last season was of first-class quality. In the four per cent of bad samples found by the government the majority appear to be cases of misbranding, although a few samples indicate deliberate adulteration. It is inconceivable that any seedsman would endanger his reputation by knowingly offering adulterated seeds and it is a mystery why the few caught last year did not take advantage of the government's offer to test samples for the trade, without charge.

Some well-known, reputable seed houses supplied, in open market, some of the 112 lots of redtop that were found to be adulterated or misbranded. Why the Kentucky bluegrass should be so much better than the redtop is not

New Winter-blooming ORCHID-FLOWERED Sweet Pea "Anita Wehrman"

A fine, clear lavender, with three to four flowers to stem, and has been grown with 20-inch stems, holding the length longer than is usual with any other winter-flowering variety.

Will bloom from Thanksgiving on, if sown in July.

This variety originated with Mr. Henry Wehrman, of Maywood, Ill., five years ago, and has been grown and selected by him ever since, he now having the type fixed as well as it can be in the Spencer variety.

The seed we offer is greenhouse-grown, saved and rogued by the originator, and will be ready for delivery in July, the proper time to sow for Thanksgiving and Christmas bloom.

The cut of this variety having been handled on the Chicago Market by the E. C. Amling Co., we give herewith their opinion of its value as a cut flower.

New Winter-blooming Spencer Sweet Pea, Anita Wehrman.

CHICAGO, June 16, 1914.

A. Henderson & Co.,
Chicago, Ill.

Gentlemen:—

We have handled the Lavender Sweet Peas for Mr. Wehrman for the past three years and have found same a strong seller and the earliest of all the Lavender Peas, producing long stems as well as large flowers. We find that Spencers are about the only Sweet Peas we can sell to any advantage, and these are far superior to all other Lavender Spencers.

Yours very truly,

apparent, but it seems that the samples that did not pass nearly all contained, besides more or less timothy, a high percentage of dirt and chaff, indicating cheap purchases.

SEED CROPS IN GERMANY.

Late reports from the German seed growing sections, around Quedlinburg and Erfurt, indicate that on the whole conditions are fairly satisfactory, although the weather has been abnormal, too cold, too warm, too dry or too wet, from one extreme to another during most of the late winter and spring. On the whole the biennial and perennial vegetables and flowers grown for seed production have withstood the unfavorable conditions better than would be expected and are looking well. The spring planted crops were got out under some difficulties, but have made a good stand and promise normal yields. Those crops principally exported all promise ordinarily well, except perhaps radish, which is becoming steadily a more important crop in the Erfurt district. Spinach promises an excellent crop. There is some difference in the various carrots, the short varieties not doing so well as the long kinds. Pansies have recently been making a magnificent show. Many houses have specialized on pansies, working up their strains and finding a constantly increasing sale for the seed, which calls for planting greater breadths each year. Quedlinburg, which probably grows more flower seeds than any other similar district in the world, reports active demand for such specialties as primula, calceolaria, cineraria, myosotis and wallflower.

WALT MASON ON FREE SEEDS.

Walt Mason devotes one of his effusions to free seeds. He says:

"Our congressmen should make an effort to get wise to what we're really wanting. I'd like to have a chug-chug cart to ease my corns and bunions, and oh! it breaks my world-worn heart to get a pack of onions! I'd like to see my daughters wear swell lids and silken dresses, and here I get, to my despair, some wilted watercresses. Our congressman, who sheds his blood when perils brood and trouble, has got a headpiece full of mud—he ought to take a tumble."

Vegetable Forcing

GREEN APHIS ON CUCUMBERS.

Will you please let me have a dependable remedy for the small green lice that attack cucumber vines under the leaves, and which make short work of them? R. G. S.

It will be necessary to turn the vines over if they are growing outdoors, and spray them with tobacco water. Either soak some tobacco stems or use one of the specially prepared extracts. Other remedies are Aphine, whale oil soap, kerosene emulsion, Ivory soap, etc. Do the spraying in the evening rather than when the sun is high. The nicotine sprays are less liable to burn cucumber foliage than the others named. Sometimes I have found that by turning the vines over and giving them a good dusting of tobacco dust, applied through a powder bellows, almost all the aphis will be killed. C. W.

COPENHAGEN MARKET CABBAGE.

I have been growing Copenhagen Market Cabbage since its introduction and have had trouble with rotting. It has been worse this season than ever before. It seems to begin to rot on one side about the time it begins to head. I have All Head Early and some other varieties in the same patch, but they never are affected in this way. Can you tell me the cause? Do others have the same trouble? My location is Oklahoma. W. R. M.

I have not had any trouble with Copenhagen Market such as you describe. Possibly your hot sun scorches the inner leaves and starts the rot referred to. This is a Danish introduction and, in my estimation, the best early cabbage we have, Danish Ball Head being the finest winter sort. It would be interesting to know if other growers of this cabbage have had similar trouble. C. W.

Lititz, Pa.—C. S. Loeffler is erecting a house, 74x150 feet, southwest of town. A boiler house will be added later.

SELECTED SEEDS SUCCESSFULLY SOWN SECURE SURE, SAFE AND SERVICEABLE SATISFACTION

IT has been, is, and always will be our policy and intention to disseminate only the very choicest strains of flowering seeds (or any other varieties of seeds), giving special attention to the class known as Florists' Seeds, and intending customers need have no hesitation in buying or fear of disappointment when they bloom. No expense has been spared to secure the finest types as to habit of plant, form of flower, color and breeding of our Quality strains of Primula, Cineraria, Cyclamen, Calceolaria, etc.

ASPARAGUS

PLUMOSUS NANUS. True greenhouse grown. 50 cts. per 100 seeds, $1.00 for 250 seeds, $3.50 per 1000 seeds.

PLUMOSUS NANUS. California grown. 50 cts. per 100 seeds, 75 cts. for 250 seeds, $2.50 per 1000 seeds.

CALCEOLARIA HYBRIDA

BODDINGTON'S PERFECTION. The herbaceous Calceolaria is an easily cultivated plant. So long as frost is excluded from the plants in Winter they are perfectly safe, and to attempt to hasten growth at any time is a failure. July is the best month for sowing the seed. The great advance made in the habit of the strains offered is remarkable, whilst in the colors there is a marked improvement. Saved by England's most famous specialists. Monster flowers of rich and varied colors, including spotted, laced, blotched and self-colored varieties. ½ pkt. 60 cts., pkt. $1.00.

Boddington's Matchless CINERARIAS

BODDINGTON'S MATCHLESS CINERARIA. A combination of the three most famous English strains, which we can recommend to those wishing to grow the best. Tall, ½ trade pkt. 60 cts., trade pkt. $1.00; Dwarf, ½ trade pkt. 60 cts., trade pkt. $1.00.

CINERARIA STELLATA (Star-flowering Cineraria). Tall growing, 4 to 5 feet; excellent as a single specimen for table decoration, or for grouping with splendid effect in corridors and conservatories. ½ trade pkt. 60 cts., trade pkt. $1.00.

CANDYTUFT (Iberis) H. A.

BODDINGTON'S GIANT HYACINTH-FLOWERED. Large, pure white, spiral spikes. The finest variety for growing under glass. Trade pkt. 35 cts., oz. $2.00.

MIGNONETTE H. A.

BODDINGTON'S MAJESTY. The finest of all the fancy varieties of Mignonette; an improvement on Allen's Defiance. Seed saved from select spikes under glass. Trade pkt. 60 cts., ⅛ oz. $1.00, oz. $7.50.

BODDINGTON'S POT MYOSOTIS

Forget-Me-Nots are delightful subjects for flowering indoors at Christmas time, and as they are everywhere welcome the practice of growing plants in pots is rapidly increasing. Sown in July and potted on, the strain we offer produces fine, free-growing specimen plants. Trade pkt. 50 cts., 3 pkts. for $1.25.

SCHIZANTHUS (Butterfly Flower) H. A. 1½ ft.

Elegant, free-flowering, hardy annuals for the garden in Summer or for pot culture in the greenhouse during Winter.

GRANDIFLORUS BODDINGTONII. Boddington's Select Hybrids. This strain is superior to any of the Schizanthus in cultivation, the flowers are better shaped and the colors are more varied. In habit the plants are very bushy, and the flowers are invaluable for cutting; as a pot plant for conservatory decoration they are unequaled. Trade pkt. 75 cts.

WISETONENSIS. The colors are varied, ranging from white with yellow center to pink with brown center. Most useful as a Winter plant, and should be given a place in every greenhouse. Trade pkt. 50 cts.

Boddington's Matchless GIANT PRIMULAS

PRIMULA SINENSIS

Boddington's Matchless Giant Primulas, Mixed. This selection includes all the finest Giant Single Primulas of the plain-leaved class. ½ trade pkt. 60 cts., trade pkt. $1.00.

Boddington's Matchless Giant Pure White.

Boddington's Matchless Giant Blush White.

Boddington's Matchless Giant Orange King. A delightful novelty; almost orange.

Boddington's Matchless Giant Rose.

Boddington's Matchless Giant Scarlet.

Boddington's Matchless Giant Royal Blue.

Each, ½ trade pkt. 60 cts., trade pkt. $1.00. Collection of the above 6 varieties, ½ trade pkt. each, for $3.50.

The Duchess. The large, pure white flower, with its unique zone of bright, rosy carmine, surrounding a clear yellow eye, is simply unapproachable in its beauty. ½ trade pkt. 60 cts., trade pkt. $1.00.

Sutton's Coral Pink. The name describes it; habit dwarf and compact; flowers thrown well above foliage. Pkt. $1.00.

PRIMULA OBCONICA GIGANTEA

Primula obconica gigantea Kermesina. Beautiful, deep crimson.

Primula obconica gigantea alba. The pure white flowers greatly enhance the beauty of the existing lilac, rose and crimson shades.

Primula obconica gigantea lilacina. Beautiful lilac.

Primula obconica gigantea rosea. Lovely rose.

Primula obconica gigantea grandiflora. Mixed varieties, containing pure white to deep crimson.

Each of above, ½ pkt. 30 cts., pkt. 50 cts.

PRIMULA floribunda grandiflora (Buttercup). Small yellow flowers, borne in great profusion; fine for pots. Pkt. 50 cts. Forbesii (Baby Primrose). Pkt. 25 cts.

PRIMULA KEWENSIS (Giant Buttercup). This plant is a strong grower, with bright green leaves and numerous erect flower-scapes, 10 to 18 inches in height, producing flowers in whorls at intervals along their whole length. The flowers are fragrant, bright yellow in color, with a slender tube and spreading limb nearly an inch in diameter. As a Winter-flowering decorative plant it is an acquisition; very floriferous when in a small state. ½ trade pkt. 60 cts., pkt. $1.00.

PRIMULA FIMBRIATA, GIANT QUEEN ALEXANDRA. G. P. The largest white Primula Sinensis, blooms measuring 2½ inches across. Petals very solid and erect. Robust foliage with red stems. ½ pkt. 60 cts., trade pkt. $1.00.

PRIMULA, NEW HYBRID QUEEN OF ROSES. A lovely new hybrid of P. obconica and P. stellata, producing shapely heads of large and beautiful, bright rose-colored flowers, remaining decorative for a long time. 1 foot. Trade pkt. $1.00, ½ pkt. 60 cts.

PRIMULA MALACOIDES. H. H. P. (The Giant Baby Primrose.) The plants branch very freely. The flowers, which are ¾ inch wide, are of a pretty light lilac, and are borne in whorls on long stems. If grown in a greenhouse, can be had in bloom in four months after sowing. Trade pkt. 50 cts., 3 pkts. for $1.25.

PRIMULA MALACOIDES ALBA. The white prototype of the foregoing variety, and a great acquisition; very chaste and beautiful as a plant or cut flower. Trade pkt. 50 cts., 3 pkts. for $1.25.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

An account of the meeting of the Pacific Coast Association of Nurserymen, in progress this week, appears on page 64 of this issue.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

Right from the start June business kept increasing, and there has been a much better tone to it ever since. Not only has funeral work kept up well, but there has been a number of good wedding orders, and school commencement exercises are coming on. The popular flowers now are sweet peas, valley and orchids, and it is pleasing to note that ladies are using many more flowers than formerly for street wear. Outdoor roses are getting past their best and as the weather has become much warmer they will soon lose substance. Ulrich Brunner is still the hot weather standby and it is the best outdoor rose of its class for commercial use here, Mrs. John Laing and Frau Karl Druschki running it close in their respective colors. Gladioli are overplentiful now and the smaller varieties stand a poor show against the larger hybrids. The open flowers with broad petals of the America type are most popular. Indoor roses are fair, Radiance keeping up its reputation as a good hot weather variety. Carnations are only fair in quality and overplentiful. Boston ferns are a little more plentiful, but not as yet of the best quality. There is a good supply of all kinds of greens.

Various Notes.

The H. N. Gage Co. is now handling the fine seedling gladioli raised by Ernest Braunton, and they are making an elegant show in the store. Business, according to H. N. Gage, has improved considerably since June 1.

At Darling's Flower Shop, Manager Walter Garbett reports business picking up again. He has secured the work for the commencement exercises at the Westlake Girls' school and the Collegiate high school. During the week a splendid display of sweet peas has been kept up in the window.

In addition to his throat troubles, Charles Morton, of the Los Angeles Flower Market, is now suffering from a sprained ankle, the result of a fall. He had to use crutches for a day or two, but now can do without them. A fine display is always kept up at the Los Angeles Flower Market.

G. Newman, of S. Murata & Co., has just returned from a business trip through Nevada, Texas, New Mexico and other territory, visiting the customers of the house and hunting up new business. During his absence Mr. Murata was particularly busy and he had to put on extra help.

Dr. Parker, of Santa Cruz, has been sending in magnificent Cattleya Mossiæ.

Herbert Chase, of Delta, Colo., has been calling on the trade, taking orders for deciduous fruit trees. He is especially interested in "red apples."

A picnic of the Los Angeles County Horticultural Society is scheduled for Sunday, June 21, to be held at the Howard & Smith nurseries, at Montebello. Fred Howard, J. Dieterich, James Taylor and G. M. Grant are the committee in charge, Mr. Dieterich being master of ceremonies. A good time is looked forward to by all.

Howard & Smith are showing a magnificent collection of Iris Kæmpferi in the big store. Business is reported good here.

Eleanor Turner, daughter of H. W. Turner, who was seriously injured as reported last week, is doing nicely.

H. R. Richards.

I sold over 35,000 chrysanthemum plants this season on my 1-inch ad in the Pacific Coast Department of The Review. Of course that paid me well and I am very pleased. You will hear from me again as soon as I can work up stock.—Frank Wilhelm, R. F. D. No. 6, Los Angeles, Cal., June 13, '14.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

We are in the midst of a season of flower profusion, typical of California. Last week brought us a wonderfully wide range of superb roses. Best of all is Killarney Queen. We have excellent Beauties, Aaron Wards have never been better and Richmonds have fine long stems and wonderful color. Sunburst takes no second place and has become wonderfully popular. There are unlimited supplies of Prima Donna. The bunches of baby roses are liberal and the buds large and vigorous. In short, the rose supply is at the acme of perfection. With summer trade conditions prevailing, there is naturally not the call for these flowers that there might be at another season.

Next in importance to the roses is Gladiolus Mrs. Francis King, which is probably the most popular of the day, although Gladiolus America is plentiful, and these are also a few Halley seen. Gladiolus Halley will undoubtedly prove to be a popular strain around the bay. It does wonderfully well here. Apparently some of our growers have had their Gladiolus America indoors, as the stock shows a paler pink than that which we shall probably receive a few weeks hence. Some good scabiosas attracted attention last week, and also cactus dahlias. The cactus dahlia is particularly popular here, as it makes an early appearance. A few early Minnie Burgles sold well, but there was not a great quantity for the retailer to draw from.

Flowering plants are at a premium, although it can hardly be said that there is a demand for them. We see a few stray hydrangeas, a few of the late rhododendrons, a few pink spiræas, and even an occasional bougainvillea. Good ferns are practically unprocurable. There are no Harrisii, Bostons, elegantissimas or Roosevelts to be had. Some late rambler roses, which made a good filler last week and the week previous, have all been bought up and are no longer procurable.

We have a profusion of cattleyas at this writing, chiefly Mossiæ and gigas. Phalænopsis amabilis is also in evidence. Although this is a month for weddings and receptions, most of the larger social functions have been postponed to the latter part of the month, and while commencement exercises in the public and private schools have made some demands on the cheaper grades of flowers, the real June business has not yet made a strong impression.

Liberal bunches of Spencer peas are being offered on the market for 50 cents to 75 cents per dozen bunches, according to quantity, but the sweet peas this year have been slightly affected by late rains. Coreopsis, cornflowers, stocks, Shasta daisies, forget-me-nots and mignonette are in the usual good supply characteristic of this season in California, and the sale of these cheaper things is normal and healthy. We have a great many of the white and pink-flowering eucalyptus, which make a good substitute for the huckleberry, commonly used here, which is at this time somewhat scrawny and shedding its leaves. Cut hydrangeas have been used here and there for window decorations and prove most effective. It might be noticed that the maindenhair fern and Asparagus plumosus have been arriving in much larger bunches, which is another characteristic of California's summer ampleness.

Club Meeting.

The regular meeting of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society was held at Saachem hall Saturday night, June 13, and the evening given chiefly to the execution of the business of the society. A baseball club was formed, and plans were made for the annual picnic, D. Raymond and P. Ferrari being the most active in the undertaking. John Vallence, who recently bought the nurseries of C. C. Morse & Co., favored the society with a few remarks and expressed his intention of coöperating with the society in carrying out its ideas for the convention of the S. A. F. when held in San Francisco.

Exhibits of the evening were awarded points as follows: Ninety points for a plant of Cattleya Gaskelliana alba, exhibited by Dr. Parker; eighty points for a plant of Miltonia vexillaria exhibited by the MacRorie-McLaren Co., and eighty points for a vase of Enchantress carnations exhibited by J. A. Schillig.

Various Notes.

H. Plath, of the Ferneries, is much gratified with the new fern Teddy, Jr., which is a dwarf form of Roosevelt and a much quicker grower, sending out many runners, in fact, probably the best of all the short-frond ferns. Mr. Plath has been able to move into his newly constructed houses and has a fine lot of adiantum and pteris in many varieties.

The MacRorie-McLaren Co. has just received from Australia a shipment of rare heaths. Already Mr. MacRorie has in his collection a great many new varieties and before another year is over will undoubtedly have the best collection of heaths procurable on the coast.

Dr. Parker, of Santa Cruz, through his representative, sent a finely flowered plant of Cattleya Gaskelliana alba to the city last week. The plant contained two mammoth-sized flowers.

Podesta & Baldocchi displayed an unusually attractive hamper of cactus dahlias and lavender sweet peas in their windows June 12. The hamper was executed by H. Soelke. Another unusually good piece of work made by the same firm was a basket of oriental poppies and scabiosas. The selection of ribbon and the tasteful arrangement of it aided in making a spectacular and beautiful show.

Pelicano, Rossi & Co. had an unusually rich display of rhododendrons last week. They are probably the last of the season.

Ralph Stevens, of the University of California, has just returned from the convention of nurserymen at Davis. On his arrival he immediately made plans for a visit to the Yosemite valley, where he is now summering.

Albert O. Stein reports an active week with decorations. Mr. Stein exe-

The Market.

The early spring this year has caused the dull season in the flower business to come earlier than usual, and already the customary summer stagnation has set in. An occasional funeral is about the only thing to relieve the monotony. One of the drawbacks to a mild climate, as far as the flower trade in this locality is concerned, is that flowers grow outside with so little care and cultivation that most families can generally from May to October get nearly all the flowers they want, from their own or a neighbor's garden. There is an abundance of all seasonable flowers in the stores. As usual at this time, roses have the preference and of these there are plenty to satisfy all requirements. Carnations are cheap, too cheap, as they have been nearly all year, and growers are hard put to it to make a living from them, at the prices that have prevailed ever since Christmas. We used always to buy carnations till June 1 at $3 per hundred; this year they have been $2 except at holiday times and the difference is quite important. Coreopsis and the like are arriving in ever increasing quantities and sweet peas are so cheap that it hardly pays to pick them. We are all looking and hoping for a much better year next year, with the thousands of tourists visiting our coast, and certainly all in the trade are going to do their utmost to beautify the city and add to its attractions at that time.

Various Notes.

At the monthly meeting of the Florists' Club, held Tuesday evening, June 9, a discussion on the selling of flowers by Japanese and others at Pike Place market took place, and it was resolved to petition the city council to set aside an exclusive part of the space at their disposal, for the sale of cut flowers and plants, to be sold only by the grower. At present the Japanese are selling flowers not of their own growing on most of the vegetable stands, and it is with a hope that part, at any rate, of the business may revert to the white man that the club is moving in the matter. An invitation from the Chicago Florists' Club to join in the trip to the Boston convention was received by the club and in the event of any of our number going we will gladly avail ourselves of the courteous invitation.

The trade was fairly well represented at the Mt. Baker Park rose show Saturday, June 6. The exhibition hardly assumed the proportions of past shows, on account of the limited space, but what was lacking in quantity was amply made up in quality and a beautiful collection of roses was on view, including many of the latest varieties. J. J. Bonnell had an extensive display of roses, peonies and choice evergreen plants. The Seattle Nursery & Landscape Co. was also well represented with a choice assortment of roses, beautifully arranged. Rosaia Bros. put up a collection of new varieties of sweet peas, flanked by some baskets of roses, and attracted considerable attention by their showy display.

The Pacific Northwest Rose Society's show Saturday, June 13, was a noteworthy affair. The society has members from all parts of the state and many from Oregon and British Columbia, and as a result of the fine season we have had, the roses proved more than usually attractive. It looks as though the public were taking an unwonted interest in rose shows this year and this one was well patronized. Several members of the trade exhibited, but the principal interest was in the amateur showings.

The funeral of Jacob Furth caused most of the florists to be busy. Not for a long time have so many designs and flowers been used.

After only three-fourths of an inch of rain in the month of May and a partially dry April, we were much relieved to have a steady downpour Saturday night, Sunday and Sunday night, June 6 and 7, and garden crops are all looking much better for it.

The Market.

Flowers as graduation presents and corsages for the fair graduates constitute an important item in the weeks following the Memorial day rush. As at Christmas, when people are at a loss for suitable gifts to send to their friends, so at the graduation season they are turning to flowers and gladly welcome the suggestion of filled baskets, corsages and boxes of flowers. In wedding work, also, there has been considerable activity, and, with nearly all flowers in good quality and in sufficient quantity, everyone is happy. The only noticeable shortage is in valley. Any valley that does come in, however, is good. Roses have been considerably in excess of the demand. Peonies have been scarce and the quality in most cases has been none too good. The later ones will no doubt be better. Outdoor sweet peas made their first appearance May 28, really good flowers being brought in. Some good Spencers were in the market a few days later, but were all contracted for by one retailer at their first appearance.

Various Notes.

The following is a clipping taken from a local newspaper: "The store room and front of the building occupied by the Spokane Florist Co., at 722 Riverside avenue, is being remodeled. The lower floor is being divided into two rooms, to be occupied by the florist company and Ben Cohn & Bro., jewelers. The alterations to the front include a modern entrance, and double windows on the second floor. The jewelry firm has secured a three-year lease from the Spokane Florist Co. The room to be used for the sale of flowers is to be equipped with modern display cases, with refrigeration from a plant being installed in the basement. The alterations will cost $2,000."

A. J. Burt had the misfortune, June 3, to strain his back while removing a tree from the courthouse lawn, necessitating his remaining in bed for several days.

Peters Bros. are erecting two greenhouses, each 32x100, and one house 18x 100. They have heretofore grown carnations, pot plants and vegetables, but in the new range they are planting roses.

W. S. Van Doren came in from Post Falls, Idaho, on business last week. He reports that one house of carnations, planted last March, is almost ready to throw buds.

Mr. Irvine, representing the State Hospital for the Insane, at Medical Lake, Wash., was in town last week on business relating to the erection of the greenhouses to be built at the hospital this summer. L. B. H.

The Rose Festival.

This being the week of the annual rose festival, the city is crowded with visitors from all over the country. The events of the week included many of interest to the florists' trade. The floral parade June 10 was the crowning feature. There were over 200 entries, and the line of vehicles was two and one-half miles in length. The grand prize was won by an amateur. It was a canopy effect of rhododendrons and cupids. Many autos and rigs were decorated by the florists, but in most cases the decorations were in accordance with the prices paid, which were not sufficient to justify prizes. The Florists' Club entered an appropriate float and came in well on the prize list. The consensus of opinion is that in general the fiesta was far ahead of that of previous years and it bids fair to be an annual event. To George Otten is given credit for originating the idea. He suggested the fiesta to the Elks' Club eight years ago and it was immediately taken up and put into effect. The city is beautifully decorated for the occasion. The principal streets are garlanded across and from the lamp posts hang baskets of growing plants. Booths are arranged in a space of two blocks, on Sixth street between Yamhill and Salmon streets, making a beautiful effect. The parking effects were arranged by the florists, Rahn & Herbert, Clarke Bros., Swiss Floral Co., Mountain View Floral Co., Zimmerman Bros.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

THE packing shed and barn of the Andorra Nurseries, Chestnut Hill, Pa., were destroyed by fire June 14.

A CERTIFICATE of incorporation was filed June 3 by Kopf Bros. Co., of New Haven, Conn., to do a nursery business. The authorized capital is $500,000 and the company will begin business with $196,000. The incorporators are Henry B. Kopf and Matthew L. Laity, of New Haven, and Almon J. Ives, of Meriden.

EDWARD S. OSBORNE, secretary and treasurer of the Charlton Nursery Co., Rochester, N. Y., and city controller of Rochester, was elected president of the National Controllers and Accounting Officers June 13 at the closing session of the organization's convention at Milwaukee, Wis. Mr. Osborne was last September elected president of the New York State Nurserymen's Association, in which was amalgamated at that time the National Association of Retail Nurserymen and the Eastern Nurserymen's Association.

MEETING AT VANCOUVER.

Pacific Coast Men in Session.

The Pacific Coast Association of Nurserymen is holding its twelfth annual meeting this week at Vancouver, B. C. As the association has some 350 members, counting individuals as well as firms that have badges, the attendance is fairly large and is representative of the rapidly growing trade interests in the Pacific northwest. The south is not strongly represented, as this is the second year in succession that the association has met in the north, farther from Los Angeles than New York is from Chicago.

The program was laid out with skill. The convention is a three days' affair. It opened Tuesday morning, June 16, and will close Thursday afternoon with the election of new officers and the next place of meeting. It was arranged to get through the routine work at the first session, to devote the second and third mornings to papers and discussions and to use the afternoons and evenings for recreation.

The Routine Work.

After the usual preliminaries, including address of welcome and responses by R. D. Rorison, of Vancouver, and President Richard Layritz, the minutes were read as the report of Secretary C. A. Tonneson, who also reported as treasurer. The next order of business was reports by the vice-presidents, who are:

Oregon—C. F. Lansing, Salem.
California—John Vallance, Oakland.
Utah—E. M. Tyson, Brigham City.
Idaho—C. E. Wright, Kimberly.
Montana—D. J. Tighe, Billings.
Washington—F. A. Wiggins, Toppenish.
British Columbia—Joseph Brown, Vancouver.
Arizona—Byron Smith, Safford.

Then came the call for committee reports, but these were unusually brief. The chairmen are:

Executive—C. L. Trotter, Vancouver, B. C.
Committee of Presidents—A. Brownell, Portland, Ore.
Transportation—J. B. Pilkington, Portland, Ore., who was not present, being on his way to Cleveland, O., as he is president of the American Association of Nurserymen, which meets there next week.
Membership—S. A. Miller, Milton, Ore.
Reception—A. R. McDougall, Vancouver, B. C.
Exhibits—Col. E. Hobday, Victoria, B. C.

M. McDonald, president of the Oregon Nursery Co., Orenco, Ore., for the committee on uniform horticultural laws, was able to report only slight progress. Each state represented in the association has a legislative committee and reports showed some cessation of activity on the part of state law-making bodies so far as the horticultural trades are concerned. The chairmen of the committees are:

Oregon—F. W. Power, Orenco.
California—F. H. Wilson, Fresno.
Idaho—C. P. Hartley, Emmett.
Utah—B. H. Bower, Provo.
Washington—F. A. Wiggins, Toppenish.
British Columbia—A. J. Woodward, Victoria.
Arizona—Byron Smith, Safford.

The day's work closed with the year's summary by President Layritz.

Essays and Discussions.

The rule is short talks and brief comment—no long essays. The full list of set topics is:

"Herbaceous Plants in Landscape Gardening," by James Manton, Victoria, B. C.

Entertainment.

The local entertainment committee, headed by A. R. McDougall, took the visitors to Capalino canyon by auto on the afternoon of June 16. For Wednesday afternoon an automobile trip through the city, to Stanley park and around Marine drive was carded. The big feature, however, is to follow adjournment June 18. The nurserymen of British Columbia have chartered the brand-new steamer Melmore for a trip up Howe sound and then up the north arm of Burrard inlet, to Indian River park, where a dinner will be served at the rustic Wigwam Inn, returning by moonlight.

body hopping. There has also been a good amount of funeral work, while counter trade has resumed its usual condition. The weather in the first part of the week was extremely hot. The brilliant sunshine has made a big difference to outdoor stock. The market is fairly glutted with peonies, hardy roses, Spanish iris, etc., and indoor stock has arrived faster than it could be comfortably used. Quantities of short-stemmed Beauties are sold on the streets at give-away prices, while the usual cut of ordinary Beauties is disposed of cheaply. Lots of short-stemmed Killarneys find their way to the market, but they do not interfere much with the regular cuts of longer-stemmed stock. Good Sunburst, Taft, My Maryland, Milady, Cardinal and Kaiserin are cleaned up fairly well daily. Sweet peas are in fairly good condition and the sales keep up well. Carnations are not overplentiful and many of them are of inferior quality. A few good ones may be had. Valley has met with a large demand of late, but the quality is not extra good. Easter lilies are on the market, but do not receive large calls. Orchids have sold freely during the last few days and their quality has been first-class. The old-fashioned garden flowers are becoming more popular and sell well this year. Little is seen of blossoming plants now, though here and there can be found a few primulas, hydrangeas, begonias and gloxinias.

Various Notes.

Charles W. Curtis has had one of the best years in bedding stock since he commenced business. Little bedding stock is left and he has entirely cleaned out his aster plants and pelargoniums. He is getting a good cut of sweet peas.

Visitors last week included E. F. Kennon, of the Climax Mfg. Co., Castorland, N. Y.; Thomas Cogger, of N. F. McCarthy & Co., Boston, who attended the wedding of a relative here, and Morris Cohen, of Wertheimer Bros., New York. Each man reports good business.

H. E. Wilson is growing some beautiful gloxinias in exquisite shades and finds a good sale for them. His force was unusually busy with weddings last week.

single stocks, banked up to form a pyramid. The firm is making a specialty of dollar baskets, which sell well and are always attractive.

J. B. Keller Sons have been extra busy in the line of wedding work. They are doing a good store trade.

Henry P. Neun also received his share of work during the week and he is receiving some well grown stock from his own greenhouses. His store window always looks attractive.

What has been said of the retail men can also be said of the wholesale man, George B. Hart. His staff of help has been fairly rushed from morning till night. In some cases stock has not arrived fast enough. Mr. Hart appreciates his new store this weather, especially the newly installed refrigerator system, which proves to be a great boon.

William Ballantyne, of Greece, N. Y., is doing a big business in cut flowers, as well as in bedding plants. His greenhouses present a fine appearance and attract considerable attention from the public.

The monthly meeting of the Rochester Florists' Association was held on Monday, June 8. The usual business was transacted. It was decided that no further meetings of the association be held until next October.

The monthly meeting of the Lady Florists' Association was held in Highland park on Tuesday afternoon, May 9. After the usual business was attended to, the party spent a pleasant time in the park and conservatory. A picnic has been arranged by the ladies to take place on the second Tuesday in July, to which their husbands will be invited.

Vick & Hill, of Barnard, N. Y., are cutting large quantities of peonies.

The Market.

The business so far this month has not been the kind we like to talk about. We have been having more than our share of hot weather and it has forced in about everything that would or could bloom. The result was an overcrowded market, with a demand for only the choicest stock

Bedding is about finished for this season, and it was not a great clean-up year, as most of the plantsmen have a great deal of stock still to sell.

The retail shops look much like summer. The June bride is not much in evidence and funeral work is the chief standby, with some graduation work.

Various Notes.

T. P. Langhans has moved to his summer home at Allison Park. He reports strawberries as fine, but has not invited anyone up to sample them.

The cut flower stands in the Pittsburgh market have been moved upstairs, as they are now ready to begin work on the new market house.

MOBERLY, MO.

Harry Estill, son of Harry V. Estill and Mrs. Estill, who operate the Estill Floral Co., was accidentally shot by a companion June 7, and died at the Woodland hospital in Moberly June 12. The attending physicians state, however, that death was not caused by his wounds. The lad and his companions, before the accident, had eaten a large quantity of gooseberries and onions, and this produced a condition, following the nervous shock caused by the wound, which is believed to have been responsible for his death. Harry Estill was 15 years old, November 17, 1913. The young man was a favorite with all his acquaintances, and news of his death was received with regret by all.

The funeral took place from the Episcopal church June 14. The floral offerings were numerous and beautiful and were of every description. The procession to Oakland cemetery was one of the largest ever seen in Moberly.

GREENHOUSES: Hinsdale, Ill.

GREENWICH, CONN.

There was a large attendance at the monthly meeting of the Westchester and Fairfield Horticultural Society at the rooms in Doran's hall June 12. President Robert Williamson occupied the chair. Two new members were elected and several applications for membership were received. The summer and fall show committees reported progress and offers of substantial additions to the premium lists of both exhibitions were read and accepted. M. C. Ebel, secretary of the National Association of Gardeners, was present and delivered a lengthy address on the cooperative movement between the local societies and the national association. After a discussion it was unanimously decided that our society should join in this movement and the president accordingly appointed a committee of three members to act in conjunction with the national coöperative committee.

A pleasant feature of the meeting was the competition for the Michell silver and bronze medals, open to assistant gardeners only, for the best arranged table centerpiece composed of outdoor flowers and foliage. Several beautiful creations were on exhibition. David B. Ridpath, of Mamaroneck, N. Y., was awarded the silver medal and Andrew P. Clarkson, of Port Chester, N. Y., carried off the bronze medal. Neil MacInnes, of Mamaroneck, and Adam Smith, of Rye, N. Y., were given votes of thanks. The taste displayed in their work was a credit to the exhibitors.

The judges made the following awards to the non-competitive exhibits of the other members: Alex. Marshall, cultural certificate for a magnificent plant of Miltonia vexillaria and a cut spray of Cattleya Mendellii; Thos. Aitchison, highly commended for a specimen plant of Oncidium Wentworthianum; P. W. Popp, vote of thanks for a vase of climbing American Beauty, a hardy climber of recent introduction that will be popular when better known.

The summer show will be held on the hospital grounds at Port Chester June 19 and 20. P. W. P.

ST. PAUL, MINN.

The Market.

With the exception of graduations, weddings and a few funerals, business is dull. Stock is plentiful and the growers at times are not able to dispose of all their cut. Peonies are at their best and the retailers are pushing them strongly; the flowers are fine and the supply is large. Outdoor sweet peas are in and are selling at low prices.

All growers of bedding stock report a good season and planting is nearly completed.

Various Notes.

June 9 the St. Paul Florists' Club held the last meeting for this season and plans were discussed for the summer picnic. The Minneapolis club favors a joint picnic of the two clubs. They evidently are under the impression that they can play baseball better than they can bowl. A committee was appointed to meet the Minneapolis committee. Sam Seligman was present and gave one of his characteristic talks.

The burglars who broke into L. L. May's place Memorial day are still at large and no clue has been discovered as to their identity.

J. W. Hoffman is well pleased with his new location and reports a decided increase in business.

N. C. Hanson contemplates building several new houses this summer. He reports his carnations in the finest possible condition for this time of the year. Mr. Hanson is cutting a fine lot of gladioli.

Calvin Kinsman, of Austin, spent the greater part of last week in this city.

Holm & Olson are well pleased with the spring season. The handsome catalogue greatly stimulated business.

S. D. Dysinger, of Holm & Olson's, is confined to his home by illness.

The Minnesota State Florists' Association held its first summer meeting in conjunction with the Minnesota State Horticultural Society at the Agricultural school, St. Anthony Park, Tuesday, June 16. There was a big display of summer flowers.

C. C. Bennett is busy at his Wabasha street location. He reports a decided increase in business over what was done at his old Sixth street location.

O. R. Eckhardt Co. reports a fine out-of-the-city business. C. R. F.

HERRINGTON on the Mum, sent by The Review for 50 cents.

GERANIUMS

Careful growers do not depend on the scrubs left over from the bedding season for propagating their next season's stock. They know that it pays them to safeguard the vitality of the geranium stock, just as well as of the carnation or the rose. We have thousands of vigorous young plants which were propagated late for this purpose. Let us supply you from these—they are a bargain at $2.50 per 100, $20.00 per 1000. We have:

The Market.

Trade has quieted down considerably in the last week. Good stock is hardly obtainable. Beauties, roses and carnations are showing the effects of the hot weather. Some first-class gladioli are being shipped into this market. Shasta daisies are coming in, but not in large quantities. Cut rambler and Dorothy Perkins roses and yellow coreopsis are some of the salable flowers. There have been numerous weddings during the last two weeks and, with the numerous school commencements, there has been a good call for flowers. However, the arrangement of vacation dates is the main topic now, and a quiet time is before us.

Various Notes.

Otto Laurence, with E. A. Nelson, left last week for a three months' stay in Europe. He expects to visit England, Germany and France before he returns.

Walter Bertermann's automobile was stolen recently by joy-riders. He found it up in the north end of the city the next day.

Albert Pittet reports some good sales of the seed of his new sweet pea, Rose Queen.

Geo. Wiegand is contemplating an automobile trip through the east in the near future.

Frank Hasselman reports a fine bedding plant trade this year, having cleaned up most of his stock.

John Rieman says that he is getting excellent service out of his new delivery automobile. H. L. W.

CLEVELAND, O.

June 8 the Florists' Club held its first meeting in the new quarters at Hollenden hotel. It was well attended, even though the day was one of the hottest June days we have had. The club rooms are cool and pleasant, with modern ventilation, which consists of washed, cooled air being forced into the rooms. The summer meetings hereafter should be as well attended as winter meetings, as a more pleasant place to meet could not be found. A committee was appointed to arrange for the annual picnic, the date of which is to be announced later. F. A. F.

EVERYBODY IS LOOKING FOR PROFIT

What is profit? How can you obtain profit? Just by this very simple plan: Plant your empty benches with the right kind of ASTERS. We have them, the genuine Crego Asters. This well known variety will bring you the "rocks," the money, the so-long-sought-for profit. 2½-inch pots, bushy plants, the four leading colors, the pink, the white, the rose-pink and the lavender; these are the branching varieties, bearing an abundance of large flowers; by September they are all cut, and you can reset your benches with ferns, cyclamen, poinsettias, primroses, etc., for the fall and Xmas trade, making some more profit for yourself.

We have 15,000 plants ready for you in 2½-inch pots, strong, $3.00 per 100. Cash with order, please.

NEW CHRYSANTHEMUMS.

Here are three you ought to grow.

ALICE SALOMON—Pure white, larger than Chadwick, easy to grow, ready to cut Oct. 10 to 25. R. C., $7.00 per 100; 2½-inch, $9.00 per 100.

GOLDEN SALOMON—A sport of Alice Salomon, the same in every respect except its color, which is as its name implies—a golden yellow. R. C., $20.00 per 100; 2½-inch, $22.00 per 100.

CHIEFTAIN—A pink, described by E. G. Hill Co. as a Pink Bonnaffon, ready to cut about 10 days earlier than Enguehard. R. C., $12.00 per 100; 2½-inch, $14.00 per 100.

We believe the above mums are valuable additions to the list of commercial varieties, and recommend them as such.

SINGLES

Mrs. John Fisher, light pink.
Dark Pink Single.
Parkinson, single yellow.

Mensa—R. C., $8.00 per 100; 2½-inch, $10.00 per 100. This is the splendid white that attracted so much attention at the fall flower shows, and is considered the best single white on the market for cut flowers or plants.

Pauline—This variety sported with us. It is a dark single bronze, very attractive, splendid grower.

CYCLAMEN.

CYCLAMEN GIGANTEUM is one of the best paying winter plants in the florist trade. We only send out a plant when it is ready for a move up. The stock we are now sending out is well rooted, has fine bright foliage and will prove to be a moneymaker. We are now selling only the stock in 4-in. pots that is ready for 5 and 6-in., $20.00 hundred for any amount. Have a trial shipment come now, so you can get what you need. Can ship in clay or waterproof pots. Cash with order.
C. L. HUMPHREY, ZANESVILLE, O.

200,000 GIANT FLOWERING CYCLAMEN SEEDLINGS AND BLOOMING PLANTS.

For the last 16 years we have selected three-fourths of our seed-bearing cyclamen stock before Xmas, to assure early blooming plants, and claim the finest commercial strain in this country; no fizzle of many so-called English varieties. Our aim is strong growers that don't have to be petted to be grown into a choice salable plant—a well built, five-petaled flower (many of them at one time), with well marked foliage; every plant an ideal, a prize winner. Received first prize at the Cleveland show and first and second at Toledo, early November, when blooming cyclamen were scarce.

STRONG AUGUST SOWN SEEDLINGS, once transplanted, $3.50 per 100; $30.00 per 1000.

Cash with order. Cultural directions with all orders.
C. Winterich, Cyclamen Specialist, Defiance, O.

SELECTED CYCLAMEN GIGANTEUM, CHOICEST GERMAN STRAIN.

Our select stock of cyclamen for summer delivery, will make magnificent plants for late fall and Christmas flowering. You cannot grow a more profitable stock.

FINE CHRISTMAS RED, BRIGHT PINK, GLORY OF WANDSBECK, WHITE, WHITE, RED EYE; LILAC, ETC; a liberal mixture of bright colors in all orders.

Shipment is made in paper pots and the stock arrives in best condition. Cyclamen have been our specialty for years. Our large plants shipped in flower at Christmas time go all over the country and are unsurpassed. 3-in. plants, $8.00 per 100, $75.00 per 1000; 4-in., $15.00 per 100; 5-in. (September shipment), $25.00 and $35.00 per 100.

The Market.

The majority of the florists are now looking forward to a busy few weeks. Graduations have begun, and on these, with weddings, they are basing their hopes. The florists who have outside work to attend to have all they can do. Lack of rain has played havoc with carnations and other stock in the fields and many growers have suffered considerable loss.

Various Notes.

Another effort is being made to give fathers their just recognition. Sunday, June 21, has been chosen as Fathers' day by Mrs. John Bruce Dodd, of Spokane, Wash., who suggests that a red rose be worn in honor of the fathers who are living and a white one in memory of those who have passed away.

Bailey's Standard Cyclopedia of Horticulture.

First volume just off the press. Remaining volumes will be issued as soon as possible. The following are a few of the features to be found in this new work:

KEY TO IDENTIFICATION OF PLANTS.

This is a device to enable one to find the name of a plant. The name thus found is quickly referred to under its alphabetical location, where full information will be found in regard to it.

SYNOPSIS OF PLANT KINGDOM.

This is one of the most important features of the new edition. It constitutes a general running account of the classes, orders and groups of plants, with a brief sketch or characterization of 215 of the leading families comprising those that yield practically all the cultivated plants. These family descriptions give the botanical characters and the number of genera and species and the ranges.

THE GLOSSARY.

This is an analysis of all technical terms that are used in the work and in similar works.

TRANSLATION AND PRONUNCIATION OF LATIN NAMES.

In Volume I is inserted a list of between 2,000 and 3,000 Latin words used as species—names of plants, giving the English equivalent or translation and the pronunciation.

ILLUSTRATIONS.

There are 24 colored plates, 96 full-page sepia halftones, and more than 4,000 engravings which serve as guides in the text.

This work consists of six large quarto volumes, more than 3,600 pages, 500 collaborators, approximately 4,000 genera, 15,000 species and 40,000 plant names. Price, $6.00 per volume; $36.00 per set. Can be paid for one volume at a time.

Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

COAL TRADE NOT PROSPERING.

Because the coal companies are, for various reasons, selling their product at prices so low that no profit is allowed over the cost of production, they are gradually drifting towards the rocks of receivership and insolvency, declares an organ of the industry in a recent issue. "Anyone," it says, "who will take the trouble to go over the list of what have been considered solid coal companies will be astounded to find the number now in the hands of receivers." These were brought there, the article makes it plain, not by speculation or overextension, but by the absence of a sufficient margin between the cost of production and the selling price.

Low prices made for the purpose of extending the field or of meeting competition, or, in some cases, made with an incomplete knowledge of the cost of production, have gradually cut the ground from under the companies once in stable condition. "Other concerns now solvent," it is stated, "can look at their books and see that, from the present trend, there is but one ending for them. That is insolvency and receivership—unless conditions change."

GREENHOUSE AND WORKROOM.

Will you kindly inform me how I can heat a greenhouse 18x40, ten feet high to the ridge and five feet high at the sides, with a workroom 10x10 at the north end? The workroom and the side walls of the greenhouse will be covered with tar paper. The temperature wanted will be 55 degrees in zero weather. The house is protected from severe winds. The boiler under consideration is a No. 10 Ideal, a cast-iron hot water boiler, the capacity of which is unknown to me. The greenhouse contains three raised benches, one on each side and a double one in the center. The location is southern Pennsylvania.

J. L. L.

So far as can be determined from the data furnished, there should be no difficulty in heating the house described. A 2½-inch flow pipe should be run to the farther end, about two feet below the ridge, and connected with ten 2-inch return pipes. Three of these should be

It is estimated there are 35,000,000 square feet of glass in use in Greenhouses, and a similar LOSS on this glass total would equal the enormous sum of $1,575,000.00.

How much of this loss do YOU contribute every year?

under each of the side benches and the other four under the middle bench.

I have no catalogue of the Ideal boiler at hand and do not recall the rating of the No. 10 size. To heat the house to 55 degrees, the boiler should have the capacity to handle 350 square feet of hot water radiation, and an Ideal heater with a grate eighteen to twenty inches in diameter should be ample for the purpose. If the flow pipe runs downhill and the expansion tank is attached at the highest point, no air valves will be required.

SMALL HOUSE FOR POT PLANTS.

I am building a greenhouse 25x28¾ and eleven feet high to the ridge. The greater part of one side of the house will be against a brick building, in which the boiler is located. There will be four benches, each 5x21, running across the house. The benches will be two feet from the walls on all sides. I want to grow potted plants, such as geraniums, fuchsias, etc. I shall use hot water for heating. Will you kindly tell me how this house should be piped to get the best results? The location is southeastern Michigan. G. E. D.

To act as the flow pipe, a 2½-inch main should be carried to the farther side of the house, to a point directly over the ends of the benches, where pipes should be taken off at right angles and run to the ends of the house. From these pipes "risers" should be dropped to supply coils under each of the four benches and on each of the walls. There should be three 2-inch pipes in each of the under-bench coils and two in each of the wall coils. Connect the pipes in each coil at the lower end, and join them with a common return of the same size as the main flow pipe. Unless the main flow and return can be given a fairly direct connection with the boiler, it would be well to have them of 3-inch pipe.

FORECASTS BY COAL MEN.

This week's reports of the coal trade still consist mostly of cheerful predictions, as they have done for several weeks, but the predictions have become more positive and definite. If the coal men have read the signs of the times correctly, the long expected improvement in the market is now so near in the future that the prices are already "trembling on the rise," like the famous drawbridge in Walter Scott's "Marmion." There seems to be general agreement in the belief that the business reawakening will begin not later than July 1. This opinion is repeated frequently throughout the coal men's reports, in so unhesitating a way as to indicate that they are pretty sure of their ground. "The outlook is for a considerable improvement in business after July 1," says one authority. "Everyone looks forward with confidence to good business after July 1," he says again.

The symptoms of coming revival in the coal trade are said to be of a general character and visible in many different lines of industry. Nearly all kinds of business seem to be approaching a turning point. The lowest level has been reached and must be followed by a rise, and the assurance of good crops will aid much in the boom. The railroads, however, are referred to now as a special factor in the case, partly on account of their intimate connection

KROESCHELL BOILERS—FUEL ECONOMY (honest and "true blue" boiler ratings, safety, quick heat, factory-to-user prices).

READ WHAT THE USERS SAY ABOUT KROESCHELL BOILERS

Cast Iron Boiler Cracked in Two Years

"We have a No. 4 Kroeschell Boiler. It takes care of 7000 sq. ft. of glass; it would take care of twice that amount.

I first had a new cast iron boiler which lasted two years, when it cracked to pieces. The second was a second-hand boiler.

I consider your boiler the best paying investment I ever made.

You can refer anyone to us."

Marysville Floral Co., Marysville, Ohio.

Cast Iron Cannot be Compared with Kroeschell

"We bought a No. 2 Boiler in 1904. It takes care of 5000 sq. ft. of glass, and we could add 2000 more. We are very well satisfied. We used a cast iron boiler before we had yours. It cannot be compared with the Kroeschell Boiler. Your boiler has certainly a great capacity for heating water."

Hall & Robinson, Montreal, Canada.

Kroeschell Better Than Cast Iron

"I bought a No. 6 Boiler in 1903. It has now 10,000 sq. ft. of glass, and we could add 3300 more. This is ahead of five or six cast iron boilers which I have used. I saved $50 per season on the coal bill."

M. C. Ward, Quincy, Mass.

"I bought a No. 4 Boiler in 1902. Has 7000 sq. ft. of glass; could add 2000 more. It is perfectly satisfactory. Would keep only Kroeschell Boiler. Would not have a cast iron boiler for a gift."

Geo. Engel, Xenia, Ohio.

Mr. Engel has increased his Plant and ordered another No. 4 Kroeschell.

Better Than Cast Iron

"We bought a No. 1 Boiler in 1902. It is very satisfactory. We had several cast iron boilers, but like yours much better."

E. Ferrand & Sons, Detroit, Mich.

Cost of Heating One-half Less Than With Cast Iron Boilers

"I bought a No. 3 Boiler in 1901. We had a corrugated cast iron fire box boiler and a sectional cast iron boiler before we bought yours in 1901. The cost of the heating with your boiler is one-half less than it was with my cast iron boilers. Your No. 8 Boiler, which we bought recently of you, is not being run to its capacity."

Wm. Geenen, Kimberly, Wis.

Has enlarged place and installed another No. 6 Kroeschell.

Kroeschell vs. Cast Iron

"I have one of your new 1910 model Kroeschell Boilers, and same has proven very satisfactory. We have no trouble to keep temperatures in the coldest weather. We fire once or twice during the day, and once at night, and have had the best satisfaction I have ever experienced in a boiler. Formerly I had two cast iron boilers; one cracked and I took both of these boilers out. My coal bill with the cast iron boilers ran from $195 to $207 per season during the past seven years. This year, with your boiler and soft coal, my coal bill was only $103, and I still have some coal left. Your boiler is the best and cheapest on the market, not alone for the price, but also in fuel saving. I am very glad that you are so well known in Buffalo, N. Y. I have never heard anything but praise, in which I join heartily. Wishing you every success, I remain. Max Buehler, Forks, N. Y."

with the whole commercial world. "The railways," it is said, "are just about to close their fiscal year. All expenditures now made will increase the cost of operating the roads for the fiscal year ending June 30. In order to keep expenditures down, railways are not buying anything which they do not need immediately. However, after July 1 the immediate necessity to influence the annual balance sheet will not be present and the railroads can buy with a little more freedom. It is expected that the railroads shortly after July 1 will begin a considerable movement to store coal, because they appreciate that, with the belated buying this year, the fall rush for coal will be almost unprecedented." It is also stated that the railroads have good hope of receiving, by July 1, the desired permission to increase their freight rates, and will then begin such an accelerated movement of freight as will give an impetus to all lines of business.

Now, though this article is sincerely meant to be a narration of facts and not a fable, yet, like a fable, it points a moral. And the moral, so plain that it does not need to be put in words, is pointed straight at the florist who has not yet filled his coal bins. Of course, the coal men's forecasts may not prove to be correct, but it seems clear even to the uninitiated that coal is not at all likely to be cheaper after July 1 than it is now.

One of the authorities already quoted from has this to say about the market for smokeless coals at Chicago and vicinity: "The smokeless coal market is in a most peculiar position. There is a steady supply of both first-class and off-grade smokeless coal for sale in this market at $1 per ton or even less. However, the retail dealers appreciate that this low-priced coal cannot take care of all of Chicago's demands throughout the year. Chicago retailers, therefore, are pinning their faith to the larger companies which are asking circular price of $1.25 for mine run. They are taking their regular quotas of coal on contract and, what is more to the point, are basing their prices on circular figures rather than cutting them down to the basis of price of the off-grade coal or the demurrage coal. This means that the Chicago market is reasonably strong, even though the volume of smokeless business is small."

The Market.

Trade has quieted down considerably since the last writing, as most of the spring bedding is done now. There are still a few stragglers coming in, and in some cases it is hard to fill their orders, as some lines are quite low now, and most of the buyers are glad to get what they can pick up. Geraniums have sold well again this season and are cleaned up in good shape. Salvias have also had a good run and there was an enormous quantity of them. This plant is a strong rival to the geranium, as almost everyone who planted it so plentifully here as the centennial flower still wants a good number along with other plants. The growers in general are well pleased with the spring business and they all have reason to be satisfied, for, as a rule, business in other lines here is exceedingly quiet and has been for the last few months.

The extremely hot weather has been hard on stock in general and it is surprising that stock is really as good as it is, as it has been as hot as in July and there has been little rain.

Carnations are getting small and off color, but there is still a good quantity disposed of. Roses are showing the effects of the warm weather and, as a rule, are quite small. Sweet peas have kept up well during the hot weather and they are still a good seller; nearly all are of the Spencer type, but while the flowers are good the stems are getting short. Valley has been in fair demand and at times has been scarcely plentiful enough to go around, as the bridal showers are much in demand at this writing. There is also a considerable amount of decorating being done for the June brides.

Various Notes.

With the close of the year of the Massachusetts Agricultural College the regular work in floriculture has ended. The department strongly advises the students to get practical experience, and so each summer a number of men go out into practical work. F. E. Allen is to work for W. N. Craig, at Faulkner Farms, Brookline; A. S. Thurston for A. H. Wingett, at Aileen Winden, Lenox, and W. L. Doran on the estate of J. P. Morgan, at Newport. A. E. Wilkins and E. S. Wright stay at the college to work for the floricultural department; W. H. Haskell also stays, to work in the market gardening department. Miss S. J. Strange, who graduates from the college, will teach school gardening and elementary horticulture during the coming year. W. H. Hatfield has charge of the school gardening work at Milton, Mass., for the summer. G. A. Reid, another senior, has secured a position as assistant manager on the estate of F. C. PLANTLIFE

PLANTLIFE has several advantages over liquid insecticides on the market. Containing refined tobacco dust it can be used to mix with the soil, acting as an excellent fertilizer, at the same time destroying worms and insects in the ground before they have a chance to reach the plant.

PLANTLIFE has been found very effective in ridding greenhouses of insects by dusting on plants. When dry, use for dusting about once a week.

Put up in bulk for greenhouse men; in packages for retail trade.

GLEN COVE, N. Y.

The monthly meeting of the Nassau County Horticultural Society was held June 10, at Pembroke hall, with President H. Gaut in the chair. Charles Parr and Henry Wenzel, both of Glen Cove, were elected as active members. Mrs. W. H. Porter, Glen Cove, was made an honorary member and two petitions for active membership were received.

Special prizes for the society's shows were received from the following: A. G. Hodenpyle, of Locust Valley, and Hitchings & Co., New York. John Scheppers & Co., New York, donated $50 toward a display of Darwin tulips for next spring.

The judges of the monthly exhibits were S. J. Trepess, J. Adler and W. Hutton and their awards were as follows: Twelve hybrid perpetual roses, one variety, F. Honeyman, first; twelve strawberries, Henry Jones, first; vase of twelve peonies, mixed, Henry Jones, first. Honorable mention was awarded to the following: H. Gaut, for three vases of sweet peas; H. Boettcher, for one vase of sweet peas, mixed; H. Boettcher, for vase of Aquilegia chrysantha; W. Gray, for bunch of asparagus. A certificate of culture was awarded to John Scheppers & Co. for a collection of peonies.

James Duthie, of Oyster Bay, read an interesting and instructive essay on "Dahlia Culture for Exhibition, Cutting for Housework and Garden Decoration," which was well received, as Mr. Duthie is a past master of the art of dahlia culture.

Exhibits for the July meeting, July 8, will be sweet peas, twenty-five sprays of white, pink and any other color.

STATE COLLEGE, PA.

The new Horticultural building was dedicated with appropriate ceremonies Wednesday, June 10. In a brief sketch, Dean R. L. Watts called attention to the importance of the various horticultural products of the state as reported in the 1910 census. The figures show that vegetables that year had a value of $10,013,920 and fruit $10,691,679. Flowers, plants and nursery products had a value of $4,344,450. On the basis of the total value of the horticultural industries of the state, $25,050,049, the investment in the Horticultural building at the college is thus seen to be less than one two-hundredth. C. J. Tyson, president of the Horticultural Society of Pennsylvania, discussed the development of horticulture at the college and pointed particularly to the wonderful growth made in the accession of students. The total enrollment of students in the school of agriculture during the last decade has increased fifteen times and that of students enrolled in the various courses of horticulture more than twenty times.

A pastel portrait of Gabriel Heister, a graduate and a former trustee of the institution and formerly president of the State Horticultural Society, was the gift of the Crab Apple Club, a student organization. Bruce W. Bell presented, in behalf of the landscape gardening department, a portrait of Frederick Law Olmsted, the greatest American landscape gardener. In a brief address the new head of the department, Professor M. G. Kains, sketched the "Potentialities of Horticulture in Pennsylvania." Professor F. A. Waugh, of the Massachusetts Agricultural College, delivered the address of the day, "The Arts of Peace."

and J. B. Pilkington. The Sweet Pea Society also had a well arranged booth, showing all the leading varieties of sweet peas. Henry Clemmens and Capt. George Pope had charge of the arrangements.

The rose exhibits were staged at the public library. Many specimen blooms were shown in the amateur class and prizes awarded. Testout, J. B. Clarke, Druschki and Ulrich Brunner were the leading varieties shown. Bishop Schoener, Brooks, Ore., introduced several new roses of merit, including J. A. Currey, which was christened by the queen of the festival. It is a cross between La France and Gruss an Teplitz, the color being red and the form that of La France. A. J. Clarke was one of the judges.

Various Notes.

S. H. Forshaw, Pendleton, Ore., has brought his son here for medical treatment. He is suffering from Bright's disease.

Fred Wiedemann has leased the range of Mrs. Eckenberger, near Milwaukee. He is one of the most successful carnation growers in this section. The new range will give him more glass with which to take care of his growing business. He will give up his present place. Mr. Wiedemann also has a gold placer claim in California which has given good results and which occupies some of his time.

F. H. Rowe, of L. W. McCoy's, Seattle, Wash., was a visitor this week. W. H. Rose, representing the Sefton Mfg. Co., Chicago, called on the florists last week. J. Gill, Berkeley, Cal., is in town on a business trip. E. R. C.

DAVENPORT, IA.

The Tri-City Florists' Club met recently in regular session at the residence of R. M. C. Rohlfs, proprietor of the Alta Vista Nurseries, enjoying a trip of inspection over the grounds. Besides transacting the regular business of the club, arrangements were made for the annual picnic, to be held at the summer residence of William Knees, on Rock river, Thursday, July 8. Lunch and refreshments were served on the lawn and a general good time was enjoyed by all. A vote of thanks was given Mr. and Mrs. Rohlfs for their hospitality. W. G.

Scotch Soot

Where there is a house that is just full of buds almost ready to show color, nothing will turn better color into the flowers than a little soot, that can be scattered over the benches before watering. The amount applied should not be excessive, as the soot is very strong and may damage some of the foliage somewhat. Apply just enough to blacken the surface of the soil in the benches and let it go at that. Better a little oftener than too much all at once.

We offer the genuine in original cwt. sacks, at $2.75 per 112 lbs.; $12.50 per 560 lbs.

S. Jacobs & Sons

READING, PA.

The monthly meeting of the Reading Retail Florists' Association was held in the new quarters in the Moore building, with a large attendance. A fall mum show was decided on and a special meeting has been called for June 18 to lay plans and appoint committees. S. M. Baer, of Kutztown, was elected to membership and several propositions were received. The first picnic and outing of the association will be held July 10. The entertainment committee promises some novel features for the day.

Business, both in plants and cut flowers, continues good, the plantsmen being quite busy since Memorial day. June weddings in goodly numbers have kept the stores going.

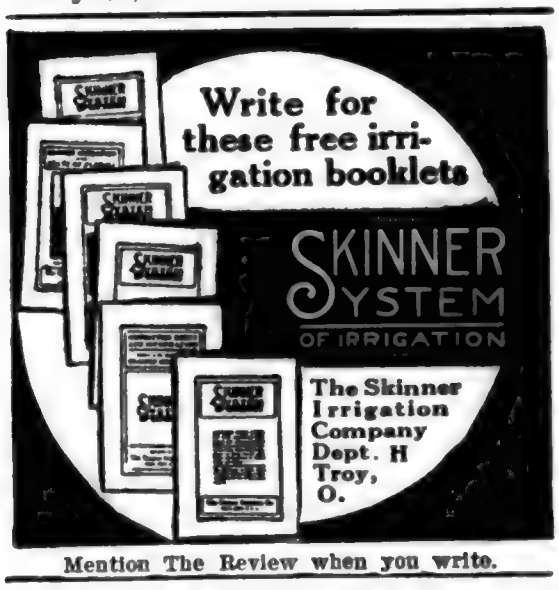
Wm. K. Hoskins has finished planting the four large reservoir parks. This was one of the large city contracts.

J. C. Bauder has placed a new Ford car in the street. Business at his store has been quite brisk, many large funeral orders keeping the force working overtime.

Heck Bros., having been cleaned out of stock, have started planting mums.

Frank Shearer and Lee Arnold, the well known Wyimissing florists, report having done satisfactory business this spring. Paul Blachman, the popular Ninth street florist, reports similar conditions at his store.

Wm. Kern, of Hyde Park, has disposed of all bedding plants and housing mums has been started.



Fred Frank reports carnations in almost midwinter condition. His Spencer sweet peas are of the best and he is able to pick thousands of blooms daily.

H. J. Huesman & Son, having had a complete clean-out of all bedding plants, have started mum planting. Funeral work continues brisk at this establishment.

John H. Giles has been kept busy with large wedding decorations and plenty of funeral work.

Recent visitors included Peter Brown, of Lancaster, and Wm. Turner, of Chicago. H. C. H.

Moline, Ill.—The damages done to the greenhouses of Julius Staack & Sons in the storm of June 4 will amount to nearly $8,000.

THE MODERN FLOWER STORE

The appearance of his store is the mark by which the enterprising and progressive spirit of the Retail Florist is measured

PROGRESS is the watchword of the florists' trade, and in nothing is this more evident than in the furnishings and equipment of its retail stores. In no respect does the florist take second place in the matter of store appointments and decoration. Improvements find their way into his store as quickly as into the swellest specialty shop in any other line, and frequently you find the florist setting the pace for all the merchants of his town.

This is most obvious in our large cities, where new ideas are soonest heard of and the extent of the business affords the greatest expenditure for innovations. But the retailers in the smaller cities and in country towns cannot be called behind the times, for they usually lead the storekeepers of their locality. The modern flower store is a feature in Oskaloosa, Ia., with its population of 10,000, as well as in New York or Chicago.

The Store Front.

The first evidence of the progressive and up-to-date storekeeper that presents itself to the casual passer-by is the store front. If it is at night, a big, but well proportioned and artistic electric sign is probably the first thing to catch his eye. In the daytime the attraction of big display windows, effectively decorated, draws his eyes and, not improbably, his feet toward the florist's store. Quiet colors, in keeping with the general tone of the place, add to the store's appearance from the street.

Should he enter the modern flower store, this passer-by will find no step, either up or down, to slow his footsteps. A door that yields readily to his touch admits him to the retailer's shop before he is given any opportunity to hesitate from his first impulse.

The Interior.

The grocer, the butcher and the hardware man may plan their store interiors for personal convenience, but the florist arranges his for effect—on the customers. To this end a general tone predominates, quiet in color and simple in effect. For this, floor, walls, ceiling and fixtures are all given thought and consideration beforehand.

Wooden floors are practically obsolete in the flower shop; linoleum is still used for necessity, but up-to-date floors are wanted for the modern store. Tile, mosaic and terrazzo are becoming common, and composition floors, laid either in tile or monolithic form, are coming into use. By means of these last, colors can be used in the floor and made to set off the flowers, as well as the furnishings of the place. Then, too, their good qualities—durability, cleanliness, comfort underfoot, etc., recommend them to enterprising store owners.

Walls and Ceiling.

More and more are mirrors of plate-glass being used to line the lower walls of flower stores. The appearance of spaciousness thus given seems a desirable feature to their owners. But there are many stores without them, and in these, the use of quiet, prevailing colors gives an equally good result. The furniture and fixtures are of one color and match the ornamental beams of the ceiling, where they are a part of the architecture. The portions of the walls and ceiling not covered by these are all of one color, invariably lighter than that used for the lower parts.

The use of indirect lighting has made it necessary to have the ceiling almost a pure white, at least a cream. It is rarely, however, that the sunlight is so bright in a florist's store that so light a tint will be found objectionable. The uniform and subdued illumination given by this method of lighting is, on the other hand, such an advantage in the display of stock and adds so much to the appearance of the room that its use must become more and more general. Other improvements in lighting and light fixtures also find a ready appeal to the progressive retailer.

Fixtures.

Every storeman has his own ideas on the arrangement and selection of the fixtures in the modern flower store, and each has his own good reasons to back those ideas. There are, however, certain general tendencies that are growing year by year. One that began some time ago is the elimination of the counter. Yet the counter still clings in some stores and there are salesmen who would feel lost without something between them and their customers. The counter may serve well as a protection from an angry customer, but it is a barrier just as well when the customer is not angry, perhaps before he is a customer. In these latter stages it would be better to do away with anything that serves to hold the patron and salesman aloof, and, so far as angry customers are concerned, these are presumably so few in the modern flower store as to be negligible.

In the place of counters, tables, few and far between, will serve. Wall cases and refrigerators are better than display counters to exhibit wares and stock. Chairs for customers to sit on are better than counters for them to lean upon, and take up less room, and the roomier the flower store the better. All the fixtures should match

New Store of the Kemble Floral Co., Oskaloosa, Iowa.

The smaller furniture may be of a different color and design, though not enough so to clash. Writing desks, settees, etc., are being placed in many flower stores for the personal convenience of customers and have brought no reasons for regret. Personal convenience adds to customers' satisfaction and that is the end of the storekeeper's striving.

Corsage of Pansies.

One Modern Flower Store.

The illustration shows the store of a progressive retailer in a small town, the new store of the Kemble Floral Co., at Oskaloosa, Ia., which was opened June 4. The store proper is 23x50 and in the rear is a workroom 20x50, while overhead is a conservatory 20x50. The decorations are in brown, and the fixtures and furniture a mission green. The refrigerators, counters and wall cases were built to order by Buchbinder Bros., of Chicago.

For a town of 10,000, the store is quite up-to-date. One of its progressive points is a corner where a writing desk, chairs, etc., for customers make the store a convenience as well as a place of business.

CORSAGES FOR ALL.

"Sweet peas are so common," said the society lady, as she considered the question of a simple corsage to wear to her club that afternoon; "but orchids are so expensive," she added under her breath, with the "so" in italics. She was a happy lady when she wore the fine looking corsage of pansies her florist made up for her, and received the compliments of her friends at the club that afternoon on the "sweet" arrangement. And her husband had no reason to grumble when he saw the bill. A pansy corsage, especially when made up of fine flowers two and three inches across, is an extremely fine decoration for the society lady, when it is made by a florist who takes pains. Just how fine one may be can be seen from that shown in the illustration on this page. This particular one was finished with shaded green ribbon and a violet cord.

But if, for perhaps a more important occasion, the lady had wanted something really fine, or her husband had "loosened up" to give her a token of his regard, the florist might have sent something of orchids like the corsage shown on this page. Then, indeed, she would have been a happy lady to have such an excellent florist. The corsage shown herewith has in it—in addition to the orchids—valley and adiantum, and is finished with tasseled ribbon on the ends of which are embroidered lilies of the valley.

Both of the accompanying illustrations show work of the class in floral arrangement at the University of Illinois, displayed at its recent exhibit at Urbana.

SUNDAY CLOSING.

A Personal Matter.

For years and years The Review has told its readers that the retail end of the flower business might well shut up shop one day in seven. Already much progress has been made in the direction of Sunday closing and this year there is promise of the custom becoming almost general, as a wave of interest in the proposition is sweeping through other lines of business and helping to convince florists.

Not all agree, but Sunday closing really is a personal matter. Some florists are so located that Sunday is the best day in the week for them. Others, like most of the downtown retailers in large cities, are so situated that Sunday sales never have amounted to enough to pay the boss' carfare to the shop. There are all degrees between. In almost every large city there are stores that never open on Sunday unless, perhaps, to deliver some important funeral work, others that open for part of the day and still others that are open all day. It is a matter of locality and sometimes the localities are not far apart.

Hours Are One's Own Making.

If a florist can do more business on Sunday than he can on some other day of the week the unorthodox idea would be to go ahead and do it; he can do as the grocers do in many towns and shut up shop Thursday afternoon because it is inconvenient to do so on Saturday.

But with the average man in any line the hours of business largely are a matter of his own making—he can build up a business on the plan of the all-night restaurant or he can work it up on the basis of reasonable business hours. It is the same with Sunday. One can educate his trade to expect him to be on the job at every unseemly hour or he can educate the neighbors to buy their flowers at such hours as the seller may set. It's all a matter of habit. It may take a little more time to build up a sixty-nine hours per week business than it does one that consumes eighty-nine to ninety-eight hours per week of somebody's life, but when built a short-hours business is infinitely better worth while.

Best Methods Win Trade.

And there is this further fact that is worth thinking about: Business is not lost by the man who keeps decent week-day hours and closes Sunday. The man with strength enough to lead in this direction is almost sure also to do other things better than the competitor who thinks it necessary to keep open long hours seven days a week. There may be the occasional loss of the sale of a 50-cent bouquet, but when any considerable purchase is to be made the people will find a way to get to the better man.

Florists, however, are not the only ones who have thought it necessary to be open Sunday. In many towns the clothiers do it, in some the grocers open for half a day, and there are a few fair-sized cities in which the retail section of the business people scarcely know one day from another. It is the general movement toward shorter hours and six-day weeks, in some states now required by law, that is arousing the retailing florists to direct their thoughts in the same direction. Everybody has recognized the desirability of shorter hours—it has been only the fear of losing business that has held so many back.

Perhaps it will interest some readers to know that The Review has for several years found it possible to let its entire force of employees have a Saturday half holiday winter and summer alike, in spite of what others in the same line think necessary to require of their help. If anything has been lost by it, it has not been apparent.

HINTS FOR RETAILERS.

If you patronize one of the high class specialty stores in your town you usually will find that every little detail is looked after, from the condition of the salesman's shoes and the modulation of his voice clear through to the neatness and accuracy of the bill that follows delivery of the thoroughly satisfactory merchandise. The making of a flower store depends not on one detail only, but on all.

Corsage of Orchids and Valley.

It is worth while noting that the memory of price quickly passes, while the recollection of quality is enduring. A fair price can be charged for quality, where inferior flowers will not pass, even if cheap.

A SOLDIER'S WREATH.

For the funeral of Corporal Daniel A. Haggerty, of Cambridge, Mass., the first American soldier killed at Vera Cruz, the Boston Cut Flower Co., of Boston, Mass., made the wreath shown in the accompanying illustration. The flowers used were Hadley roses and Double Pink Killarneys, the latter on the inside, and double blue cornflowers. The bow of tricolored ribbon on the right side served as a token of his calling.

STORE TREBLED BUSINESS.

Two years ago the McIntyre Floral Co., of Nashville, Tenn., then known as McIntyre Bros., opened a store, which in arrangement and design was the most up-to-date in that part of the country. Since the opening the company's business has rapidly increased, and the records show that in the last eighteen months it has grown to three times its previous size.

This is the more remarkable because the concern is by no means a young one. In 1862 Daniel McIntyre, Sr., who had received his training as a gardener and florist in Edinburgh, Scotland, and then came to America to apply it, established a business in Nashville, which included market gardening and the growing of flowers and ornamental shrubbery. He was a master hand with hardy ornamentals and landscape work, and so never built up so large a cut flower business as others who gave most of their efforts to that line. Mr. McIntyre served in the confederate army and while imprisoned in Nashville at one time was lamed by an accident.

Upon his death in 1913 his four sons succeeded him. All were trained in the business and each took charge of a separate department. Daniel is foreman at the old range, where William also has headquarters. Thomas has charge of the range built two years ago, where most of the cut flowers are grown. The older establishment is devoted largely to shrubbery and bedding plants. Hugh has charge of the store. The combination of these four makes the business a strong one.

The production of new, improved varieties of plants is a work of much interest to the members of this concern. This season they introduced the new geranium, Nashville, and a new vinca at their range is the best variegated-leaved bedding plant I have seen for a long time. F. B.

LARGE LOSSES FROM HAIL.

Even if there were no calendar hanging on the wall, the editor of The Review could tell the time of year from his daily mail. Spring is here, and hail storms are inflicting their annual losses upon greenhouse owners in all parts of the country. Each day brings the record of some grower's loss and a photograph showing the destruction wrought by the storm. Were room given to each one of these photographs, the readers of The Review would see but little else as illustrations at this season, and it is for this reason only that each one is reluctantly put aside.

Wreath of Hadley and Killarney Roses and Cornflowers.

Frans O. Santheson, manager of the Roswell Floral Co., at Roswell, N. M., lost about one-fourth of his glass in the hail storm of May 26. The loss, however, is covered by insurance in the Florists' Hail Association.

In the terrific storm that struck Milwaukee and vicinity May 31, F. P. Dilger, of 418 Pryor avenue, Milwaukee, was one of those who suffered most. Between 7,000 and 8,000 lights in his houses were broken and his outside stock was badly injured.

The fact that the houses in the range of Hamilton & Plummer, at Kewanee, Ill., run east and west made the loss of this firm much larger than that of those whose houses run north and south. The storm came from the east and as it swept over the house broke the glass on both sides almost completely.

The Florists' Hail Association meets losses promptly. It is a purely mutual organization of greenhouse owners, run at nominal cost, and every florist not in position to stand a loss without inconvenience should be a member. The secretary is John G. Esler, Saddle River, N. J.

THE SMITH MEMORIAL.

A Call for Funds.

As the committee appointed at the Chicago convention, with regard to the erection of a suitable memorial to the late William Robertson Smith in the national capital, has been continuously at work since appointment and has decided that the monument should take a form useful as well as ornamental, in the shape of a memorial building to the father of our charter, the committee therefore asks that you now send in your subscriptions, addressed to William F. Gude, chairman, 1214 F street, N. W., Washington, D. C., so that the memorial may take tangible form at the earliest possible date.

The committee trusts that your contribution will be a liberal one for this worthy cause, in order that the florists of the United States may show to the world their appreciation of a man who did so much to promote and uplift our favorite calling.

Wm. F. Gude, Chairman,
Richard Vincent, Jr.,
Harry Papworth,
J. A. Valentine,
John K. M. L. Farquhar.

A Note From Mr. Gude.

In sending the above Mr. Gude writes in part: "The scheme is now definitely settled to have something practicable and useful erected to Mr. Smith, rather than a stone monument, which Mr. Smith himself never cared for. The committee is extremely desirous of obtaining subscriptions. The chairman of the committee will be pleased to receive them, no matter how small, and will give proper receipt for them and place the money in bank at four per cent interest until such time that the memorial can be erected or contract awarded. The committee has hopes of receiving some large subscriptions, but feels that the florists of the United States should show their interest first, before the large contributions are called for."

COURONNE D'OR NOT PINK.

One of the curiosities of the recent exhibition of the American Peony Society that attracted attention when reported in The Review for June 18 was the fact that a white variety, Couronne d'Or, was awarded first prize in a class for light pink. It appears to have been purely a slip on the part of the judges, since William A. Peterson, the owner of the vase of flowers, explains the incident as follows:

"The vase of Couronne d'Or was intended to be with the whites. Because of the cramped space and the impossibility of keeping visitors from walking between the vases, it is probable that someone knocked the entry number off and got them mixed."

Mr. Peterson probably was more surprised than anyone else that a vase of a white variety should take first prize in a class for which he had not entered it, but it was a matter of no consequence to him, as he secured all three premiums in one of the classes concerned and first and second in the other. This is the showing as reported:

Fifty blooms, white, double, one variety—Peterson Nursery, first, on Avalanche; Peterson Nursery, second, on Baroness Schroeder; Vaughan's Seed Store, third, on M. Dupont.

Fifty blooms, light pink or pink and cream, double, one variety—Peterson Nursery, first, on Couronne d'Or; Peterson Nursery, second, on Albert Crousse; Peterson Nursery, third, on Eugenie Verdier.

It should be remembered that the Peony Society permits an exhibitor to make an unlimited number of entries in any class.

BOSTON PEONY SHOW.

The annual peony exhibition of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society June 20 and 21 came just a week too late, but there was a good display nevertheless, principally of late varieties, which nearly filled the main exhibition hall. For twenty named varieties there was a good competition. A. H. Fewkes took first prize, followed by James McKissock and T. C. Thurlow's Sons Co. For ten varieties, three blooms of each, T. C. Thurlow's Sons Co. led; A. W. Preston, J. L. Smith, gardener, being second, and James McKissock third. A. H. Fewkes had the finest specimen bloom, James McKissock being second.

T. C. Thurlow's Sons Co. had the only collection of twelve singles, showing a charming lot. The same exhibitor also was first for twelve Japanese singles. For six varieties double, C. S. Minot, James McKissock and T. C. Thurlow's Sons Co. won in the order named. James McKissock had the best six rose pink varieties, and T. C. Thurlow's Sons Co. the finest salmon pink, also crimson.

For twenty-five white or blush, the prizes went to H. F. Chase, A. H. Fewkes and Martin Sullivan, gardener to William Whitman. T. C. Thurlow's Sons Co. took first and second for twenty-five pink or rose, third going to James McKissock. T. C. Thurlow's Sons Co. also won for twenty-five red or crimson, Wilfred Wheeler being second.

For twelve named sorts by non-commercial growers, first went to C. S. Minot, second to Martin Sullivan and third to J. L. Smith. Mr. Sullivan was first for twelve pink and twelve white, also being first and second for twelve red or crimson.

Apart from the competitive classes there were many excellent exhibits. The Wellesley Nurseries had a fine display of named peonies. There were also large displays from T. C. Thurlow's Sons Co., J. K. Alexander, Martin Sullivan, J. L. Smith and A. H. Fewkes. Farquhar & Co. received a silver medal for an imposing display of peonies, and C. S. Minot a similar reward for Peony Mrs. C. S. Minot, also honorable mention for Peony R. T. Jackson.

Martin Sullivan had a collection of hybrid perpetual roses and Kalmia latifolia, the Lowthorpe School of Horticulture had sweet williams, Eastern Nurseries a fine collection of herbaceous plants, Old Town Nurseries a splendid lot of herbaceous plants, Mrs. E. M. Gill and Mrs. M. W. Chadbourne general displays. The Mount Desert Nurseries received a silver medal for a collection of herbaceous plants, among which eremuri loomed up prominently.

Jackson Dawson received honorable mention for Baby Dawson rose, also for a collection of seedling roses. Wheeler & Co. showed three fine specimens of Dendrobium formosum, receiving a certificate of merit. W. N. C.

THE WEALTH AND THE WASTE.

When B. H. Farr, president of the American Peony Society, had reached Rochester on his way east after the Chicago meeting he found time to dictate to a stenographer the substance of the extemporaneous address delivered at the Art Institute business session and summarized in The Review for June 11. One thought is commended specially to the growers of peony blooms for market, and to the retail dealers. It is as follows:

"It is unfortunate that as a cut flower, commercially, the peony is in most localities considered only as a Memorial day proposition. Millions of them are sold at high prices before, and millions almost wasted after, that day. No flower keeps better when properly handled, and no flower makes so fine a show for the cost as the peony for all decorative effects, and there seems to be no good reason why it should not be eagerly sought for and used for all purposes during its season, from the earliest to the latest.

"It seems to be largely up to the retail dealer to push the peony more, and to educate the public and stimulate the use of the peony by making more of an effort to handle a better class of stock in better shape."

NEED FOR NEW VARIETIES?

Most of the men in the trade will agree that there are far too many varieties of peonies, or too many names of varieties so near alike that the average person can not tell one from another; that instead of lists containing 500 sorts it would be far better if about 480 could be wiped out altogether, but Prof. A. P. Saunders, secretary of the American Peony Society, said in his report at the Chicago meeting:

"I wish that in America we might have a larger and more ardent band of raisers of new sorts. There is still much to be done. Lemoine and Dessert, to mention no others, are at work all the time, and give us wonderful new varieties once in a while; but there is need of a hundred such enthusiasts. I wish we might have seedling peonies raised here as they raise seedling narcissi in England, where amateur and professional raisers have their sensational novelties ready for the spring shows every year. Think what Richardson produced—one man working on a tiny plot of ground!

"Why should we not do at least much better than we are doing? This society might, I believe, do much to encourage the raising of new sorts. I should like to see a good, substantial prize offered every year for the best new variety, a prize large enough to be worth some pains; say $50 at the least; not with the idea that we should have to pay it out every year, but under the intention that it should be given only for the occasional really good things; to be awarded, let us say, only to such varieties as the nomenclature committee would wish to put into their list of best sorts. Few American kinds that I know of could get in on such a requirement, but such recognition as that would mean the reputation of the variety ready made.

"I believe we might foster in that way this infant industry and raise it up to a stage of importance in the horticultural community. The tradition of Richardson is bearing fruit in the neighborhood of Boston, where the Massachusetts Horticultural Society from time to time puts its stamp of approval on a new sort. But we cannot all get to the Boston shows, nor would the dates fall right for many of us if we could. Our own shows, moving year after year, north, south, east and west, offer an opportunity to almost everyone once in a while to bring out what he has.

"Think of the added interest in these exhibitions, if we could count on finding at each of them even a couple of dozen new sorts, any one of which might be a real acquisition.

"We have, I know, in the past suffered from an overproduction of new kinds, or rather from an overnaming of new kinds. And our nomenclature

SYSTEM FOR SELLERS.

Permit me to commend a paragraph noted in a recent issue of The Review; it is so much to the point that perhaps you will have space to reprint it here:

"It will pay any florist doing a wholesale mail order business to adopt a thorough system and follow it religiously. Every order should be acknowledged with a post card stating when the stock will be shipped. If it can not be shipped on the day specified a card should give notice of the delay and a new shipping date. The day the shipment goes out a notice should be mailed stating route and date of the merchandise. Such a system, used with stock that unquestionably is worth the money, will build a list of satisfied customers that will make advertising doubly profitable."

I wish the people I deal with would take heed. April 30 I sent an order to a seed house for $1.50 worth of seed; no answer to June 15. May 20 I ordered $3 worth of snapdragon plants from a party who advertised to ship in twenty-four hours; nothing came of it yet. May 30 I ordered vincas, amount $5; nothing happened. In each case cash was sent with order; no acknowledgment; no answer to requests for information. Probably the stock will show up sometime, but I am sure these houses would not like to have their names mentioned in connection with such a system of handling orders.

FROM LONDON TOWN.

Chancing to take up a copy of the Pall Mall Gazette on the morning of my last day in London, I came upon a note that I am sure will be of interest to readers of The Review. This is the way it begins:

"The whole conception of the growth of plants may have to be altered as the result of some important experiments that have been made at King's College, London, and since submitted to successful tests at Kew and Chelsea. 'Something almost uncanny,' to quote a phrase used by Prof. W. B. Bottomley in describing these results to the Royal Botanic Society, seems to have been at work in producing them. Fuchsias, for example, have increased, not only in foliage, but also in flower; the colors of coleus have been greatly intensified; in fact, it does not seem to matter what kind of plant is treated, but all benefit enormously—roughly speaking, their size and splendor are doubled—by adding to the soil a little bacterized peat—peat converted into soluble humus—or even a little solution extracted from it."

This is written on the eve of sailing for home after a business tour of Europe. While we have seen some really good flower stores, those in the United States excel them, except those in Paris, where the artistic arrangements of plants and flowers simply are gorgeous. Daring and striking combinations of colors are used. Few of the European flower shops have anything in the way of up-to-date delivery service, wagon or automobile. I have seen large funeral designs fastened to the front and back of trolley cars for transportation to the place of delivery.

Mrs. Eschner and I have had an enjoyable trip through Italy, Hungary, Austria, Germany, Belgium, France and England, but probably will be home again before this letter reaches The Review, as we sail tomorrow on the Vaterland.

VARIETIES OF AMPELOPSIS.

Is there more than one kind of ampelopsis? Are the leaves of some varieties more elongated than others? A patron has found it impossible to get it to cling to the wall above the foundation. The brick was painted several years ago. The plants are strong, but the little feelers dry up. In another place the vines have a few leaves where seed pods had formed the year before, but the plant does not grow out nicely. Why do some runners die out? Can a disease attack them, causing part of them to die?

D. B.

There are a number of varieties and forms of ampelopsis. By far the most popular is A. Veitchii, commonly called Boston or Japanese ivy. Of this there is a form named purpurea, with darker purple foliage. Bricks and woodwork, continuously painted, form too smooth a surface for the roots to cling to readily. You could assist the shoots by using wire staples here and there. This ampelopsis has a faculty of dying out in spots, especially where the roots are not well nourished. I do not know of any cure for this, but where the plants are in good soil and have sufficient moisture there is usually little trouble of this kind.

Other varieties of ampelopsis are heterophylla, with three to five-lobed leaves, suitable for covering low walls and rocks; quinquefolia, the common Virginia creeper, of which the forms Engelmanni and muralis are distinct, and A. Lowii. The last named is of comparatively recent introduction; it clings closely to even the smoothest surface, and colors up beautifully in the fall.

POINSETTIAS IN SUMMER.

How should poinsettias be grown during the summer, in full sun or partly shaded? Should they be kept wet, or on the dry side?

M. L. N. B.

Poinsettias, once they are rooted and established in the pots, should have the fullest sunshine all the time. Like other plants, they must not be kept either extremely wet or extremely dry. Poinsettias will soon lose their foliage unless carefully watered; that is, they require intelligent watering, like any other plants—neither too much nor too little.

THE GLADIOLUS

A GROWER'S NOTES.

[A paper by Ira H. Landis, of Paradise, Pa., read at the meeting of the Lancaster County Florists' Club, at Lancaster, Pa., June 18.]

The gladiolus is becoming more deservedly popular each year, with its beautiful flowers of such wonderful lasting qualities, which place it above many other cut flowers. By merely trimming a small portion of the stem away each day the same bouquet will last over a week. It may be had during a long blooming season by different plantings at intervals of two weeks from the time the frost is out of the ground until July 1, and you may enjoy their beauty for ten or twelve weeks.

This flower succeeds everywhere. The gladiolus responds so quickly to good treatment and requires so little effort that there can be no excuse for not producing good flowers. According to the varieties, the bulbs will produce flowers in from sixty-five to ninety days.

Well-rotted stable manure is one of the best fertilizers and should be spread over the land in the fall and plowed under in the following spring. Plant them from three to four inches deep, the larger bulbs the latter depth. The secret of growing good flowers is thorough cultivation. In nearly all parts of the country artificial watering is unnecessary, provided a dust mulch is kept on the surface to conserve the moisture. Stir the surface as soon as fit after each rain and give frequent cultivation. A sunny situation, not too close to buildings, is best.

In cutting gladioli the greatest satisfaction is obtained by cutting the spike when the first bud opens and allowing the flower to develop indoors. Every bud will then open and more perfect coloring will develop than would be possible if they were left in the sun. Cutting the spike when the first bud opens is also a benefit to the bulb, as the strength of the foliage is required by the bulb to develop it for the next year's growth. For this reason, always allow two or more leaves to remain.

About the latter part of September, or after the first frosts appear, the bulbs should be taken out of the ground and allowed to dry several hours in the sun. However, the more drying or curing there is done, the greater the loss of vitality, and only enough drying should be practiced to free the bulb of surplus moisture contained in the skin or husk, so that there will be no tendency to mold. Store at 32 to 40 degrees.

THE HARTFORD ROSE GARDEN.

June 19 the representatives of the American Rose Society visited officially the rose test garden at Elizabeth park, Hartford, Conn., to take up and examine the forty-four specimen plants that were put out at the formation of the garden. The judges for the occasion were: John F. Huss, Hartford, Conn.; S. S. Pennock, Philadelphia, Pa., and W. F. Gude, Washington, D. C.

The recommendation made by the judges in regard to the rose which seemed to attract the most attention is as follows: "That the award of the silver medal be made to John Cook, of Baltimore, Md., for the rose Radiance, in recognition of its superior merits as a bedding rose."

Among those present at the dinner were: Superintendent of Parks George W. Parker, Hartford, Conn.; Wallace R. Pierson, president of the American Rose Society; Robert Pyle, S. S. Pennock; Prof. A. C. Beal, of Cornell University; Leonard Barron, J. Harrison Dick, Alex. Montgomery, Alex. Montgomery, Jr., J. H. MacFarlane, Edw. Norburg, A. N. Pierson, A. Gude, W. F. Gude, George Johannes, R. T. Beers, John F. Huss, Alex. Cummings, Jr., Louis J. Reuter, Benjamin Hammond and Messrs. Green, Anderson, Clark, Rigby and Morgan.

At the dinner an account of the Washington rose garden, at Arlington, was given by W. F. Gude, who complimented Messrs. Cummings, Pyle and Mulford for the work they had done in bringing about this matter. He stated that two acres had been laid out for the work along the national highway that is to run from Quebec to Florida and that there were 350 varieties of roses already there.

Professor Beal, speaking for Ithaca, said that much interest had been shown, not only by growers of plants who had furnished them, so that the varieties exceed 300, but also by a large number of local amateur societies; that at Cornell there were some hundreds of students, all of whom became more or less interested in these test gardens.

The executive committee of the American Rose Society also met and formally awarded the Hubbard gold medal to M. H. Walsh, Woods Hole, Mass., for the rose Excelsa. The medals both for Mr. Walsh and Mr. Cook will be presented at the S. A. F. convention in Boston, in August.

The day that was spent at Hartford was damp and cloudy, preventing the taking of any pictures. The general lay-out of the rose garden, aside from the test garden in Elizabeth park, is certainly beautiful, and something that the city of Hartford can well feel proud of.

ROSES AT MINNEAPOLIS.

A short report on the condition of our Lyndale park rose garden at Minneapolis June 15 may be of interest. We have had splendid growing weather all spring, but just now have had a little too much rain and not enough sunshine. Nevertheless, our plants are still free from mildew and in perfect health. They will be at their best June 21.

We have only two exhibits in our A. R. S. test garden, namely, the two climbers, Dazzling Red and Bridal Wreath, by W. A. Manda, and the new H. R. rose, Defiance, by C. Kress. They are all doing well. The climbers are in bloom and Defiance shows promising buds.

The following were in full bloom in the garden and were quite satisfactory:

BENCH-GROWN ROSE PLANTS.

How should bench-grown rose plants be treated after being lifted from the benches, to make nice, bushy pot plants for next spring's sales, in this Pennsylvania climate? The varieties are: Mrs. Aaron Ward, all the Killarneys, Mrs. Morgan, Jonkheer J. L. Mock, My Maryland and Radiance. H. C. K.

Trim the plants to a height of about twelve inches, pot them in 5-inch or 6-inch pots, according to size of plants, and plunge in a frame in the ground to the tops of the pots. After they have started to make growth, give the pots a covering of some well decayed, short manure, preferably old hotbed manure, to keep the soil moist and to prevent the sun from beating down on the soil. In the winter the plants can be covered where they are, either with glass or boards, to prevent them from freezing too hard. In spring they can be taken into the greenhouse, where they should make a nice growth and make good, salable plants in about eight or ten weeks, according to the temperature kept in the houses. W. J. ASTER GROWERS' TROUBLES

DISEASES INNUMERABLE.

[Extracts from a paper by Chas. B. Weaver, of Ronks, Pa., read before the Lancaster County Florists' Club, June 18.]

What the grower of asters in this section generally strives for is early flowers, early enough to reach the market in advance of those grown in more northern and cooler sections, where climatic conditions are to some extent more favorable.

More of Queen of the Market are grown here than of the later strains; this variety produces long stems and fair sized flowers early, if seed is sown early under glass. I have tried sowing seed of this variety quite late, but with not so good results, as the stems do not get length enough, owing to the shorter period of growth.

One serious drawback with this variety is its tendency to stem-rot; in fact, I venture to say that where stem-rot has once shown itself among Queen of the Market asters, you will never be free from it thereafter. This statement may be too sweeping, but let me relate my own experience. Eight years ago we planted this variety in a well prepared piece of ground, gave the growing plants the best of attention and obtained a fair crop. Possibly ten per cent of the plants showed signs of stem-rot, but this fact did not alarm us to a great extent, as I had a fair amount of land and could plant in new ground for a number of years. However, last summer, seven years later, we prepared this ground again for growing asters, plowed the preceding fall, fertilized it abundantly and limed it early in the spring, and immediately before planting time harrowed in a quantity of high-grade fertilizer.

Appearance of Disease.

The plants were set out early, started growth at once and grew well for four or five weeks. Then the disease began to appear. Let me explain that the extent of my patch eight years ago was about one-third the size of last summer's patch, but on that one-third the disease made its first appearance and on that particular part not five per cent of the plants lived to maturity and the flowers from these few plants were scarcely of a marketable quality.

It is my opinion after this experience that in preparing this piece of ground for planting the harrow distributed this infectious disease throughout the entire patch, and while the one-third mentioned was practically a total failure the other two-thirds was only infected so as to cause a loss of forty to fifty per cent of the crop. It is a positive fact that where you have this disease on high ground, lower ground will soon be infected by overflowing water.

While this disease is particularly disastrous among Queen of the Market, I am not sure that all other varieties will prove immune; in fact, I have noticed it to a limited extent in Early Paris White and Early Wonder. The later varieties seem to have a stronger growth and are more able to resist this disease, for which, up to this writing, I know of no remedy.

Yellows.

Yellows is another disease of which little seems to be known and is easily recognized in its earlier stages by a branch here and there showing a light green or yellowish cast. It spreads from plant to plant as conditions seem to favor. I have experimented along different lines with this disease and have practiced pulling out every plant which showed the slightest sign of it, but finally concluded that it was labor in vain and discontinued it. I have also sprayed with different sulphur solutions, but could never be positive of any beneficial results. We now simply let it run its course, during which time anywhere from five to as high as twenty-five per cent of the plants are a total failure. This disease accounts for the fact that after we are through cutting for the season, the patch generally has the appearance of being only half picked over; in fact, I have had persons not acquainted with aster growing and its troubles ask me why I let so many flowers go to waste. This disease, unlike stem-rot, does not seem to infect the ground; it seems to me to be a general clogging up of the pores, or sap courses, of the plant. Some persons have an idea that overfeeding is responsible for it, but for this statement I have thus far no proof. I have seen plants badly infected in both poor soil and well-fed soil. I, on different occasions, attributed this disease to the sting of the tarnish bug, but have been unable to prove it; in fact, I have seen plants badly infected where this bug was and where it was not present.

The Tarnish Bug.

Even excusing this bug from responsibility for this disease, it causes trouble enough for the aster grower in this section, as a plant once badly bitten by it is practically worthless. The bite or sting seems to be poisonous and dwarfs or stunts the plant. Generally speaking, one will get some flowers from these dwarfed plants, but of an inferior quality. We have tried various methods to eradicate this pest—air-slaked lime, whale oil soap, kerosene emulsion, tobacco extract, tobacco dust, moth balls, etc. All of these frighten off or kill some of the bugs, providing you can persuade the bug to remain until you get the remedy on him. These flies, or bugs, are up and away almost on your approach or, if they do remain, are so hidden under the broad top leaves that it is next to impossible to find them or get the spray on them, owing to the protecting leaves. The extremely early asters are not affected by this bug, as the pests do not make their appearance until June 10 to 15, to any great extent.

Establishment of H. B. Brubeck, at Rockville, Ind.

The Black Beetle.

Another pest so well known that it seems useless to mention it here is the black beetle. When they first appear we hand-pick them or use a dipper about six inches in diameter, in which we pour an inch or two of kerosene, taking the dipper in one hand and a short cane stake in the other, extending the dipper under the bugs and jarring them off with the stake into the oil. This proves quite satisfactory. Later, when the bugs become so numerous that to combat them seems almost hopeless, we resort to Paris green. This must be used with caution, owing to its tendency to burn the foliage.

A few words in regard to planting. We plant in beds, six rows to the bed, and set the plants one foot each way, allowing every seventh row for a walk one way. We cultivate entirely with hand barrows and try to go over the ground after each rain, if possible, so as to have the benefit of a dry or dust mulch. I do not try to irrigate, on account of the fact that I do not have water enough at my disposal.

IN A SMALL INDIANA TOWN.

Four feet of glass for every member of the town's population is the ratio of H. B. Brubeck's range to the number of people in the town of Rockville, Ind., where it is located, and he is the only florist in the place. These figures may interest the members of the trade in small towns who are from time to time estimating how large or small a place should be for the support of a florist. Of course, Mr. Brubeck, in common with every other country florist, depends to some extent on the surrounding towns for his business, so that the inhabitants of Rockville are not such heavy flower-buyers as they seem at first sight.

The range of Mr. Brubeck, which is shown in the accompanying illustration, contains 10,000 square feet of glass and the town of Rockville has a population of about 2,500. Mr. Brubeck reports a good business and steady growth. The spring trade, he says, has been better than in former years and Memorial day business was a record-breaker.

DAVIS TO BUILD IN INDIANA.

What is said to be the largest single order for commercial greenhouses ever placed has been given this week by J. W. Davis, to the Lord & Burnham Co. It calls for an entirely new establishment to be erected at Terre Haute, Ind.

Those who are acquainted with the size and success of the operations of J. W. Davis, some of whom have known that he has for several months been looking for a suitable location for an establishment east of Chicago, will be specially interested in the announcement that last week he closed the purchase of sixty-five acres of land at Terre Haute, admirably located for side track and shipping facilities, and will proceed at once with the erection of the new range. The first order calls for eight detached greenhouses each 76x600 feet, iron frame, and two propagating houses each 25x200 feet, with curved eaves. The contract has been given to the Lord & Burnham Co., through George Sykes, manager of the Chicago office. The type of construction is to be similar to the houses erected by the Lord & Burnham Co. for the J. W. Davis Co. and the Davis Floral Co. at Bettendorf, near Davenport, Ia. The new establishment is to be financed and managed by a separate corporation, the J. W. Davis Co., of Indiana. The houses, which are expected to be completed in the early autumn, are to be used first of all for cucumbers and tomatoes, but Mr. Davis has expressed his intention of eventually turning much of his glass to cut flowers and pot plants, the Davis Floral Co. having been organized as an Iowa corporation to make a start in this direction.

The success which has attended J. W. Davis since he withdrew from partnership with his successful brothers, who grow vegetables at Aurora, Morrison and Streator, Ill., starting for himself in Iowa, has been phenomenal. After a thorough investigation of modern greenhouse construction, he determined on big, wide houses, instead of the smaller houses generally employed by western vegetable growers. The range he put

After a thorough investigation of modern greenhouse construction, he determined on big, wide houses, instead of the smaller houses generally employed by western vegetable growers. The range he put up became one of the show places of Iowa. It consists of five houses, each 600 feet long, three of them forty-three feet wide, and two sixty-four feet wide. The service building for the range often has been spoken of as more resembling a street railway power plant than it does the usual greenhouse boiler shed. That the big houses have justified themselves is shown by the fact that the new range will consist of detached structures each twelve feet wider than the widest of the houses in the Iowa establishment.

THE SMITH GRAVE.

Visitors to Washington find the graves containing the bodies of Mr. and Mrs. William Smith, in beautiful Rock Creek cemetery, nicely trimmed and planted, through the courtesy of George W. Hess, superintendent of the U. S. Botanic Gardens, under the direction of W. F. Gude, Washington representative of the S. A. F. On top of each grave are Wichuraiana roses, as Mr. Smith had often expressed a desire to have memorial roses planted on his grave. At the head of each grave a nice specimen of Anthericum variegatum is planted, and at the foot Calluna vulgaris. Each grave is outlined with a border of Anthericum variegatum and Ophiopogon Jaburan variegatus. The whole makes an effective setting and quite a contrast to the long neglected spot. No doubt the memorial committee, which met in Chicago in 1912, will do what it can to erect some suitable stone on this beautiful lot, which is located in one of the most notable cemeteries in the United States. Just a short distance from the Smith section is the world-famous St. Gaudens masterpiece, the "Statue of Grief." Many of the notable families of the United States have mausoleums nearby.

ADAMS GETS PERE MARQUETTE.

A contract has been closed whereby the Adams Express Co., July 1, will take over the express business of the Pere Marquette railway, now operated by the United States Express Co. The Adams has also been awarded the contract of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western.

ZIRKMAN AT THE WHEEL.

The accompanying illustration shows Arthur Zirkman, Miss Zirkman and Frank J. Farney in Mr. Zirkman's car that entered the race from Philadelphia to Atlantic City May 29. The mayors of three cities, the two above named and of Camden, averaged the proper time for the distance at three hours and forty-seven minutes. Mr. Zirkman's time was three hours and seventeen minutes. In the picture Mr. Zirkman is seen at the wheel in this reliability race.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

Cooler weather, lessening shipments and a boom in June weddings all have united in giving a hardening tendency to the cut flower market. There has been little uplift in prices, but the low level of the last month is probably the limit in depression and unreasonable quotations. Midsummer can be no worse.

A fairly good Saturday reduced the strain on the iceboxes, but prices did not advance materially, except for the selected American Beauties. Of outdoor flowers, especially roses, there is now no limit to the supply. Ramblers especially are abundant. Then, too, the tables are loaded with sweet peas, gladioli, daisies, stocks, feverfew, coreopsis and delphiniums.

Peonies have had their day, and only a few reminders are left to close their most disastrous season. This is sweet pea week in New York, the convention emphasizing their place in popular favor. Few perfect carnations are now arriving, and prices are from $1 downward. Lilies have improved a little, the bottom now holding at $2 per hundred. Choice, selected stock sold at $3 on Saturday. Valley is firm, thanks to the weddings and a larger amount of funeral work last week than usual. Few orchids are selling above $25 per hundred, and anything mediocre was disposed of at unmentionable figures. Meanwhile the whole market may be said to be marking time.

Various Notes.

Among recent visitors were J. C. Vaughan, of Chicago, and Bert Chadwick.

The Newport branches of A. T. Bunyard, Ralph Armstrong and Wadley & Smythe are now open, and a splendid season is there anticipated.

The eighth annual outing of the Greek-American Florists' Association will be held at Wetzel's Point, Wednesday, July 8. Tickets are: Gentlemen, $3; ladies, $2, and children, $1, and may be obtained from President George Cotsonas or J. J. Fellouris. The committee members are James G. Carlaftes, George Polykranas, James Caparell, Peter Velotas, Jas. Sotiriades, Jas. Pappadem and N. Christatos.

Theo. Outerbridge and Miss Outerbridge left Saturday, June 20, on the Bermudian for their home at Sunnylands, Hamilton, Bermuda, after a month's stay in New York and vicinity.

The Plant Growers' Association is holding its 3-day outing this week at Delaware Water Gap, at the Kittatinny hotel.

Woodrow & Marketos opened their branch at Narragansett Pier June 22. The firm has a large landscape contract there and is quite busy.

The window of George C. Siebrecht's store contains an assortment of fern monkeys in various stages of development.

Gunther Bros. have enlarged their store, adding sixty square feet of space, which gives them better facilities for display.

The employees of A. J. Langjahr celebrated his fiftieth birthday last week by presenting to him a huge cake ornamented with fifty candles.

James Coyle will enjoy July and part of August at Kingsbury, N. J., and at Heckler, N. Y., thirty-seven miles north of Utica. Mr. Coyle has handled large shipments of geraniums this month in addition to his cut flower business.

The early closing movement is on in earnest. Many of the wholesalers closed last Sunday and will continue to do so, as well as at 4 p. m. daily during July and August.

Mrs. A. N. Kinney, of Fort Washington avenue and One Hundred and Ninety-eighth street, will sail for Europe July 14, on the Lusitania.

Young & Nugent have been busy lately with wedding decorations, having had two June 20 and one, of church and house, Tuesday, June 23.

Harry Riedel has been suffering from severe burns of hands and face. Mr. Meyer has joined the ranks of the baseball enthusiasts, of whom there is no mean number on Twenty-eighth street. W. G. Badgley, who was chairman of the railroad committee of the borough council of Chatham, N. J., had the honor of riding last week on the first tram that passed over the new elevation of the tracks, which eliminated eleven grade crossings at a cost of $1,500,000. This was largely due to Mr. Badgley's persistent efforts in behalf of his home town.

Much interest is apparent in the sweet pea convention June 27 and 28, at the Museum of Natural History.

Malandre Bros. have taken over the Weinberg greenhouses at Woodside, L. I. This firm has three fine stores in Manhattan.

George O. Sullivan, of P. J. Smith's force, was married June 15. His bride was Miss Gallagher, of Astoria.

The veteran retail florist and nurseryman, Alex. McConnell, is serving his country at jury duty.

Alfred E. Wheeler, of W. E. Marshall & Co., and his bride, who was Miss Edyth G. Waller, of Brooklyn, have returned from their honeymoon trip.

The auction season is over. The MacNiff Horticultural Co. says its volume broke all records.

Harry A. Bunyard and wife are summering at Patchogue, L. I.

A. T. Bunyard is back from a delightful visit to "the old folks at home" in England, where he assisted in celebrating the golden wedding of his parents. Mr. Bunyard is now at Newport, R. I.

The prize schedule of the New York flower show of 1915, carrying $12,000 in prizes, is ready for distribution.

Wm. Kessler has been busy with window-box and decoration work, but says the call for palms by the retailers, for wedding displays, is lighter than that of a year ago.

Max Schling has moved to his new home near Yonkers and celebrated there, a short time ago, the tenth anniversary of his wedding.

George Vocke and Miss Louise Mitesser, of Brooklyn, will be married June 30 and spend their honeymoon in New England. J. Austin Shaw.

The Lord & Burnham Co. is reported to be well pleased with the results that have followed its plan of opening branch offices in various important centers. These branch sales offices now number six, counting the one at Chicago, where the company also has its western factory. The latest branch office was opened a few weeks ago at Cleveland, in charge of H. P. Merrick, an old employee of the main office in New York. Other offices will be opened from time to time, it is said.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

The Market.

The end of the busy season is fast approaching and those catering to weddings and other social functions have had a busy time for the last two weeks. All in all, it must be said that this year's work for the month of June has been in every respect equal to last year's. Out-of-town orders are on the increase. Our yearly tourists are beginning to leave the city and soon the followers of the craft will get a chance to join them or stay in town and enjoy the cool breezes from the gulf. The long dry spell we had was broken by a few good rains last week, which was a welcomed relief and benefit to everything and everybody.

Club Meeting.

The New Orleans Horticultural Society held its regular monthly meeting June 18 at the Association of Commerce building. President P. A. Chopin and Secretary C. R. Panter were in their respective places, with only a fair-sized gathering of members present. Chairman J. Steckler, of the outing committee, submitted his report. He stated that the power boat, E. & J., owned by John Ludwig, of Grand Island, of which F. Adams, of the same place, is captain, has been chartered for the sole use of this society and its guests. The chairman assured the members that everything will be in perfect readiness by the morning of July 4 and hopes that as many will participate as possible.

Feitel Scheinuck and Paul Valdeja were elected members of the society. J. A. Newsham exhibited a fine specimen of Vanda Batemanii in bloom and was awarded 100 points.

Various Notes.

Chas. Eble is kept busy with the usual June weddings and commencements. He was given the contract for 4,000 carnations by the United Cigar Stores Co. for the opening of its new soda water department last week. Mr. Eble was made a happy grandpa on the arrival of a bouncing boy at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard E. Eble, May 22.

Frank J. Reyes & Co. are doing a steadily increasing business, mainly due to their hustling and wide-awake methods.

Frank Rieth reported an unusually large amount of work for the month of June, especially for weddings. R. E.

DETROIT, MICH.

The Market.

With the closing of the schools the dog days will have begun, with nothing more to do than plan our vacations. The ensuing week will see numerous weddings, which will use up large quantities of stock, and then, unless it is funeral work, little will be doing.

Last week we experienced some exceedingly cold weather for this time of the year and this prolonged the peony supply, which otherwise would be gone. Roses and carnations are in good supply, when quality and size are not considered. The latter are no bigger than a quarter, while the roses are also tiny, owing to the hot weather of the last few weeks. Sweet peas are fairly good and many thousands are used in wedding work. Valley appears more popular than ever before, and owing to a scarcity of white roses, the demand for valley has been unusually good.

Wild huckleberry is in big demand for decorative purposes and the quality of the material obtained locally has been excellent.

Various Notes.

S. S. Skidelsky, of Philadelphia, spent the first part of last week in Detroit.

A picnic and ball game which were to be held at Belle Isle park Monday, June 22, by the Detroit florists and their ladies had to be called off on account of rain.

Sidney Beard, a nephew of Ed. Beard, and the former's brother-in-law, William Shenk, have purchased the greenhouse establishment of Ed. Beard and will hereafter conduct the business. The name of Beard Bros. will, however, be retained as the name of the concern.

With the advent of summer many members of the trade are getting the fishing fever, and summer cottages are in favor. Some time ago Robert Rahaley purchased a pretty cottage on the Canadian border, a few miles east of Walkerville. Last week E. A. Fetters purchased a cottage, also on the Canadian border, and if this keeps up, ere long there will be a colony of Detroit florists summering in Canada.

Albert Pochelon, of F. T. D. fame, recently built a bungalow on a pretty spot on Grand River avenue, where his family will spend the summer hereafter. Mr. Pochelon, being an enthusiastic automobilist, enjoys the daily trip back and forth from the country.

Fred Meyer, gardener for S. S. Kresge, on Boston boulevard, is not only a thorough horticulturist but a literary genius as well. His evenings are spent in writing plays, some of which have been pronounced by critics to be far above the average, and which are sought after by publishers. H. S.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

Commencement week at Brown University, with its numerous social functions of every description, kept florists on the jump last week. The advent of outdoor roses, however, has cut a deep swath in the call for cut flowers and prices are dropping slightly. June weddings have made heavy demands upon the florists.

Employees of the St. Louis Seed Co., on their Outing at Waterloo, Ill., June 14.

Horticultural Society Show.

The annual June exhibition of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society was held June 17 in the Mathewson Street Methodist church. There was an elaborate showing of roses, sweet peas, peonies and herbaceous plants, and the table decorations were excellent.

In the commercial classes, Burke & Burns; E. J. Beavins, of East Greenwich; H. Howard Pepper, of the Melrose Rose Gardens; Edward E. Howard, of Eden Park; Cornelius J. Hartstra, gardener at the Rhode Island hospital; Eugene Appleton; William B. Hazard; and Thomas Brook, of Greystone, were the principal exhibitors. A. N. Pierson, Inc., of Cromwell, Conn., received an award of merit for a large collection of roses, and James Crawshaw, of Barrington, for a display of Asparagus plumosus Crawshawii.

Various Notes.

Mrs. Mary Pollock is preparing to move from her present location, on Franklin street, to a new store on the new extension of the street.

William Chappell has been unusually busy recently with table and hall decorations for Masonic functions.

Matthew Macnair will sail June 27 for a four months' trip to Europe. During his absence he will visit Scotland, Ireland, England, Germany and Switzerland.

Samuel Resnick, representing Joseph Koppelman, has been calling upon florists and growers throughout the state, taking orders for supplies.

John Annis, of the Hampton Meadows Greenhouses, has just purchased a new Ford automobile.

Andrew J. Olsen has given the contracts for the erection of a cottage, house and barn on his new property, on Pawtucket avenue, East Providence.

Albert Holscher is preparing to plant his chrysanthemums. He will begin with the large house which he has just cleared of sweet peas.

The school gardens at Pawtucket will be in charge this year of Norman E. McCulloch, of the Massachusetts Agricultural College.

No improvement is reported in the condition of William A. Fisk, of the W. E. Barrett Co., who has been sick for several months. W. H. M.

FREIGHT ON CHRISTMAS TREES.

A complaint against the freight rates on Christmas trees from points in Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota to points in Wisconsin, Illinois, Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, Missouri, Oklahoma, Arkansas and other points in Western Trunk Line territory has been filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission by the Platten Produce Co., of Green Bay, Wis., and other western merchants. The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul and other railroads were named defendants.

It was said that during the season 1913 the rates were increased by fifty to 125 per cent over the rates in effect in 1912 and several seasons before. The complainants desired the commission to fix rates for the future that will not exceed the rates in effect in 1912. It was furthermore said that in 1906 the minimum weight on carload shipments of Christmas trees was 20,000 pounds, and between that time and 1912 the minimum was increased at various times until it reached 30,000 pounds. The complainants claimed that a minimum of over 24,000 pounds for a 36-foot car is not warranted.

STILL SPREADING.

European correspondence in the Hearst papers records:

"Mothers' day, an innovation from America, was celebrated at the Central Y. M. C. A., London, recently. Every man wore a white flower, and was requested to write to or visit his mother, or if she were dead to place white flowers on her grave."

Providence, R. I.—An unmanageable automobile climbed the curb and knocked off a corner of the building occupied by Miss Annie F. Peckham's store May 28. Bricks and boards under the show window were loosened, but the plate-glass fortunately did not break.

OBITUARY

Charles Frueh, Sr.

Charles Frueh, Sr., head of the firm of Charles Frueh & Sons, and in the trade at Saginaw, Mich., for over forty years, died suddenly Thursday, June 18, at his new home, on Genesee avenue, where the greenhouses of the concern are situated.

Although he had suffered from stomach trouble more or less for some time, Mr. Frueh appeared in his usual health when he arose at 4 o'clock Thursday morning, according to habit, and he was cutting roses at 6. He began to feel unwell during the morning and lay down. Medical aid was called, but Mr. Frueh died while the physicians were examining him, the immediate cause being heart trouble.

He was born July 6, 1848, at Diesheim, Germany, and came to the United States in 1872, making his home in Saginaw, where he was married in February, 1876.

After working in the Dieckmann greenhouses, the first to be established in Saginaw, he embarked in business for himself in 1875, on Hoyt avenue, and was so successful, with the help of his sons, that the present large plant on Genesee avenue was built.

Mr. Frueh was a member of the Masonic body, being connected with lodge No. 77, with the Shrine and with other branches of the order. He was an Elk, a Maccabee, and belonged to the Arbeiter Society.

There are surviving his wife and five children, all living in Saginaw: Charles Frueh, Jr., John A. Frueh, Jennie M. Frueh, Lydia C. Frueh and Helen L. Frueh. The funeral was held Sunday afternoon, June 21, in the charge of St. Bernard's Commandery No. 16, Knights Templar, and the Saginaw-Bay City Floricultural Society, of which he was a charter member, attended in a body. Burial was in Forest Lawn cemetery.

Isaac Kennedy.

For many years one of the best known florists in northern Ohio, Isaac Kennedy passed away June 17 at his home at Cleveland. He had been in poor health for a number of years.

Mr. Kennedy was born in England of Scottish parents, March 27, 1864. He came to America when a young man, settling in Philadelphia, where he served in some of the best known establishments in that section. He removed to Cleveland in 1901 to take charge of the rose houses of the J. M. Gasser Co., where, in the next four years, he achieved the reputation of being one of the most skillful growers in the country. In 1905 he had accumulated sufficient capital to build a place of his own in West Park, O., where he remained in business until 1910. Mr. Kennedy was for years an active member of the Cleveland Florists' Club and served several terms as its secretary. The funeral, June 19, was in charge of Biglow lodge of Masons, of which he was a member. Many in the trade were present and the floral tributes were numerous and beautiful.

John F. Gibbs.

John F. Gibbs, aged 75, one of the pioneer florists and landscape gardeners of Allegheny county, Pa., died at his home, at Pardoe, Pa., recently, after an illness of almost a year. He had only lived in Pardoe one year, having been in the vicinity of Pittsburgh for thirty years. He was from England and first came to this country in 1878, coming to superintend the landscape work at Gordon park, Cleveland. From there he went to Pittsburgh and engaged in the florists' business. He retired a few years ago to take charge of the Northside City farm, at Warner, Pa., from which position he retired in 1912. He is survived by his widow, two sons and three daughters, all of whom are married: William Gibbs, of Pittsburgh; Sidney, of Sandy Lake, Pa.; Mrs. C. J. Smith, of Dormont; Mrs. M. Rine, of Leetsdale, and Mrs. William D. Faulk, of Dormont. He was a member of the United Presbyterian church.

Henry L. Murdock.

Henry L. Murdock, the veteran florist of Gardner, Mass., aged 75 years, died June 9 at his home, from heart trouble, after an illness that dated from March 26.

Mr. Murdock was born in Hubbardston, Mass., May 26, 1839. In 1866 he was married to Miss Ellen Wilson, of Hubbardston, and immediately after the marriage they took up their residence in Gardner. Forty years ago he established a florists' business and conducted it until eleven years ago, when his son, Fred W. Murdock, assumed the management.

Mrs. Murdock died February 19, and a few weeks later Mr. Murdock suffered a shock, which resulted in his death, although he retained his faculties up to within a month of his death.

Besides his son, Fred W. Murdock, he leaves a grandson, Robert Murdock, one sister, Mrs. Albert Mason, of Gardner, and two brothers, Milo Murdock, of East Hubbardston, and Alvin S. Murdock, Gardner. The funeral took place Friday afternoon, June 12, with services by Rev. Burton S. Gilman, of the Congregational church, of which Mr. Murdock was a member. Burial was in Crystal Lake cemetery.

George M. Garland.

While the death of George M. Garland had long been expected, because of the nature of the illness from which he suffered, his passing brings keen regret to those who had admired his many sterling qualities. To the majority of the trade he was best known as the inventor and introducer of the iron gutter that was the first step in taking the greenhouse out of the class of temporary structures, but by those who had the privilege of his personal acquaintance he was admired most of all for his upright character and absolute honesty of purpose. It was one of the deplorable circumstances that the last year of his life, when strength was ebbing daily, should have been saddened by financial troubles, for, like many others in whom the inventive genius finds domicile, the commercial instinct was not highly developed and he left his practical affairs largely in other hands, even before failing health made such a course imperative.

Mr. Garland was born at Des Plaines, Ill., in 1864. His is a family of florists. Sol, Frank and Warren are brothers and Mrs. Percy Jones is a sister. Mrs. Garland survives, with two sons, Harry and William.

...NEWS NOTES...

Rochester, Minn. — Peter Hanson started June 15 for Rudyard, Mont., to visit his children for two or three weeks.

Waltham, Mass.—At the meeting of the board of aldermen June 15, Superintendent Hill asked for an appropriation of $5,000 for a greenhouse at Mt. Flake cemetery.

Cambridge, O.—Fred Arnold, who purchased the Oldham Greenhouses, on North Seventh street, closed a deal June 12 for a large tract of land, on which he will shortly erect a greenhouse.

Marshalltown, Ia.—After a short vacation at his home, at Oskaloosa, Warren Gleason, who was in the greenhouses of the Kemble Floral Co. here for a short time, will go to the Kemble establishment at Mason City.

Elm Grove, W. Va.—Excavation has been begun for the cellar, 36x40 feet, in which will be placed the boilers to heat the large addition to the range of John Dieckmann & Co., which will be put up this summer.

Piqua, O.—Wm. Gerlach, Jr., has let the contract to the John C. Moninger Co., Chicago, for two houses, 112 feet long, and the rebuilding of one old house. Mr. Gerlach has for an assistant the son of J. M. Petersime, of Covington, O.

Chattanooga, Tenn.—The officers of the recently incorporated Chattanooga Floral Co., which succeeds the George B. Haeger Floral Co., are as follows: President, J. L. Lindsey; vice-president, C. W. Duffy, and secretary-treasurer, Carl Burke.

Cleveland, O.—Hester A. Getz, who runs the store at East Eighteenth street and Euclid avenue, under the firm name of Westman & Getz, was the subject of an article under the heading, "Women of Cleveland Who Achieve Success," in the Plaindealer of June 7.

Holyoke, Mass.—F. G. Bartlett, superintendent of Forestdale cemetery, read a paper at the May meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Association, which was held at G. H. Sinclair's store. The association decided to hold a picnic this summer, probably early in July.

Tarrytown, N. Y.—The premium list has been issued for the sixteenth annual exhibition of the Tarrytown Horticultural Society, to be held in Music hall November 4 to 6. Those who wish copies may obtain them by addressing Edward W. Neubrand, secretary. James W. Smith is manager for the exhibition committee. The premium list contains also a roster of the membership.

Wilmette, Ill. — Ernest Rober has quickly established a large wholesale plant business here and is an important patron of the express companies and the parcel post. He formerly was a member of the firm of Rober & Radke, at Maywood, Ill., but removed here when the firm dissolved, making a specialty of young stock for the trade. He is a skillful propagator and business has come quickly, the last two months having been extremely busy.

A new team of white mules was assigned to a Scottish teamster employed by Poehlmann Bros. Co. He named one Max, the other Welton. One guess!

Why He Rushed.

The reading lesson was in progress and a pupil was reading for the second time a thrilling passage about a woman drowning herself:

"She threw herself into the river. Her husband, horror-stricken, rushed to the bank—"

"Tell me," said the teacher, "why the husband rushed to the bank."

Quick and sharp came the response: "Please, ma'am, to get money to buy flowers for the funeral."—Minneapolis Journal.

Roses for Remembrance.

A tourist recently stopped for a drink of milk at an Irish cottage. He noticed on a dresser a brick with a faded red rose on the top of it.

"Why do you keep these?"

"Sure, sir," was the reply, "there's memories hangin' about them. Do you see this big dent in my head? Well, it was the brick done it, sir."

"But the rose?" asked the tourist.

His host smiled quietly

"The rose, sir, is off the grave of the man what threw the brick."—Southern Merchant.

...NEWS NOTES...

Dunbar, Pa.—Although there is not much left here, as the place was washed out two years in succession, what is left is working and Wm. Harvey says there is a good demand for everything at present.

Sioux Falls, S. D.—Liebl & Hessel have gone to Chicago to buy the material for another greenhouse, which will be erected in time for fall business. They also have purchased a 5-acre tract of land, which will be used as a nursery.

Connersville, Ind.—Charles A. Rieman believes his advertising copy is more effective in verse form. It has the advantage that it is nearly always read through, as the rhythm and rhyme serve to carry the reader onward.

Barre, Mass.—Mr. and Mrs. George R. Simonds observed the fortieth anniversary of their marriage May 30. Mr. Simonds is 62 years old; he entered the florists' business when he was over 40 and now conducts the Simonds Floral Co.

Crawfordsville, Ind.—William Parker, manager of the McDonald Flower Co., is recovering from the effects of a snakebite, believed to have been inflicted by a copperhead. The bite was a deep one and caused his arm to swell to alarming proportions.

Allenhurst, N. J.—The Allenhurst Greenhouses report quite good business. This concern specializes in Japanese landscape gardening, a style which is increasing in popularity quite rapidly. Two houses of Lord & Burnham construction are being added.

Stoneham, Mass.—S. Kameyana suffered a loss of about $200 when his oil store set fire to his lodgings at his greenhouses on Wright street court recently. The owner lost an equal amount, as the building was damaged in places, but his loss is covered by insurance.

Milford, N. H.—Howard Carlton, who has been in the poultry business here for sixteen years, has left that industry to become a vegetable grower. He will erect a greenhouse, 20x100 feet, and make cucumbers, lettuce and tomatoes his principal crop the coming year.

Plainwell, Mich.—There is no possibility of early depletion of the supply of hardy ferns or green sheet moss, for in this locality there are millions of ferns and carloads of moss as yet untouched. Walter Scott, the local florist, is planning to pack and ship some of the stock this season.

Tampa, Fla.—The Knull Floral Co. has disposed of the second motor car used for delivery and bought one of the new trailers, which is attached to the rear axle of the car by means of the Bradley shaft snap. This has proved the most satisfactory delivery system the company has had, as well as a great saving in money, as the cost of the trailer was no more than the upkeep of the old car for one month. E. R. Reasoner, of the Royal Palm Nurseries, Oneco, Fla., was a recent visitor and spent the day with F. A. Knull, driving in the latter's automobile on the fine roads that there are now in this vicinity.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Incorporated by Act of Congress, March 4, 1901.

Officers for 1914: President, Theodore Wirth, Minneapolis; vice-president, Patrick Welch, Boston; secretary, John Young, 53 W. 28th St., New York City; treasurer, W. F. Kasting, Buffalo.

Thirtieth annual convention, Boston, Mass., August 18 to 21, 1914.

RESULTS.
We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

Not a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper.

The supply of ericas for next season will be less than in 1914, the weather this spring having been decidedly unfavorable for some of the propagators, with the result that they lost quantities of stock.

Boston is such an excellent summer resort, and so near to many other points of summer interest, that the S. A. F. convention is likely to draw more people from a distance than has been the case in recent years.

T. C. will find the subject of his inquiries treated in The Review from time to time. It is impossible to send him the information wanted, as he failed to give either name or address. All anonymous inquiries go into the waste basket.

For years it has been said, by those who have dealings with many trades, that of business men few had less concern than florists in the matter of meeting obligations when due; that, in fact, florists appeared to pay no attention to the terms stated by the seller, or even appeared ignorant of their meaning. Happily, much improvement has been noted in the last year or two. The trade is using better business methods, and gaining by them.

A BEAUTIFUL BOOK.

The Minneapolis park commissioners have for many years issued a superbly printed and illustrated annual report, but this year they have beaten their best previous record, some of the illustrations showing the S. A. F. convention garden being printed in colors. Theodore Wirth, president of the S. A. F. and superintendent of parks at Minneapolis, has sent copies of the book to some of his friends in the trade.

HE KNOWS THE PLACE.

It is becoming general knowledge that, no matter what a man's needs, he can get what he wants by using The Review. Like this:

Please discontinue my Want Ad No. 285. It has been very satisfactory and I shall know where to advertise whenever I want some one in a hurry. —W. W. Coles, Kokomo, Ind., June 22, 1914.

ARE YOU IN SYMPATHY?

I wonder why cut flowers live
A long, long time for some,
And then for others seem to shrivel up—
To shrink away and die
Before their time.
'Twould seem the sensitive blossoms know and feel
A presence that is kindred to their own,
And are thus loath to leave
The silent, sweet companionship
Of one who is as loath to have them go.
—Chicago Tribune.

PURELY PERSONAL.

Charles E. Meehan, Philadelphia, has taken his family to Ocean City, N. J., for the summer.

Richard Vincent, Jr., says money was not made to hold, so the other day he bought each of his three sons a new automobile apiece.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

The market is rapidly dropping into the typical summer state, but it seems certain that this summer will see the market much more heavily supplied with stock than ever before has been the case in July and August. There cannot be any dull summer season if the stock in prospect is to be merchandised.

The first part of last week was active; it was school closing week in most of the places where school closings cut any figure with the flower business. Also, it was a good week for weddings. Old hands at the business, however, long ago learned that school and wedding work brings business in this market for the first part of the week, but not for the latter part. That was the case last week. The older the week became the less activity was seen. The present week is less active to a marked degree, for the majority of the schools have closed and the crop of June brides has been pretty much harvested.

There is an abundant supply of flowers, taking the market as a whole. Carnations are on the down grade, so far as quantity and quality are concerned, but are holding their prices. Growers are replanting earlier than usual this year, so that every day sees a reduction in supply. Beauties are possibly the most abundant item on the market. Certain growers have done so well with summer crops in recent years that this season a number of other growers timed their crops to come in during late June. A big business is being done in Beauties because the stock is at least as good as other flowers, because the Beauty is a fairly dependable summer shipper, and because the supply is so large that everybody is pushing Beauties. It's the push, perhaps, that counts for more than anything else.

Some of the growers are cutting few roses, but a number of important producers have planned to take advantage of the good summer demand that has been in evidence the last few years. These growers are now coming into crop with their early planted houses and are able to meet a much heavier demand

USE OUR BEAUTIES

OUR ANNUAL SUMMER CROP of Beauties is famous--and it's on again. The trade knows these Beauties--we have sold them in big quantities for many summers. They always are a bit finer than any other Beauties, and they are business-builders for those who show them to the public--YOU can do good business right straight through the summer if you use our Beauties. A big cut now on. All lengths. Order today. Get started NOW.

FANCY ROSES

It is well to remember that Amling's specialty always is a grade of Roses just a little better than can be had elsewhere in quantity. A good crop is on, and the best roses ship best in the warm season. We have a full line, including

MILADY WARD SUNBURST
BULGARIE KILLARNEY RICHMOND
WHITE KILLARNEY KILLARNEY QUEEN

FANCY VALLEY

We can furnish first-class Valley in any quantity on short notice—wire your orders and we ship on next train, as much as you want.

FANCY PEONIES SELECT

As usual, our Peonies again this year are the best on the market. Put up by the oldest and most reliable shipper.

CARNATIONS

Our Carnations are easily ahead of any others on the market. Try some and see for yourself.

NEW FANCY FERNS

By ordering of us you can get all the Hardy Cut Ferns you need. Our stock is good; we never ship anything but the best on the market.

than is in evidence this week. Peculiarly, nobody seems to be cutting any quantity of white roses. The wide fluctuations in temperature have resulted in considerable mildew in the cases of growers who do not maintain steam and vigilance, but there are plenty of good roses of typical summer size. Mrs. Russell is beginning to be a considerable factor and is the finest rose on the market. Sunburst also shows up nicely and has been in special request through June.

Peonies have been selling well and will be practically cleaned up this week, except for one lot the holder of which usually takes things easy. Easter lilies are coming in less plentifully and are selling much better than at any time since Easter. The special demand for valley is abating; enormous quantities have been sold this month. Cattleyas are not abundant, but neither are they in much request, though some superlatively fine stock is seen. Rubrum lilies, the poor man's orchids, are abundant. For a week or more the arrivals of candidum lilies from Benton Harbor and other Michigan points have been more than the market could assimilate. Shasta daisies are everywhere. Sweet peas are no longer an important factor. Gladioli are less plentiful this week, but there is news of a flood on the way.

The green goods market is quiet. The decrease in the demand for ferns indicates that everyone has them now.

There has been no concerted action in the matter of early closing, but some of the houses have hung out signs announcing 5 p. m. as the closing hour during July, August and September. Doubtless all the important houses will close at this hour and buyers should bear it in mind when telegraphing. Get the orders in early.

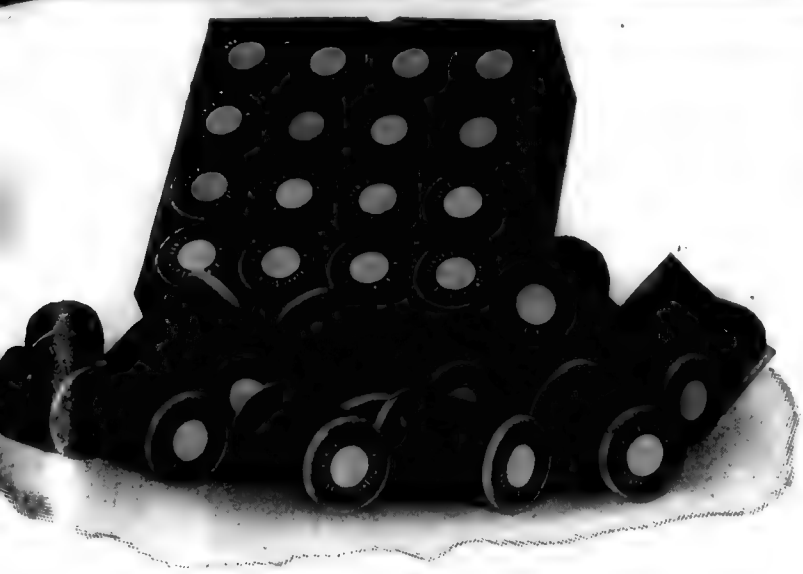
Association Meeting.



A. T. Pyfer, secretary of the Cook County Florists' Association, states that there was an attendance of thirty members at the June meeting, when the bowling prizes for the season just closed were distributed. William Lorman, with the A. L. Randall Co., was appointed chairman of the sports committee, in place of Peter Olsem, who felt that he does not get into town often enough to serve. An outing on a lake steamer was proposed and the matter was placed in the hands of a committee consisting of three committee chairmen, as follows: Paul Klingsporn, of the good of the club committee; William Lorman, of the sports committee, and A. C. Kohlbrand, of the transportation committee.

A proposition was presented by the Gregory Tours Association with reference to a trip to San Francisco during the exposition. An offer was made to take a party of 100 on a special train for two weeks, $152 to cover all expenses and seven days to be given in San Francisco during the week of the S. A. F. convention, in case it is held there. No action was taken, but it was thought worth while to start a list of those who would go. President Miller later reported he had twelve names.

Visitors to The Review.

Visitors to The Review in the last week have remarked that they felt more than ever at home, as they found the office in the hands of builders in process of the same overhauling and enlargement the greenhouse man tackles in the summer-time, preparatory to an increased output in the autumn.

for New York. He had spent a week among the private gardeners at Lake Forest and other near-by points. He said his recent articles in the Country Gentleman have created all kinds of talk, many people thinking he painted gladiolus growing in too glowing colors.

F. W. Romer, representing the Briarcliff Greenhouses of F. R. & P. M. Pierson, Scarboro, N. Y., was looking over the western markets with a view to disposing of next season's crop of American Beauties. His concern has shipped quantities here before and probably will send more than ever west this season.

D. Scott Geddis, an old employee of C. A. Samuelson, now in charge of the florists' department of Scruggs-Vandervoort-Barney, the Marshall Field of St. Louis, was in town to look over Frank Oechslin's houses and those of other plantsmen and to talk to builders. Not finding an adequate supply of plants in their neighborhood, the firm last week bought five acres of land at Olivette, Mo., and will put up a modern range of about 35,000 feet of plant houses as a starter to back the department presided over by Mr. Geddis.

F. J. Olson, of Ames, Ia., dropped in on his way to New York, whence he sails on the Imperator June 27 for a two months' trip through Europe, his first visit in many years to his boyhood home.

Following Mr. Olson came E. H. Haeger, of the Haeger Brick & Tile Co., Elgin, Ill. This concern has been in business forty-two years, but only recently began the manufacture of flower pots. They find the possibilities in this field even better than they looked at the start, six months ago.

Various Notes.

August Jurgens, who with E. E. Pieser, of Kennicott Bros. Co., is interested in a peony plantation at Calumet, Mich., left for the north June 22 to superintend the cutting of the crop, which is expected to be ready for shipment in a few days. A part of the plantation is 3 years old, and a part 2 years and 1 year. Nothing has been cut to date, but a fair crop is expected this season from the older plants. Anton Then accompanied Mr. Jurgens. They expect to be absent about a week.

Mrs. Frank Williams, proprietor of the Atlas Floral Co., is said to have been a June bride and the same informant quotes the groom as saying that he doesn't know a rose from a carnation but that he recognizes an American Beauty when he sees one.

C. G. Anderson, who has charge of the plant department of Poehlmann Bros. Co., says he is entirely satisfied with the season's business, also with the prospect for fall.

E. F. Winterson was 45 years of age June 21. There was quite a celebration at the store Saturday afternoon.

It never has been possible to get all the wholesale cut flower houses in this market to close at 5 p. m. during the summer, but John Zech, who has rather positive ideas on some subjects, says he would close even if nobody else did, since the last hour of the day at this season brings practically nothing to justify keeping the stores open.

O. W. Frese reports that Poehlmann Bros. Co. has found it possible to obtain as much as 20 cents per flower for the best grade of Mrs. Russell this week, which puts it in the Beauty class.

The Retail Florists' Association will hold its monthly meeting in the hall back of J. L. Raske's flower store Monday evening, July 6. It is announced that the evening will be given to the discussion of the proposition: "Why Doesn't Every Buyer Pay the Same Price?"

Wietor Bros. have given the Moninger Co. an order for material for the rebuilding of their oldest range of carnation houses. As soon as the present crop is cut six houses will be demolished and four new houses erected covering the same space. New material will be used, except the glass.

A wholesale florist has been threatened with a suit for damages on the ground that an employee no longer on the payroll had contracted blood poisoning through the punctures of rose thorns.

The entire plant at Greggs Station is heated with Kroeschell boilers. Kroeschell Bros. The Lake Shore railroad has issued a circular letter on behalf of the Chicago Florists' Club, descriptive of the trip to the S. A. F. convention at Boston in August. It is hoped to get a large enough party to procure a special train. The start will be made Sunday, August 16.

This is John F. Kidwell's last week as a retail florist in Chicago. He is one of the oldest men in the business. The establishment of J. F. Kidwell & Bro., on Wentworth avenue, will be taken over July 1 by William Kidwell, who has the store on Forty-third street.

P. C. Schupp states that the J. A. Budlong establishment has flowered and sold more valley this June than in any previous month since valley forcing was taken up.

Changes are being made in the heating system at the Des Plaines establishment of Hoerber Bros., whereby considerable saving in fuel is expected to be accomplished.

H. Hansen recently has moved from his old place at 1750 Cemetery drive into his newly built store and greenhouse at 1742 on the same street.

The first part of June gave an excellent run of business for Paul Blome & Co., according to Arthur Blome, but sales began to fall off with the passing of the commencements in the north side schools.

Work of repairing benches and replanting is going on at Fred Burmeister's, 1767 Cemetery drive. A new boiler has also been installed.

C. L. Washburn, of Bassett & Washburn, made a business trip to Wheaton June 23.

Samuel Graff, the head of the Art Floral Co., of Columbus, O., has leased the store at 7 West Monroe street for a period of years at a term rental of $17,500.

J. C. Bruckner, who trades as the Normal Park Florist, 537 West Sixty-ninth street, is out of town on a business trip.

The wedding of Miss Ella Schaffer, formerly of Bassett & Washburn, to George Goebel, the market representative of the Adams Express Co., took place June 23.

Among those whose presence on the market was noted this week have been John Stuppy, St. Joseph, Mo.; Thomas Haven, Benton Harbor, Mich.; A. D. Curtis, grower for Lewis Henderson, Omaha, Neb.; Mrs. George H. Whiting, Yankton, S. D.

AUSTIN, TEX.

The Market.

There is too much heat for indoor stock, and the plants in the field have not quite adjusted themselves to the change from extremely wet weather to normal conditions. There is, however, an abundant supply of gladioli and day lilies, as a result of the long continued rains. Sweet peas are a total failure, as the rust has affected them badly. As outdoor sweet peas have been the florists' stand-by at this time in recent years, they hardly know what to do since the local carnations have played out. The stock shipped in is in sleepy condition as a result of its long ride on the express cars. Roses are getting better, and vincas and other small stock meet funeral demands.

Various Notes.

E. Friedrich is planning to put up two more houses, in order to be able to supply sufficient stock for his trade, which is largely with railroad employees.

Palms are the pride of Chas. Aiff & Co. The stock of this firm runs all the way from seedlings to specimens 30 years old of Mr. Aiff's own growing.

Olaf Olson, of the Austin Floral Co., followed winter stock with cantaloupes in pots and has a splendid crop of much nicer fruit than the field-grown.

F. T. Ramsey & Son have a fine display of hemerocallis and hollyhocks, to which the damp weather has given a truer color than is usual at this season.

The Southwestern Market.

A good deal of activity was displayed last week by the retailers at the different wholesale markets. Business was good in school work, weddings and funerals, but stock was scarce and the demand greatly exceeded the supply. Some of the wholesalers can again boast of clean-up sales. Stock was of poor quality, except valley, Easter lilies and gladioli, which seemed to have the demand. The prices of gladioli advanced from 4 cents to 6 cents June 22. The supply of carnations is large, but the warm weather has got the best of them, for most of them are small. There are some excellent Shasta daisies and cornflowers. Roses are poor and scarce, with short stems. Unless rain comes soon, outdoor stock will be of little value, as all stock in the fields is suffering greatly. Little business is looked for from now on, as the summer force to the country for the afternoon. Fishing was participated in by all, and each brought home a nice string of fish. The trip was made in their large delivery truck.

William Ossick, secretary and treasurer of the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co., met with a painful accident June 19, when he slipped and fell at the store, spraining his arm, which will be of little use to him for the next ten days.

Miss Margaret Kuehn, the 12-year-old daughter of C. A. Kuehn, has become an expert swimmer, according to the daily papers. She will give an exhibition of fancy swimming this week at the Press Club Frolic and is a big attraction at the Crystal Natatorium.

Frank Gorly, manager of the Grimm & Gorly baseball team, says he will challenge the local federal league team for a series of games at the end of the league season and has little fear of the outcome, as his team is playing great ball.

Fred C. Weber, Jr., is spending a few days in Chicago. On his return Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Weber, Sr., will spend a week at Okawville, Ill.

From last reports, Alex. Siegel is still under the doctor's care at his home. Mr. Siegel is fretting under these conditions and wants to get away for his northern fishing trip.

David Geddis, of Vandervoort's flower department, leaves June 24 for Columbia, Mo., where he has the decorations for the Ames-Miller wedding. The bridal outfit will be made on his arrival there.

R. E. Blackshaw, representing the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, and Harry Balsley, of the Detroit Flower Pot Co., Detroit, Mich., were recent visitors.

Otto Bruenig, head of the Berning force, took a flying trip to Chicago, June 19, to look over the Chicago market. He returned June 22.

The flower beds at the different parks and at private places are looking bad and the lawns are burnt up, as there have been only two light showers in two months, but the weather man tells us relief is in sight this week.

W. J. Pilcher has planted his new rose house. The varieties this year will be Killarney, Killarney Brilliant, Hadley, Milady and Aaron Ward. The new house is the largest in Kirkwood.

The Scruggs-Vandervoort-Barney department store last week purchased a five-acre tract at Olivette, which has a frontage of 350 feet and is 1,000 feet deep. The company will improve this tract with greenhouses, to cost $20,000, which will be used for growing plants for the use of their flower department. The building is to be started at once.

The market at the time of this writing presents a July aspect. There is but a limited supply of stock and only a part of this stock consists of first-class blooms. The rest, however, is fair, when growing conditions generally and the adversities of the weather are considered. The demand, both in this city and from out of town, is active and has been taking up almost all of the offerings.

The cut of roses is small and all are selling at sight. Some Maman Cochet of good quality are included in the list of rose offerings. Lilies are scarce for the time being, but should soon be in good supply. Gladiolus receipts are larger than they were and sell nicely. The carnation cut is shortening rapidly. Both valley and orchids are adequate for present requirements. The fine, large cut of sweet peas that has been coming in has been selling readily, but Monday, June 22, they crowded up somewhat. Peonies had a good call during the last week. Sales of water lilies are only fair. Other offerings include Shasta daisies, cornflowers, feverfew, coreopsis and the like. The green goods supply is adequate.

Various Notes.

L. H. Kyrk has been receiving some fine Shasta daisies from Geo. Klotter.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Eastern Market.

The change noted in the last lines of the market report of a week ago is more evident today than it was then. There is a fair demand, at times reaching to brisk, for good stock. The supply of poor flowers has been cut down so that conditions are easier. Peonies are on the wane; the stock that comes out of cold storage in good shape is in demand and will not last much longer. Valley has been in such heavy request as to be short of requirements on several days. Roses are selling moderately well when of quality, white especially so. There are few Kaiserins in the market. Carnations from out of town are excellent, but the local stock is rarely good. Easter lilies are recovering from their two months' depression. Larkspurs and gladioli are important decorative flowers. Sweet peas are plentiful and useful when they have good stems. Three kinds of cattleyas and one dendrobium give variety to the orchids. Outdoor flowers are cheap; perhaps cornflower is the most useful.

The Club Outing.

The third annual field day of the Philadelphia Florists' Club, held at Schuetzen park Monday, June 22, proved a great success. There were over 250 persons present to enjoy the games, dinner, music and dancing. The weather, though showery in the morning, cleared in the afternoon. Athletic events occupied the afternoon, and after a good dinner the evening was given over to dancing in the club house. The prize-winners of the afternoon were as follows:

Men's wheelbarrow race—Charles Kohler, first; A. E. Wohlert, second; R. Kienle, third.

Ladies' wheelbarrow race—Mrs. E. Aschmann, first; Mrs. P. Huebner, second; Mrs. A. Campbell, third.

Waretown.

Commodore John Westcott entertained his friends at what is known as the opening of the season for the Waretown Rod and Gun Club June 19 to 21. The Commodore is a famous host; his friends always have a tremendously good time when they go down to Waretown. This season's party included George Anderson, John Burton, George Craig, Robert Craig, James Dean, D. C. Donohue, C. F. Eimerman, A. B. Cartledge, W. F. Gude, Robert Kift, David Rust, Samuel S. Pennock, J. C. Vaughan, James Trainer, G. C. Watson and the Commodore's son, William Westcott.

Flowers Abroad.

Bernard Eschner, president of the M. Rice Co., gave a few impressions, gathered on his trip across the water, that may be of interest to my readers. Mr. Eschner was emphatic in his declaration that our delivery service is far ahead of that of the florists in the older countries. He saw few florists' automobile delivery cars. These few were in Berlin, Paris and London. The delivery wagons were not equal to those in this country. Most of the delivery abroad is done by messenger. Oddly enough, there is an attachment on the front and on the rear of the trolleys, in Paris, I think Mr. Eschner said, for hanging designs. The florists' windows in Paris were as fascinating as ever. Daring color combinations, dainty effects in plants and flower baskets were presented in rich profusion in the leading florists' windows. The roses were magnificent in their spring beauty. An open air flower market on a square of red-awning-covered church pavement was interesting, with its low prices and swarthy saleswomen. Natural foliage is much used in design work. Laurel and spruce are bought in large quantities and form the groundwork for designs, which usually exceed ours in size.

There were two ways of doing things in London that were strange to Mr.

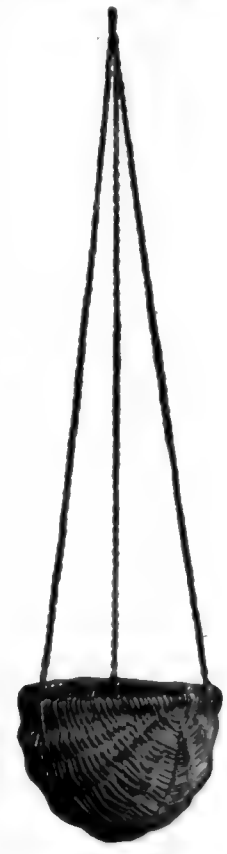
Eschner. One was the displaying of made-up funeral designs of natural flowers with the price attached. The other was the cardboard carnation bouquet. This consists of a piece of cardboard of color to match, placed behind the carnation. The flower covers the cardboard in front, the stem goes through it. The carnation is then opened in the center and a small rosebud and a little green are inserted in the opening and wired in position. This completes the boutonniere or corsage bunch.

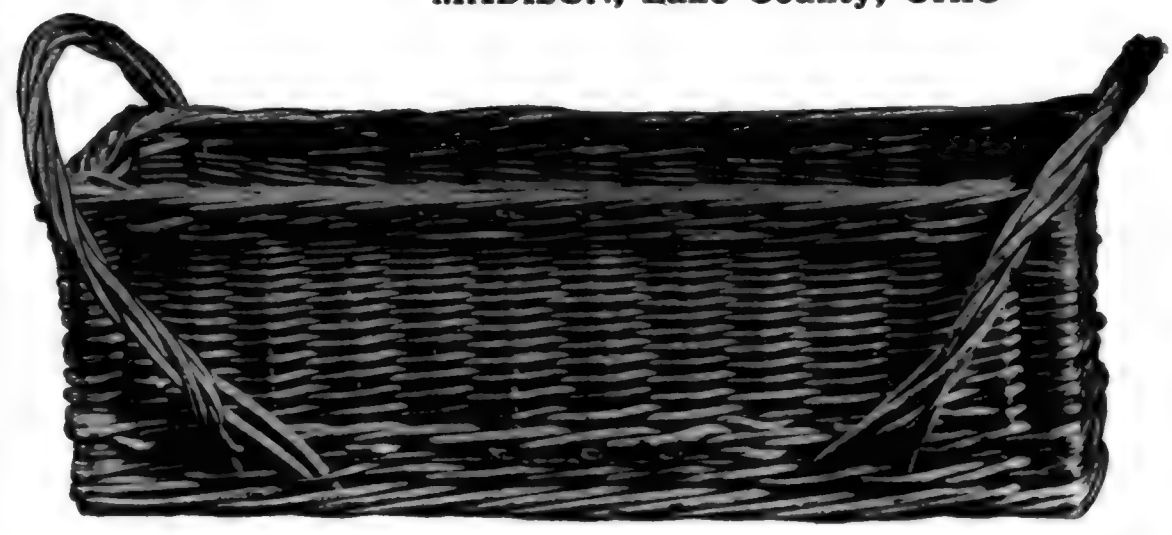


The spring flower show in Hamburg pleased Mr. Eschner, particularly on account of its finished appearance, due to the solid beds of color being edged with borders of green. Outside beds of rhododendrons and tulips were shown in this way, while fine flowering plants and cut flowers were exhibited indoors.

Neidinger's New Home.

Joseph G. Neidinger has this week stepped into the front rank of the florists' supply houses of the country. Last week the doors of his former place of business, at 1513 Germantown avenue, were closed, and with but the loss of a half day in the factory, the new place at 1309 North Second street was opened June 22. It is a well appointed brick building, with ample space and light on all sides. There are five floors 38x115 feet, each sixteen feet high, a basement, two steam boilers, electric lights and electric elevators. The first floor is for offices in front, shipping room in the rear, opening on a small street. Between these two are the bins for the stock needed all the time. The second floor is the show room, filled with cases on all sides, with glass doors on rollers, and display shelves for baskets in the center. The third floor is for making artificials; it may be flowers, it may be designs, here is where they will be made. The fourth floor will be largely used for natural foliage, and the fifth for general stock.

The thing that is most impressive about this move to finer quarters is the fact that Mr. Neidinger is in Europe when the change is made. This is partly explained by the presence of George S. Hampton, to whom all the details of moving were entrusted. The excellent appointments and the precision with which the business was transferred from the old to the new home shows that Mr. Neidinger and Mr. Hampton thoroughly understand what their business requires and how to get it.



The significance of the move lies in the fact that Philadelphia is even better able to meet all demands for florists' supplies than heretofore. Mr. Hampton attributes the business success of his house to originality, first in artificial flowers, then in baskets, then in wreaths.

Various Notes.

H. Bayersdorfer and Mrs. Bayersdorfer will sail for home on the steamer Vaterland June 28, arriving here, probably, on the Glorious Fourth. Their son, Sydney H. Bayersdorfer, will cross on the return trip of the same steamer July 7.

Frank J. Farney, looking remarkably well, is spending a few days in town.

Franklin Ely, with the Henry F. Michell Co., reports a good demand for flower seed, notably pansies and winter-flowering sweet peas. A large southern order for 150 hanging baskets, to be made and filled with plants on short notice, was filled here recently.
